Call for Parihaka Day November 5th

Each year in Lyttelton and Rapaki more people attend the remembrance services for the people of Parihaka. Thank you Lyttelton Community House for facilitating this for our community. This is the seventh year of this commemoration. There was a clear call by Reverend Neil Struthers for November 5th to be re-named Parihaka Day, a day of historical significance for New Zealand highlighting the birth of the peace movement in this country.

Brief History: Parihaka is a small Taranaki coastal Māori settlement, located 55km south west of New Plymouth. Set in a landscape of volcanic lahar, this unassuming village is a site of immense historical, cultural and political importance.

One must look at the wars of the 1860's waged against Māori if we are to understand the origins of Parihaka, a large village founded during the punitive years of mass confiscation and dispossession of Māori from their lands. By 1870 it had become the largest Māori village in the country. By 1879 European encroachment on Māori land threatened all Māori settlements. Te Whiti sent out his people to obstruct the surveys and to plough on confiscated land. When arrested the ploughmen offered no resistance but were often treated harshly.

In 1880 the Parihaka people erected barricades across roads, pulled survey pegs and escorted road builders and surveyors out of the district.

The Native minister John Bryce described

Parihaka as "that headquarters of fanaticism and disaffection". Parliament passed legislation enabling the Government to hold the protesters indefinitely without trial. By September 1880 hundreds of men and youths had been exiled to South Island prisons, including the Lyttelton Gaol, where they were forced to build the infrastructure of the township including the construction of the now historic red rock retaining walls. Many never returned to Taranaki as they died on average at a man every two weeks.

Then in 1881 Parihaka was the scene of one of the worst infringements of civil and human rights ever committed and witnessed in this country. The invasion of the settlement on the 5th of November 1881 by 1500 militia and armed members of the constabulary was the result of greed for Māori owned land and the quest for power by politicians and early settlers.

Parihaka had become a haven for the dispossessed from throughout the country.

Coastguard Canterbury and Mobil

Fundraising is always a challenge for Coastguard volunteers. Only 15% of the funding needed to run the Coastguard service is provided by the government so our volunteers rely on our supportive community to provide donations and grants to help them save lives at sea.

When Wendy Everingham of Time Bank, Project Lyttelton and the Review fame got in touch to say she had suggested to Mobil Oil New Zealand that they might like to support us this year our team were delighted. Soon after, Lisa Trood, Community Relations Manager from Mobil called for a chat about how they could help support Coastguard volunteers.

Coastguard Canterbury is run by 28 trained and dedicated volunteers who are on call 24/7, 365 days a year to respond to marine emergencies. When Lisa suggested that Mobil could provide the funds to buy new wet weather gear, sea boots and lifejackets they were over the moon. There is nothing worse than being cold due to ill-fitting gear and sea boots with holes in them during a winter search and rescue mission.

Coastguard Canterbury representative, Nicola Hockley said "I really appreciate the support from Mobil, which will help us to look after our volunteers by making sure they are warm, dry and safe when they are out helping others and saving lives.

Mobil Christchurch Terminals Manager, Andrew McCormack said "Mobil is proud to support Canterbury Coastguard and to help its volunteers involved in marine search and rescue. The Coastguard is one of many initiatives Mobil supports each year to help local community organisations in areas where the company has operations.

In May of this year Coastguard Canterbury volunteers were called by Police to rescue three adults and four children – including a one year old baby – after they were stranded at Little Port Cooper. The family went out in fine conditions but their boat stranded on the beach as the tide went out.

While waiting for the tide to come in and refloat their boat a southerly hit bringing sleet and snow showers.

With the tide came back in the family left the bay only to be hit by rough water as they rounded the first headland. The boat was almost swamped. They tied the four small children, two aged six, a four year old and the one year old together with a piece of rope through their lifejackets as they feared that the boat would be swamped again and the children washed overboard. They then wisely made the decision to return to shore and managed to get a scratchy cell phone call out to a friend before losing the cell phone signal back in the bay.

Huddled in a small shelter they built on the beach the family set a fire to try and keep warm while they waited for help.

