Walking Festival Begins

Head to Head Walkway for Whakaraupo/ Lyttelton Harbour

Want to get intimate with the beautiful scenery of Whakaraupo/Lyttelton Harbour? See the crabs scuttling in and out of their holes, the vibrant bird-life, all the little hidden bays and the stunning reflections in the water of the harbour: Come on the Harbour Loop walk in the Banks Peninsula Walking Festival.

The walk serves to trial an uncompleted walkway from Godley Head to Adderley Head that the council has been working on in past years. Rowena MacGill and Nicole Wiedemann will lead the walk in two parts over the two weekends of the Walking Festival, 2nd - 3rd November and 9th - 10th November.

MacGill says: “Although at six hours each day it is a full day's walk, the track is mostly easy and we will have plenty of stops to rest and chat. The plan is to go from Lyttelton, around the harbour to Purau in two days, but it is of course possible just to do one day. The scenery is wonderful, with new perspectives - quite different to whizzing past in a car on the road. There is huge potential for the Head to Head walk. We can share our beautiful harbour with visitors and have many local businesses blossoming alongside it. For example Nicole, who is guiding the walk on the 2nd and 3rd, is setting up a guided walk business on the Bridle Path.”

The Walking Festival also offers – for the first time – walks across the whole of Banks Peninsula, including an introduction to the GeoPark project with Dr. Sam Hampton, the popular overnight camp at Quail Island with Mark Brabyn, and a great variety from short walks in the townships to more challenging tramps.

Find the full programme of 39 walks at www.lyttelton.net.nz or pick up a brochure at your local library. For more information or to book for walks phone the Lyttelton Information Centre 03 328 9093

Lyttelton Harbour Festival Dates Set for 2014

Project Lyttelton introduces a new Lyttelton Harbour Summer Festival for 2014, including The “Lyttelton Tea Party,” a night of music and festivities around Lyttelton township on Friday 7th February, and “The Great Pirate Beach Picnic Party” in Corsair Bay on Saturday 8th February.

Like the Festival of Lights, the Summer Festival includes an open invitation for local businesses and community groups to hold an events or get involved.

The Harbour Harvest Festival is planned for 4th - 6th April 2014. The Harvest Festival offers a weekend of activities, workshops, stalls and performances celebrating the culmination of a year's work in the garden, a time of bounty and a traditional focus for community celebration.

Creating Opportunities for Children

Check Out Cubs, and the Walking Festival Camp

Mark Brabyn and his family have been Lyttelton residents for many years. A change in lifestyle has enabled Mark to have more time with his family and enabled him to help in the local community. Mark loves the outdoors and has a back ground in taking groups of adults into the back country, enjoying New Zealand's wonderful outdoor experiences. With those experiences, and some down time, Mark is putting those talents to good use.

During this year Lyttelton Cubs needed some new leaders. Mark saw this as a new opportunity for him. Drawing on the experience he gained from leading groups of adults with Hiking New Zealand, and knowing how much they enjoyed the team building and the comradeship, Mark is applying the same skills and knowledge to the Lyttelton Cubs to create some really neat activities for local children. Cubs, Mark explains, are for boys and girls from the ages of seven to ten.

"Lyttelton Cubs meet every Wednesday from 6.30 to 8.00pm. Many of the activities that we run are modelled on games that are used to organise with the adults, Spot Light, Sardines, Back to Base. Everyone seems to like them no matter what age" he said. Mark helps coordinate the Cubs with Elise Bryant. With eighteen eager children they also need help from the children's parents as well. "Cubs works best with all of our families getting involved. It needs to be a real team effort to work" he said.

With a wealth of fabulous facilities on the doorstep here in Lyttelton, this also enables the Cubs to have great outdoor experiences together and with their families.

Mark mentions "we recently spent the weekend at Living Springs Bush Camp. The facilities were amazing from great walking tracks, to the pool and really cool balance bikes". Added to Living Springs there is also Orton Bradley Park and Quail Island within close distance.

