review creators

Lyttelton Harbour Review is a 100% voluntary community newsletter initiative developed after the February 2011 earthquake by local Professionals Real Estate Agent Lynnette Baird, and Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre Chairperson Wendy Everingham.

The objective of the Lyttelton Harbour Review is to help keep local residents informed with what is going on in the wider Lyttelton Harbour community. Of course the success of the Lyttelton Harbour Review could not be possible without the ongoing support and enthusiasm from the wider community. A big thank you goes out to everyone who sends information; is willing to be interviewed by a couple of amateurs; or lets us know what might be happening in the neighbourhood. The Lyttelton Harbour Review project would not be possible without you all.

If you have an event, topic or cause that you would like to share with the harbour community, then Lynnette or Wendy would love to hear from you:

Celebrating Lyttelton's Antarctic Links

Exciting New Projects

"Lyttelton has the strongest Antarctic links of anywhere in New Zealand yet we don't celebrate them" said Sue Stubenvoll.

Sue has initiated a Lyttelton community based project, under the auspices of the New Zealand Antarctic Society's Canterbury branch, to change all of that.

A visit showed Sue how much more Tasmanians celebrate their Antarctic links than we do. It inspired her to initiate a project at home through the New Zealand Antarctic Society. "Hobart has statues, fountains, and sculptures on the walls of buildings, festivals, a trail and wonderful second-hand book shops. They have named a precinct on the dockside after Mawson, which has an ice-skating rink and a new replica of Mawson's hut. They're enthusiastic Antarcticans", she said.

Sue sees Lyttelton as the jewel in NZ's Antarctic crown with historic and continuing links to Antarctica, the Southern Ocean and our World Heritage sub-Antarctic islands.

On shore the Lyttelton Historical Museum includes an extensive Antarctic and maritime collection. The Steam Tug Lyttelton escorted Shackleton's Nimrod to the Heads in 1907, the Lyttelton Dry Dock was used by Discovery, Morning and Terra Nova for repairs, Quail Island housed heroic era expeditions' sled dogs and ponies and the Timeball station improved marine navigational precision.

Many Lytteltonians served under Scott, Shackleton, Hillary and on major expeditions to this day, while the Port of Lyttelton continues to service vessels working in Antarctic waters. "Scott recorded the wholehearted support he received from Lyttelton, which gave free wharfage and support to his expedition, a tradition of service still held today," she said.

Lyttelton's Antarctic project is part of the town's broader recovery initiatives. That's why it involves representatives from the school, Council and Community Board, historical interest groups, the port, Antarctic community, Information Centre, Project Lyttelton and residents.

Councillor Andrew Turner says, "I see this as another exciting project to revive lost heritage for Lyttelton and once again make us even more proud of the place we live in".

"Lyttelton is the jewel in New Zealand's Antarctic crown with historic and continuing links to Antarctica."

To celebrate our Antarctic heritage the project team proposes to erect a bronze replica of a life size [or slightly larger] Antarctic sled dog in Lyttelton: something approachable and unpretentious.

Associated projects include a competition for the children of Lyttelton's newly combined schools to name the new sled dog, a free guide to Lyttelton's Antarctic links and an illustrated children's story book told from a sled dog's point of view. "Children hold the future to our heritage" says Sue, project manager.

The Antarctic Society Canterbury branch hopes the project will bring the port's Antarctic roles to life for visitors and residents. "The dog is something kids can sit on and rub its nose yellow. Visitors can have their photo taken sitting on it with Quail Island behind" Sue said.

Quail Island is significant because that is where the statue's heroic era predecessors were trained. One dog, DEEK, returned to New Zealand after the International Geophysical Year was conserved and has appeared in Lyttelton and Canterbury Museums.

Sled dogs seem to epitomize the courage, tenacity and comradeship of all those who work in the Antarctic, values shared by Lytteltonians and visiting seafarers.

To fulfill this vision and direct the project a small team of local volunteers has been formed under the auspices of the New Zealand Antarctic Society. Its chair is Councillor Andrew Turner. Committee members are Dr Ursula Rack, Commander Bryan Shankland, Interim Head of school Liza Rossie and Information Centre Chair and Project Lyttelton representative Wendy Everingham.

Please contact a committee member, or Sue Stubenvoll, if you would like to support this celebratory project for Lyttelton.

The team is particularly seeking charitable donations and in kind support to complete the project.

Lyttelton Harbour TimeBank

Facts and Figures

The TimeBank has been generating some community interest of late. As many will know our TimeBank is a way for local people to meet sharing skills amongst each other. Trades can be between individuals, individuals and community groups and community groups.

Trades are based on hours and for every hour you or your organisation assists someone you earn an hour in your Timebank which can then be traded for services you or your organisation may require. All time is valued equally and anyone in the community can participate.

Lyttelton Area	Lyttelton to Rapaki	349 Members
Governors Bay		7 Members
Diamond Harbour	Allandale to Purau	89 Members
Greater Christchurch	Heathcote to Sumner	79 Members
Other Areas NZ and World		42 Members

Currently the Lyttelton Harbour TimeBank has 566 members.:

The Lyttelton TimeBank was the first in the country and is still the largest. Multiple TimeBanks now operate all over the country.