Coastguard Canterbury volunteers immediately responded to the call from the Police alerting them to the emergency. On locating the family, Coastguard volunteers carried the children and helped two of the adults out to the rescue boat where they wrapped them in blankets in the cabin. Other volunteer crew helped the skipper refloat and crew the runabout which was escorted back to Lyttelton by the rescue boat.

Thankfully this rescue had a happy ending. When volunteers are called out to help in these conditions it is vital that they are well equipped to do the job.

Mobil's Christchurch Terminals Manager, Andrew McCormack recently joined the Coastguard Canterbury crew as they undertook a training exercise with the volunteer Fire Service team from Governors Bay. "It was very informative to see first-hand the emergency response scenarios while on board the Coastguard rescue vessel. It gave me a much better idea of what Coastguard does and the types of challenges they encounter. They're a great team and I'm very pleased we were able to help provide the gear they need."

With Mobil's support Coastguard Canterbury volunteers will be warm, dry and safe and so will be able to help the people who need them.

50 Works Gallery launch

A new gallery at 50 London Street, Lyttelton – 50 Works Gallery – will launch its first exhibition at 5.30pm on Friday 26 November and will be open to the public from the following day. The opening exhibition, featuring Maryrose Crook and Wilhelmus Ruifrok explores themes of memory, nostalgia and references history and the environment.

Gallery owner Ronnie Kelly says, “Over the past few months we have noticed faces pressed to the window and we are excited to open after five years of renovations and planning.” Many locals will know the building as the temporary home of the chemist shop.

“We purchased the run-down building shortly before the September 2010 earthquake with a plan to completely restore it and open a gallery. Thankfully, we’d invested in earthquake strengthening and it had little damage as a result of the Canterbury Earthquakes. However, we couldn’t say the same for our family home, also in Lyttelton, and we had to put the gallery on the back burner.

“Five years later we are finally in a position to open. We have wonderfully talented artists exhibiting with us and we are thrilled to be able to open the doors and welcome the Lyttelton public.

“Both artists have a connection to the peninsula. Maryrose has lived in Lyttelton and Diamond Harbour, between various visits to the United States where she and husband Brian, tour regularly with their group The Renderers. Lyttelton locals may remember Wilhelmus’ angel mural on the side of the Stanaway’s home on the corner of London and Oxford streets,” Mr Kelly says.

50 London Street, Lyttelton, Maryrose Crook and Wilhelmus Ruifrok exhibiting from Saturday 27 November until Sunday 31 January 2016.

Opening times:

Friday 1pm – 5pm, Saturday 10am – 5pm, and Sunday 11am – 5pm.

Navigation Safety Officer Gary Manch

Notes from the Navigation Safety Officer

Well it's been a sad month for us here in the Harbourmasters Office with the tragic deaths of the kayakers in Tekapo and the three fishermen off Rakaia, our sympathy goes out to the families and friends of the deceased.

It brings home how dangerous our waterways can be.

With the summer season starting in full swing, whether you are on a commercial vessel, or a recreational one, please ensure you take care when on the water, as harsh as it sounds accidents do not just happen, they are generally the fault of something, be it human, mechanical or weather related.

Reducing risk through safe practice can only enhance our time out on the water, and I know I harp on about this, but let's be clear here, we can control many things to reduce risk out there.

This can be as simple as preparing your vessels to a safe standard, making sure we have communications of at least two types, ensuring we have checked the weather, wearing life jackets in all sizes of vessel when there is danger and an example may be crossing a bar, bad weather is predicted or similar.

When in our harbours and bays, being courteous to each other and giving way, keeping our speeds down to less than 5 knots within 200 metres of the shore unless it is a marked open speed area, not going into swimming areas like Corsair bay in a powered vessel.

Simple remedies, please take heed of what I am saying if you are going out on the water this summer, we want everyone to come home safe and sound.

If you do see boaties out there misbehaving, if you can obtain the registration number of the towing vehicle and boat trailer, we can follow up with the boat owners and make sure they understand the rules and regulations, you can contact our customer services on 0800324636 to report this offending.

Take Care

Gary

Home of the Stonemasons

Since the earthquakes many interesting people have arrived in our township. Darren Sims is another new arrival. Like many of us he's been living in some very interesting places before making New Zealand home. Originally from South Australia he's lived in most Australian States, had a long period in the UK, France and now due to family circumstances he finds himself in our piece of paradise!