If you would like more information on Lyttelton Cubs call Mark Brabyn 027 281 6180 or visit www.scouts.org.nz

Quail Island Camp

Separate from Cubs, but as part of the Banks Peninsula Walking Festival, Mark will be leading the family camp on Quail Island. You can participate in this wonderful activity for just the cost of the boat ride to the Island.

"It's so amazing to have the Island to yourselves when the last ferry leaves at 3.30pm" says Mark. Activities include many of the games listed above plus great walking and swimming opportunities. Kiwi Ranger activity books will also provide lots of fun things for children to do over the weekend.

To participate on the family camp you will need your own camping gear, food and equipment. Reservations need to be made in advance. Call the Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre 328 9093 or email infocentre@lyttelton.net.nz to reserve your place.

Lyttelton Tennis Club House Returns

Epitome of a Great Team Effort

Whenever it is needed Lyttelton residents step up and make things happen. Kristi Calder, Lisa Mason, Lucie Ozanne and Jillian Frater all have children and after the earthquakes with so few opportunities for recreation and meeting places around the Lyttelton township this dynamic foursome decided they would try and get funding to bring the old tennis club building on Cressy Terrace back to life.

With a great proposal they approached Vodafone New Zealand, the Christchurch Earthquake Appeal, the Project Lyttelton Community Earthquake Fund, Rotary and the Christchurch City Council. Before long the funding was secured and in the case of Vodafone the $20,000 they applied for became $34,000!

Close ties to all parts of the community made the task move forward quickly. With a mixture of pro bono, in kind and paid work, locals chipped in to make it all happen and on Saturday October 19 the team had a great community celebration at the newly opened club rooms which will serve as the tennis club hub plus a meeting place for local activities.

Jillian on behalf of the group thanked many people who had assisted the project in its two and a half year life. People she thanked included Simon Blencoe from Pynenburg and Collins Architects Limited for his work on the plans, Drew Hartstone the builder from Windy Ridge Limited, many council staff spanning reserves to heritage teams, Ray Blake from MacTodd Limited for legal help, Anthony Bown for advice and of course all the funders.

The opening day was a big success with many local parents, children and the wider community enjoying a celebration. A terrific TimeBank trade resulted in a wonderful tennis inspired cake being created by two local ladies.

Whilst there is still a little more work to be done on the grounds, the tennis courts are able to be used and the club rooms are in wonderful condition.

The club room building dates back to the 1920's. During the restoration Vitoria Bliss and Brendan Smyth from the Christchurch City Council Heritage team grew attached to the old honours board. They have kindly offered to restore it. An example of yet another community driven response that just typifies life in Lyttelton.

Activities are already in full swing on the site. Tennis lessons are every Thursday evening. The team have had one outdoor movie evening and have more planned.

Club membership has started again. The joining fee is a really reasonable at just $5.00. If you would like more information about the club and its facilities please contact Jillian Frater 03 328 7470.

Rushani's Cake for Greatness

Acknowledging Lyttelton Volunteer: Laura Hopper

Toward the end of October, Rushani baked a gorgeous carrot, ginger and sunflower seed cake topped with a slightly tart yoghurt icing for Lyttelton volunteer, Laura Hopper. Laura Hopper.

Rushani says "Laura is very committed to our Lyttelton children by organising and coaching various sports year round. After a bit of detective work from Ange Hodgson and assistance from Rachele Joyce, we found Laura at the Lyttelton Combined Schools Athletics day as a parent-helper. I have noticed that our Cake for Greatness recipients just so happen to be doing their good deeds when I do the delivery. I'm sure that isn't a coincidence! Thank you once again Laura. You're a real team-player. What a great role model for our children."