There are 33 community groups who form part of the membership base. This includes groups such as SPRIG, Community House, Civil Defence, St John, our schools etc.

Since the TimeBank commenced in 2005 until today 87,730 hours of community work have been recorded on our network. If the average worker works 2080 hours in a year. (40 hours a week by 52 weeks in the year), our communities have contributed the equivalent of 42 full time workers helping each other create this amazing place that we call home. That is amazingly generous.

Similarly together we have done some wonderful things for the wider community since 2005.

The GIFT

Reimagining our Collective Dream

THE GIFT: Reimagining our Collective Dream is an un-conference which seeks to cultivate a deeper conversation in search of new solutions to our current economic, environmental and social challenges.

We believe the key to unlocking the solutions is reimagining a new story to live by.

The gathering includes two days of reflection, dialogue, dreaming and play, exploring new economic and social paradigms inspired by the multiple benefits of the gift culture model.

What's exciting is that the whole weekend will be an expression of the gift economy and the outcome will be a true co-creation of all who attend. One of the most exciting things about this un-conference is that we have no budget. Freedom, trust, creativity and inspiring others to give their services (and gifts) for the joy of it. And loving TimeBank and the people that make that happen.

We can't wait to begin. Email to register your interest in attending: thegiftunconference@gmail.com

Join the conversation at Facebook <https://www.facebook.com/LocalisationNZ>

THE CHALLENGE

To live within a new story that will bring about "the more beautiful world our hearts know is possible."

THE CONCEPT

THE GIFT: Reimagining our Collective Dream is based on the premise that faced with the enormous challenges in this age of transition, the human family needs to imagine a new dream that will sustain us and the planet into the future.

THE GIFT: Reimagining our Collective Dream is inspired by a vision of communities in which everyone is valued and everyone has a role to play. In re-establishing trust and love in our communities, each of us can draw forth the gift which is already in us and offer it freely for the collective good.

THE GIFT: Reimagining our Collective Dream is inspired by the gift economy model in which people organise to collectively share resources and skills that already exist within the community. Giving and sharing across our communities: building strong relationships based on cooperation and trust in others.

THE UNCONFERENCE

THE GIFT: Reimagining our Collective Dream is a participant-driven gathering of thought-leaders and community activists. Unlike conventional conferences with the top-heavy organization, the large fee and the speaker panels, we believe co-created events work best at unleashing fresh thinking, finding solutions that will last and including all who wish to attend. Three things to remember:

- Go with the flow and be open to new possibilities.
- Take responsibility for your own learning and your own needs.
- Follow your passion - go with what interests you.

THE PROGRAM

The formal program, although held within a well-prepared framework, will unfold during the course of the weekend. The program will be co-created by the participants with room for deep dialogue, round tables, dreaming and artistic exploration.

We intend to use several community venues to work in. We hope this will encourage the edges of the unconference to be fluid and assist participants to feel well-grounded in the local community. Venues may be schools, community rooms, and private homes. Of course, it is also making use of what we already have freely available to us.

A WORD ON THE LOCATION

THE GIFT: Reimagining our Collective Dream will challenge us to engage with in a matrix of relationships and stories through which we hope to find ourselves in a new place; in a new story to lead us into a more beautiful future. For this to happen we must crack open the ground on which our old story has stood; metaphorically shake up the ground underneath our feet.

Of course, Lyttelton is the perfect place to do this. Having been at the centre of the large February earthquake 3 years ago, this community and the whole of Christchurch city knows what it is like to have the ground shaken up beneath our feet. In the three years since the earthquakes we have seen firsthand how the old systems fails us and our communities and we have seen how significant parts of the old story we believed in was built on false security and half truths. What a beautiful place to plant the seeds of the new story, right inside the cracks of the old story, cracks that still gape underneath our feet.

PARTICIPATION

We encourage people to commit to participating in the whole weekend.

Our intention is for people to make real connection during their time together so we collectively build the energy throughout the weekend. This might be imagined as a 'field', a base that makes the ongoing conversations, actions and changes in thinking easier. However, we recognise that that is not possible for everyone to commit to the two evenings and two days and we do want this opportunity to be open to all so we trust you will participate as you can.

Prepare yourself to enter into a matrix over the weekend that will move you into new paradigms.

We welcome courageous participation

RECIPROCITY

The challenge for the organising circle of THE GIFT was to create an unconference on the basis of co-responsibility. We wanted to go beyond money and create an event that depended on the immense resources and skills that already exist in our community. We were curious to loosen the tight grip on money and experiment with other ways.

What excited us was creating a space where participants could experiment with living in a new economic model but also experience a new social paradigm where each participant is held as a valuable gift.

This model, rooted in the essential values of community, is inspired by the gift economy.

Attempting this within the context of a commoditised society meant straddling aspects of both the old and new story: essentially using the gifts of others but also needing money for a few essential elements for which no alternative could be found.

In the registration process you will be asked to consider if you have the capacity to reciprocate a contribution beyond your participation at the event.