Originally a brick layer and construction worker when arriving in the UK fifteen years ago he became fascinated in the wonderful architecture that was all around him. This led him on a journey to learn about building conservation. He was inspired by Professor John Ashhurst and enrolled at West Dean College and the rest is history.

His Diploma in the Conservation of Buildings, Interiors and Sites opened the door to a very interesting career in stone masonry and brickwork which saw him working on many beautiful buildings.

"I have had the pleasure of helping to conserve many ancient ruins, castles and churches including the World Heritage Site Fountain Abbey in North Yorkshire" he said.

Darren talks passionately about the wonderful projects he has worked on and his love of stone, flint and brick. He looks at the possibilities since he has landed on our shores. Already he's teamed up with some other building conservators in Redcliffs and he's about to head off on his first job in Hanmer where he'll be doing some work on the former hospital site.

He's quite excited about the opportunities that exist for him on the South Island. It looks like he is well qualified to help restore some of the churches, private residences/houses and other historic sites that need repairs plus he's keen to work on many of the beautiful buildings further south.

Getting back to life in Lyttelton, he's been meeting some of the other stonemasons, making connections, feeling very welcomed, dreaming of the work he can be involved with and gearing up to a life back in the water. A keen sailor and surfer the summer season is very luring.

Al Park on jamming and having a good time

Music man Al Park is more than happy to mentor up-and-coming musicians in his community. Eliza Ballantyne talks to the man who lends a helping hand to the talent pool in Lyttelton.

You may know him from his Christchurch band, Louie and the Hotsticks.

But Al Park is possibly better known as Lyttelton's musical godfather. He's a regular on Lyttelton's music scene, he organises the weekly gigs for Lyttelton's Farmers Market and he mentors many younger musicians.

Park has lived in Lyttelton for almost 40 years. In a short walk down the township's main street, he is stopped at least four times by locals. All of them know him by his first name.

These days, Park spends a lot of his time mentoring aspiring musicians. He says he's "always been a bit of a mentoring kind of guy".

It helps him give back some of the knowledge he has developed over decades in the music business.

Park says he has lived a great music life but reckons even he would have benefited from having someone say, "just do it". That drives him to foster new and emerging talent wherever he can.

On Wednesdays, he can be found at Lyttelton landmark the Wunderbar, "jamming and having a good time" with his "boys" as they work on new material and techniques.

The Wunderbar is a fitting venue for Park's masterclasses. He has tried several times to buy the local watering hole. When the last attempt failed, he looked through the tunnel and bought a bar on Dundas Street, in central Christchurch.

Al's bar

Al's Bar was demolished after the February 2011 Christchurch earthquake. Al's Bar became a magnet for local, national and international acts and a popular location for musos and music lovers alike.

The singer and guitarist believes the bar was popular because he took a care-free attitude towards running it. "There were no bouncers, I was the bouncer."

During his managing days he made a point of being at the bar every night: "You cannot have Al's Bar without Al."

Unfortunately, like so many other businesses in Christchurch, the February 2011 earthquakes forced Al's Bar to close its doors. Park says it was "heart breaking" to let it go but he's not interested in starting again.

"It's like a relationship; you have good reasons, when it is over, not to go back."

His bar managing days may be over but his presence in the Christchurch music scene is far from finished.

Adam Hattaway, for one, is grateful to Park for all he is doing for him and his music.

From a young age Hattaway has been passionate about music, particularly singing and playing guitar. His parents introduced him to Park and for years they stayed on each other's music radars.

When Park put a call out this year for a guitarist, Hattaway jumped at the opportunity.

"He always has excitement and enthusiasm," Hattaway says. "He's not negative but he's able to tell me where I'm lacking."

Hattaway compares Park's mentoring style to "musical tough love."

It'd be a lot of work for anyone, but Park, 65, shows no signs of slowing down. He's happy to live his own "little rock and roll dream".

Treasures Of Purau Beach

By Patricia Shannon
Diamond Harbour Writers Group

Gentle, calm ocean waves tickle the pale gray sand of the Purau beach. The piccaninny grains respond joyfully and they dance gracefully through the clear blue water.