Rushani's next Cake for Greatness delivery will be on 7 November. Rushani is always eager to hear about who is in the community doing great things, so if you would like to nominate a local group of people, business or individual who deserves special recognition and a well deserved treat with their morning cuppa, send your nominations to Rushani via her Facebook page, and try to give some specific examples of community kindness/greatness/awesomeness, where possible. You will also find Rushani at the Lyttelton Farmers Market, every second Saturday, with a range of delectable home baked treats.

Rushani's Cake for Greatness:

<https://www.facebook.com/pages/Rushanis/222728904531644>

Background

Cake for Greatness is an initiative Rushani set-up in September 2013 after realising just how many people volunteer and give so selflessly to the local community. Everyone knows that Lyttelton is a very special little town and that is not just because of the Port Hills that hug the community or the beautiful harbour, but because of the positive contribution people continue to give, without expecting anything in return.

On her weeks off from the Lyttelton Farmers Market, where Rushani has a fortnightly food stall selling unique and different cakes, biscuits and a range of seasonal savoury tarts and pies, she decided to make the most of her time by baking a cake for someone to enjoy for their good deeds. Cake for Greatness is Rushani's way of saying thank you to our local individuals, community groups or locally-owned businesses for all that they do.

Cake for Greatness does not happen without your nominations and is another example of everyone helping each other for a good cause. If you would like to nominate a local group of people, business or individual who deserves special recognition and a well deserved treat with their morning cuppa, send your nominations in via Rushani's facebook page. Please remember to give specific examples of community kindness/greatness/awesomeness where possible.

Check out the Lyttel Arts Space at No.6 London Street. Head up to the Grassy Art and Craft Market for bargain items or unique art items. And be sure to check out the Community Fundraising Garage Sale located up the driveway behind the swimming pool. Its all here on Saturday mornings from 10.00am to 1.00pm, so where else would you want to be!

Fireworks Warning

Fireworks are now on sale, we want everyone to stay safe. So please, follow the instructions and use the little stands you can buy to hold fireworks safely on the ground before you light them. Never try to relight something that hasn't gone off and keep some water handy. If you are planning a bonfire, check with the local council to see if you need a fire permit. And of course, try not to scare your neighbours or any pets. Or, get more bang for your bucks and just take your family to one of the big public displays.

Council Funding Community Volunteers

Mayor Floats Idea Council to Fund Community "Facilitators"

Christchurch Mayor Lianne Dalziel has floated the idea of council funding for community "facilitators" to build resilience in local communities. The suggestion came after a special mayoral forum to boost the city's "social capital".

The Lyttelton Time Bank was held up as a model, providing support in the recovery of Lyttelton after the February 2011 quake. Local Lyttelton resident Liz Briggs, of the Project Lyttelton Time Bank, said it already had an extensive database of individuals in the community and the skills they offered.

That allowed the Lyttelton Timebank to quickly identify key people in the community to mobilise and help in the wake of the quake, which left Lyttelton isolated from the rest of Christchurch.

Forum-goers were keen to set up more organisations such as the Time Bank to allow communities to cope better during and after disasters. However, they acknowledged that money would be needed to pay for people to organise such groups. Dalziel said it was hard to get find money to pay for administrators because philanthropists and donors prefer to pay for things rather than for people to do work. It was something the council "should try to address", she said.

Another forum speaker was United States urban planning expert Laurie Johnson. "There are these different phases of recovery. You have emergency and you have restoration. And then there are two kinds of reconstruction. There's the kind of reconstruction which is essentially returning to pre-disaster levels or something slightly more. And then there is the reconstruction which is more of a transformation. A major transformation will take 10 years or more," she said. "Christchurch is doing all kinds of reconstruction. Some areas have really returned to their form and function. Some areas are still going through this restoration to pre-disaster."

Grubb Cottage Draws International Interest

Grubb Cottage in Lyttelton's main street had now been open for several months and was open over the weekend as part of the Reconnect experience heritage event coordinated by the City Council. The cottage is open from 10.00am to noon every Saturday and is free to visitors.