We invite you to engage deeply in this conversation now and throughout the duration of the event.

What is the true price of anything?

How do I value this event in my life?

In what ways can I contribute to the co-creation of the event?

What is the reciprocity that feels best for me?

These are deeply personal questions that dig below the surface and demand engagement with the concept of value and reciprocity.

Participate courageously.

VISION

Our objective is to create the right conditions to make the event go beyond what we already know so as to enable us to discover a new story to live by based on love, cooperation and the gift culture.

We envision a broad people's movement creating new projects in the participants' own communities; planting the seeds of love, cooperation and gift throughout the land and thereby harvesting a new, re-imagined future which is beautiful and respectful to all life and the integrity of the planet.

Good news! Another welcome addition to LIFT Library's magazine stock, is a great New Zealand publication: 'Green Ideas'. The February/March issue has arrived. I read almost every word, which is unusual because I usually skip some articles in most magazines. Here are some selected notes from the contents, just one from each topic heading:

News: Small Steps – 13 tips for saving water; Features: zero waste family – how to go a month with no rubbish bin; Buyer's guides: natural insect control – six safer sprays reviewed; How to: Zero waste lunchbox – packing a rubbish-free lunch made easy; Home and Living: the $20 worm farm – a step-by-step guide to making your own. And this is just a small taste. Advertisements do not dominate the pages, thank goodness!

Film: OCCUPY LOVE

As a lead-in to the unconference 'THE GIFT' (see below) – and reflecting the kinds of action building from the ground up here in NZ against unwelcome government actions, such as the above – I'll be showing the film: Occupy Love.

The film connects the dots in this era of rapidly evolving social change, featuring captivating insider scenes from the Egyptian Revolution, the Indignado uprising in Spain, Occupy Wall Street in New York, Indigenous activists at the Alberta Tar Sands, the climate justice movement, and beyond. Woven throughout the action oriented backbone of the film is a deep exploration of public love, and compelling stories of an emerging new paradigm. It features some of the world's key visionaries on alternative systems of economics, sustainability, and empathy, including Naomi Klein, Bill McKibben, Jeremy Rifkin, Bell Hooks and Charles Eisenstein. LIFT has books by most of these. See more at: <http://occupylove.org/about/#sthash.OlmWeVjU.dpuf>

COSS Survey

Council of Social Services in Christchurch

COSS have asked us to distribute this survey to NGOs and Community Groups. They are interested in learning about the accommodation needs of these groups. (Please note that this survey is about an organisation's own needs, not those of its clients.)

NGO / Community Group Accommodation Survey from COSS Council of Social Services in Christchurch - Te Kaunihera Kaupapa Oranga ki Otautahi There have been many conversations around where NGOs have come from since the earthquake and where they are going in terms of accommodation needs.

It would be useful for all of us in the sector and for planners and funders to have an idea about how this all adds up, and what it could mean for our sector.

The pan-NGO support panel has prepared a survey that is as open as possible to best capture your experience and your organisation's accommodation needs. You can decide how the information you provide will be used. Please take ten minutes to complete this survey on behalf of your NGO.

White-Flipper Penguin Tangles with SCIRT

A Story Too Cute, Had to Share

SCIRT's Downer team in Redcliffs' Beachville Road had an unexpected visitor recently. On return from lunch, the crew noticed some activity in their 3.5m deep trench: a small, white-flipped penguin.

The crew believed the penguin must have fallen into the manhole and walked through the 225mm pipe into the trench.

Unfortunately the small visitor wasn't able to stay on site as the crew was not able to find a hard hat or steel capped boots to keep it safe. A DOC ranger was called and the penguin was kept out of harm's way in a ventilated store room until DOC arrived.

The DOC ranger said the penguin was in good condition. He or she was particularly feisty and did its best to elude being captured, which bodes well for its future.

Taylor's Mistake was chosen as the best release spot as white-flipped penguins are renowned as keen surfing enthusiasts and there are breeding areas around Godley Head.

White-flipped penguins are rare and found mainly in Canterbury. With around 3750 breeding pairs left in the wild, the Connells crew was happy to play their part in getting this one back safely to its preferred environment.

The DOC ranger noted the penguin was a white fin species, which is rare.

Image: Temporarily incarcerated in a large tyre, this white-flipped penguin was soon back in the waves of Taylor's Mistake, no doubt with tales to tell about the crew on SCIRT's Beachville Road site, Redcliffs.

WORKS ADVICE NOTICE

INVESTIGATIVE DRILLING AT CRATER RIM BLUFFS

Work will get underway this month drilling a number of boreholes behind the Crater Rim Bluffs above Sumner Road.

This work is part of the Council's wider programme of geotechnical investigations in the Port Hills relating to Lifelines & Key Routes.

The drilling will enable the Council to better understand the nature of the bedrock conditions in this area. This is a significant part of the investigative work associated with the mitigation of risks from source rock hazards for the future reopening of Sumner Road.

The boreholes are being drilled to 140 metres in depth to enable core sampling. Water will be transported to the drill site from the nearest available hydrant.

The drilling rig will operate from 7am to 7pm Monday to Sunday and is expected to be completed within two months.