I watch this natural phenomenon in awe, captivated by the everlasting and complicated whirls of the finest sand, now and then interrupted by a bundle of seaweed.

A couple of sea birds attract my attention. Two of them fight over a piece of bread that they found, somewhere along the way. The birds scream and clap wildly with their wings. A heck of a battle over a small piece of food. In a way I feel sorry for them. It's a pity I didn't bring anything to eat. Unmoved by all the commotion, a few other birds sit quietly on the water and bob up and down on the gracious wavelets.

My eyes wander off to the pine trees in the distance. They form a beautiful green belt, surrounding the tranquility of this lovely area. On the right, another type of trees, with strange, oddly shaped branches, hanging low over the water. It is as if they weep from sadness, although I can't imagine they would be gloomy in this awesome place!

I sniff the salty air and relax. There are no other people around and I feel one with the beauty of nature.

After a while, I decide to walk along the shoreline, to see if I can collect a few branches for our garden, casualties of the strong winds that blow ferociously from across the wide ocean.

I'm lucky to find some awkwardly shaped remnants of trees, to create an artistic feature in the flower beds at home.

Most of Purau beach is covered in layers of shells, crushed by human footprints. But, if you look carefully, you can find larger pieces and white fractal spiral shells, still intact, all once home to a small species of sea life. I feel they would make lovely ornaments for the garden as well.

From then on I'm on a quest to find me a couple of special shells and I've become a real beachcomber. Towards lunchtime, I return home with my treasures of Purau beach.

Lyttelton Library working party nears solution

At a lively public meeting in the Library on 21 October, the community brain-stormed ideas about how to keep library services going while repair and refurbishment work on the Lyttelton library is carried out next year. Community representatives (Jamiee Pham, Krystal Coppell, Gary McCormick, Penny Carnaby, Justyn Strother, Luke Parker and Bridget O'Brien) have formed a working party with the Community Board (supported by Council staff) and are actively seeking partnership solutions. The working party meets regularly and are exploring a number of alternative accommodation options for a temporary library service. Considerations include size, availability, a Council owned facility, displacement of other groups, access to the internet and the unique load-bearing requirements libraries have (as books are heavy). The working party is optimistic that a satisfactory solution will soon be found and an alternative site will be available in time for refurbishing work on the existing library to go ahead as scheduled.

CORSAIR BAY RESERVE - STORM WATER TEMPORARY REPAIR INVESTIGATIVE WORK

What and why:

The Christchurch City Council will be starting work on temporary repairs for the damaged storm water pipe that drains into Corsair Bay. This will also involve investigation works to assist with a permanent repairs. Work will start as early as Wednesday 28 October 2015.

Heavy rain in 2013 has added to the ongoing erosion around the storm water pipe forming a large hole. As a result, in the interests of public safety, the public pathway to the water front was closed. Access has been maintained via the steps to the west of the pathway.

The temporary repair of the large hole and further investigations are necessary to secure the area and to identify a suitable method of permanent repair. We will update you prior to the permanent repair work starting.

During the course of the temporary repair work, public access will be maintained via the steps to the water front. The public path will continue to be closed while works are undertaken.

For safety reasons, the work area will be fenced to ensure that it is kept secure. Some shrubbery will be removed in order to access the damaged infrastructure to allow repairs to be undertaken.

Where:

Damaged storm water pipe and subsequent hole. Closed public path in the background.

An Introduction to Caring for Victorian Photographs

Often the care of photographs is neglected due to a lack of knowledge about their proper care and storage. This seminar aims to address this by providing a basic overview of the most common photographic processes for nineteenth century images.

The seminar will be aimed at, but not limited to, small institutions with volunteer staff, or newcomers to the archival field, that have photographic collections as part of a wider archival collection. Some practical exercises will be included; specific conservation issues will not be covered.

Please think about any problems or issues you have, or might want to talk about and, if possible, bring along an example to look at.

There's no guarantee you will get definitive answers on the day but your hosts will try to find answers and get back to you.

smartly dressed
“Would you please check my English”?
would offer her typewritten pages.