Over the last few months many local and Christchurch visitors have enjoyed seeing through the 1851 cottage seeing how it has been used and changed over time. We have even had international visitors with the Ambassador of Cuba Maria del Carmen Herrera Caseiro calling in recently to view the conservation work carried out by the Council.

John Grubb originally purchased the land at 62 London Street from the Canterbury Association for the sum of 23 pounds – this was the first land sold by the Association after the distribution of the balloted sections to those who had pre-purchased in England. At the time the cottage was built, many of the early immigrants were living in barracks, and in rough huts built from canvas on frames, puna, ferns and ships ballast.

Chess Joins Petanque

Playing on the Albion Square

Chess pieces are now available at the Lyttelton Library for free use by anyone wanting to have a game on the mosaic seat located on Albion Square.

The seat was made by Tim Taylor, who says that the built-in chessboard was a spontaneous addition triggered by a comment from a volunteer helping with the construction. Now that the seat is being warmed daily by the spring sun, its time for the chessboard to be put to good use.

Tim says that his aim in building the seat was to help bring colour and quirkiness to central Lyttelton. He also tried to capture permaculture ideas and a spirit of local sufficiency in the design. The seat harvests water, includes a herb-spiral and has a solar-powered light. Vegetables are planted for the community in the accompanying garden. The organic shapes and bright mosaics are of course very much influenced by the work of Hundertwasser and Gaudi.

The seat is one of seven transitional projects that were commissioned by Christchurch City Council this year. In the final design for Albion Square the seat is to be relocated up onto the top terrace of the site. The Lyttelton Timebank also supported the project, with over 50 'time credits' being earned by volunteers who helped along the way.

To play chess just ask to borrow the pieces from the friendly library staff.

Protect London Street Projects

Did you know that the Hop Scotch site, the garden beside the Council Service Centre plus many of the other planters and seats along London Street have been lovingly created and looked after by a local residents? These improvements have been created to enhance our wellbeing, and to make the town centre more attractive.

Well unfortunately that hard work is being eroded, as people are taking things from the sites. Of late plants and a wheel barrow have completely disappeared. The latest casualty, a chair created by Kerry Donnelly, has also disappeared.

As commented by the project co-ordinator "it's not on when a community starts stealing from itself. Please return the items that are missing for the enjoyment of everyone."

Curious About Local Currency

Project Lyttelton will be hosting an evening in early November with special guest Matthew Slater, a "community currency engineer."

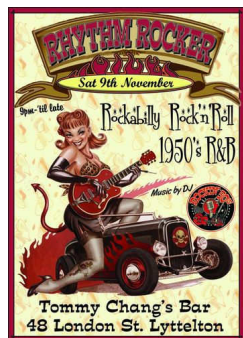

Matthew is a co-founder of the Community Forge, a not-for-profit organisation that provides communities with localisation tools to become more resilient. These tools use open-source software to create local currencies that enable local trade in goods and services.

If you are curious about how local currencies can improve local economies, how they work, what sort of local currency systems exist, and how they are changing the world for the better - come and join us.

This event will be held in Lyttelton, on Wednesday 6 November, 6pm at Lyttelton Main School Hall.

We will start with conversations over a shared meal and continue with a trade floor game. With this "hands on" approach, Matthew will show us how monetary systems can work differently and he will be available for further discussion and questions.

Monday 11 November 11.00am | Remembrance Park by Bridge of Remembrance

Christchurch Memorial RSA will have their own New Zealand Made Poppies available at the Armistice Day parade and service at the Sgt Henry Nicholas VC MM statue in Remembrance Park by the Bridge of Remembrance at 11:00am on Monday 11 November. Come along and show that we have not forgotten the fallen soldiers. Lest We Forget.

A modern day conversation between a child and their parent:

Selling poppies in town today:

Why are they selling poppies, mummy?

The poppies, child, are flowers of love.

For the men who marched away.

Why not a beautiful rose:

But why have then chosen a poppy, mummy?

Because, my child, men fought and died

In the fields where the poppies grow.

Why are the poppies so red:

But why are the poppies so red, mummy?

Red is the colour of blood, my child,

The blood that our soldiers shed.

But why is the heart of the poppy black, mummy?

Black, my child, is the symbol of grief.

For the men who never came back.

Mummy, why are you crying?

My tears are my fears for you, my child.

For the world is forgetting again.

Zombie Run at Orton Bradley

Zombierun is an interactive apocalyptic five kilometre run through a zombie infested quarantine area! But you're not just running against the clock.

You're also running from blood-thirsty, virus-infected, brain-eating zombies! The scariest race ever and a lot of fun! You can sign-up as runner, or as zombie. This is one event you don't want to miss!

What Happened: An outbreak of a strange virus in Christchurch has caused all infected people to be quarantined in Orton Bradley Park. Medical teams in the park worked around the clock to find a cure, but just when they found a vaccine things went horribly wrong. It's your task to find the vaccines before you get eaten or even worse turn into one of them!

How It Works: After registration you'll receive last minute instructions on how to survive and how to find the vaccines. You'll be released in small groups to not alert the zombies. From there it's up to you. Run! Scream! Survive!

If you find the vaccines and reach the finish line in one piece, the medical team will be able to cure you even if you have been bitten. Of course we celebrate this with a big after party!

- You will be given a flag belt with three flags that represent your health
- Zombies will be waiting to grab your flags and eat your brains
- If you lose all your health flags, you're dead, and the zombies win
- Health packs will be hidden throughout the course
- In these health packs you'll find extra flags you can attach to your flag belt
- Two vaccines will be hidden throughout the course
- You have to find these vaccines to be allowed to continue & complete the mission

What to Expect

- The unexpected!
- Hordes of hungry zombies, crawling, staggering or running, waiting to jump you and eat your brains
- Man-made and natural obstacles that will slow you down to make you easier prey
- Use smart thinking to find the vaccines and choose your route wisely, or your 5k might become a 10k!
- Use speed and strategy to make it to the finish line alive, that means a least one flag intact. If you finish with zero health flags, even the vaccines cannot save you anymore.

Limited spaces so be quick! Check out the web site: www.zombierun.co.nz

plenty to share

In Lyttelton so many residents grow vegetables; or have fruit trees literally dripping with produce. Plenty to Share is about sharing any excess produce with the community. So if your lemon tree is yellow with goodness and you can't keep up with making lemon curd, bring those surplus fruits down to the organisers, where every Saturday the swapping of produce is well underway in Lyttelton on the corner of London and Canterbury Street; and also in Diamond Harbour on a Saturday morning at the village centre. If there is something on the Plenty to Share table that you would like to take home, then you are warmly invited to do so.

The Warratahs LIVE

Naval Point Club | Thursday 14 November

New Zealand 1985 – at the height of 'new wave' and Kiwi pub rock - was an unlikely time to form a country band. However, a bunch of Wellington's musicians did just that. Called The Warratahs, the band's two-year residency at inner-city tavern The Cricketer's Arms drew increasingly large crowds, attracted by the mix of covers and originals in the style of Hank Williams, Jimmy Rogers and Hank Snow played in an acoustic style.

The Warratahs began touring and in 1987 turned up in Gore, at the bottom of New Zealand's South Island, for the legendary Gold Guitars country music awards. It was no surprise when, three days later, they walked away with the title of Best Group.

The band went into the studio in 1986 and recorded a Barry Saunders/Wayne Mason song Hands of My Heart. Released as a "single", the song received significant national airplay and led to the recording and release of The Warratahs' first long-player Only Game in Town in late 1987. The album spent 26 weeks in the charts and clocked up "gold" sales.

Covering the country, The Warratahs were now a full-time touring band reaching almost every part of New Zealand with their distinctive sound. A Saunders-penned song - Maureen - was lifted from the album and also received heavy airplay. Both "Maureen" and "Hands of My Heart" are still among the most-requested songs in The Warratahs' repertoire.

Like most bands who have extensively toured the relatively small New Zealand market, Australia soon beckoned and The Warratahs quickly built up a steady following in Sydney and Melbourne. New Zealand tours with Billy Joel and Johnny Cash (twice) followed, as well as their own headlining shows on both sides of the Tasman.

Also during this period, in 1991, a second album was released; Too Hot To Sleep featured the singles "St Peter's Rendezvous", "Fool's Paradise" and "Bruno's Last Ride". Two more albums followed, as well as a Best Of which went platinum - but after eight years of flat-out touring it was time to take stock.

With differing song writing styles and directions emerging Mason left and was replaced with accordion/piano player Alan Norman. Singer and songwriter Saunders used the hiatus to write and record two solo albums - "Weatherman" and "Magnetic South" - the latter winning the New Zealand Music Country Album Award.

By now it was 1999 and time to take the Warratahs out on the road again. The band joined legendary performance poet Sam Hunt and headed out on the "Drivin' Wheel" tour - to find that their following in heartland New Zealand was as strong as ever. In November of the same year a new Warratahs album was released - One of Two Things, featuring guest appearances from Hunt and singer Caroline Easter, garnered much critical acclaim and also picked up the NZ Music Country Album gong.

Four years later, a Warratahs Collection album spent six weeks in the charts and reminded fans of the vast catalogue of (largely Saunders composed) songs that the band had amassed over the years. Around the same time a new Saunders album "Red Morning" was gathering considerable critical acclaim and marked a milestone of his 'singer-songwriter' career.

Now, twenty-odd years on, The Warratahs are a New Zealand music institution. The distinctive vocals of Barry Saunders and individual violin style of Nik Brown reach all the way back to the band's beginning in 1985 and, along with Saunders' elemental songs, form the core of 'The Warratahs Sound'. Still touring and playing shows and festivals, they continue to pull the crowds and deliver strong and exciting performances. Although they play songs from their five albums they have always continued to develop and record new material.

District Plan Review

Christchurch City Council's District Plan, combining the City Plan and Banks Peninsula District Plan, is currently under review. A series of community drop-in sessions and stakeholder presentations was held in late August - early September, along with an online conversation.

We had advised that the first chapters of the District Plan Review would be notified for submissions in late November 2013. This is no longer the case. Notification of the first chapters will now take place in the New Year, with a specific date still to be determined. Meanwhile, if you have any questions or feedback on the District Plan Review, please email dpreview@ccc.govt.nz

Community Invited to Play Part in Local Water Management

People throughout Canterbury are being invited to express their interest in joining one of the water management committees set up in 2010 and 2011 as part of the collaborative Canterbury Water Management Strategy.

Christina Robb, Programme Manager Canterbury Water Management Strategy, said the committees are looking for new people who can see others' points of views and who can work collaboratively to find solutions for water issues. "The Canterbury Water Management Strategy is an innovative approach to managing fresh water. It's about finding the best balance between restoring our environment while providing for viable farming and communities throughout the region.

"The work going on as part of the Strategy will help to ensure safe drinking water supplies, sustainable farming practices and clean rivers and streams, as well as enhancing recreational opportunities and protecting environment and cultural values. "We are sure there are many people in Canterbury who are passionate about making a positive difference in water management and we encourage them to put their names forward by filling out an expression of interest form," she said.

Eight of the eleven water management committees in Canterbury are looking for new members either as part of a refresh process or to replace members who have resigned. This includes the Regional Committee which is inviting expressions of interests for all seven community members.

The six zone committees looking to refresh members are Ashburton; Hurunui-Waiau; Selwyn-Waihora, Waimakariri, Orari-Opihi-Pareora; and Upper Waitaki. A replacement member is also being sought for the Christchurch-West Melton zone committee. Candidates must be able to attend the committee meetings, and live in or have a significant relationship with the zone or region they are applying for. Candidates will be notified by Friday 8 November 2013 if they have been shortlisted.

Shortlisted candidates will be required to participate in a selection workshop at which they will be asked to make a presentation and participate in an assessment workshop. The remaining three zone committees (Banks Peninsula, Kaikoura, and Lower Waitaki – South Coastal Canterbury) will wait until 2014 to refresh their community membership due to recent changes.

If you would like more information or to fill out an expression of interest form please visit www.ecan.govt.nz/canterburywater or phone Environment Canterbury Customer Services on 0800 324 636.

Expressions of interest are due now, or by 4 November 2013.

Enhancement Planting – Instant forest?

The ultimate aim of the Lyttelton Reserves management committee is to see the Whaka Raupo and Urumau reserves restored to a vegetative cover similar to that which covered the slopes of the harbour basin prior to human habitation with good access for active and passive recreation.

On the lower and gentler slopes the vegetation would have been a varying dominance of totara and matai with a mix of hardwood canopy trees – mahoe, lemonwood, narrow-leaved lacebark and broadleaf.

On the higher steeper slopes the natural vegetation is more drought tolerant with trees and shrubs such as ngaio, kowhai, kanuka, golden ake ake, five finger, cabbage tree, small-leaved shrubs, vines, short tussocks and small herbs. Higher up on humid and shady sites a greater range of forest species can survive.

Just plant it!

Frequently the popular opinion is – if you want a forest, just go and plant one – it works fine with pine trees. The problem is that many native species rely on the process of ecological succession where other plants provide a nursery allowing seedlings to be established with some protection from wind, frost and drought. Native species planted randomly on an open hillside will not survive.

Existing gorse and broom cover provides an excellent support for the regeneration of shrub and hardwood forest within 2 to 5 years (refer to earlier article on Minimal Interference Management-M.I.M).

However where there is extensive grass and pasture cover the spread of native species is much slower, at the boundary of existing forest stands with slow retreat of the pasture as it is over topped by taller species.

In these areas Enhancement Planting can be used to accelerate the natural regenerative process or to control gorse and broom on the reserve boundaries reducing the need for weed spraying.

An example of a planting plan in church reserve at Rapaki.

The issues relating to Enhancement Planting are: costs in terms of both dollars and labour, and species provenance.

The species mix and planting plan needs to be carefully organized to promote succession and good distribution without over crowding or 'under' planting.

The planting process.

Depending on the size of specimens, the planting method used is to clear an area 200 -1000mm square, this is turned over to provide some natural mulch and dished to capture & retain moisture.

Planting finally completed.

On slopes some furrows in a vee-shape may be dug to help funnel run off to the plant; this reduces or does away with the need for supplementary watering. Tall grasses surrounding the planting are preserved to help provide frost and wind protection. The plantings need to be checked regularly and 'released' for the first 2 years and at decreasing intervals after that. During summer supplementary watering may be required depending on the season. All in all hardly instant!

Ngaio, mulched and protected from frost.

Provenance?

Provenance, where the plants originate from, can be an issue with enhancement planting. The Whaka Raupo reserve has a high level of native biodiversity with 114 native species recorded; of these 7 are nationally rare or uncommon; and a further 13 are rare or uncommon on Banks Peninsula. It is important to maintain this local ecosystem; any old native won't do, they need to be our natives! With M.I.M the seed stock is drawn from the natural remnant areas for Enhancement; plants need to be grown from this seed stock or from similar areas on Banks Peninsula.

Enhancement planting has a definite role in the revegetation of the reserve areas but it is not a 'one step and forget process' – it requires careful planning, time, energy and is not cheap.