She always agreed
(and usually gained a free coffee) but what was more important - their goodwill towards foreigners.

So it was this day.
Strolling, enjoying;
until the siren.

Atrocious.
Frightening.

The same sound that every evening announced the curfew.

Along with many others
she ran into the nearest building.

Loud shots were fired from rooftops.

Next an ominous silence for a time that could have been long or short until the All Clear sounded.

and then with resigned smiles
the people of this tortured land resumed their duties and she,

with trembling legs
thought of home.

How our work can impact you:

There will be trucks and machinery coming and going. There will be increased noise and dust.

Work update: Jacksons Road, Lyttelton, retaining wall repairs

What	Retaining wall repairs
Where	Jacksons Road, Lyttelton
When	September 2015 until March 2016

Where:

© OpenStreetMap contributors

Update:

On Monday we moved our worksite to wall 2. To repair this gabian wall we have a section of road closed between 22 and 26 Jacksons Road. We expect this work to take between 2-3 weeks. We will move our worksite up to 49 Jacksons Road once this work is complete.

RJ Civil has also closed a section of Selwyn Road. Cars can continue to use the suggested detour route of Dublin Street and Keebles Lane, but we recommend that larger vehicles unable to navigate Keebles Lane either use Cornwall Road and Upham Terrace or Cornwall Road and Selwyn Road to access the northern end of Jacksons Road.

Unfortunately we cannot open the road above or below the retaining wall on Jacksons Road for cars or pedestrians. When we excavate the existing wall to the repair and replace the gabians, there is less strength in the road itself and is unsafe. We apologise for any inconvenience caused by these essential earthquake repairs and thank you for your patience.

Key:

-  Fulton Hogan road closure
-  RJ Civil road closure
-  Suggested detour
-  Alternative route for larger vehicles

Work notice: Voelas Road, Lyttelton, wastewater segment replacements

What	Replace earthquake damaged sections of the wastewater main
Where	Voelas Road between Godley Quay and Harmans Road
When	From Friday 6 November for around one month

Where:

Sourced from LINZ data, Crown Copyright reserved

What we're doing:

The wastewater main on Voelas Road was significantly damaged in the earthquakes. On Voelas Road there are eight segments of the pipe that need to be dug up and replaced.

Due to the large number of segment repairs we expect this work to take around one month to complete. We will start at the southern end of Voelas Road and head north with each repair taking 2-3 days.

Two way traffic will be maintained at all times with a combination of priority give-way systems, stop/go systems and potentially traffic lights.

If we are replacing a section of pipe directly in front of your driveway, vehicle access will be restricted. Where possible, we will make access to your property available overnight. We will leave an access restriction notice in your letterbox the day before the work starts to give you time to move your car.

What to expect:

General Information:

Please contact Fulton Hogan on 0800 277 3434 if you have any specific access requirements that we need to consider e.g. nurse/doctor visits, Meals on Wheels, or planned works on your property.

Our standard work hours are Monday to Friday between the hours of 7.00am to 6.00pm.

There will be increased noise, dust and vibration levels.

Works will have no planned impact on current power, telecommunication, water or gas services. However, the network is still fragile so please be prepared in case there is an unexpected service cut off.

All works are subject to favourable weather and on-site construction conditions.

Safety is our number one priority. Safety is your responsibility too. Stay clear and stay alert - keep children and pets at a safe distance from the work site.

If you are not the owner of this property please pass this leaflet onto your landlord or property manager.

TIN PALACE

Media release: 7 November 2015

"In Miniature," the final exhibition for 2015 at the Tin Palace, will also be the last exhibition run by the Harbour Arts Collective in this historic building. With Holly Cunningham, the current curator, finishing up to spend time with family, the change of ownership of the building, and reduction in time available by the Collective committee to fundraise and administer the creative community initiative, the decision has been made to end the running of the arts space by the Collective.

The Harbour Arts Collective acknowledges the dedication and expertise brought to the project by curators Anne Mortimer and Holly Cunningham – invaluable and instrumental in establishing the gallery as an important community asset in post-quake Lyttelton.

A massive thank you to Christchurch City Council and Creative New Zealand for funding support, and thanks to Project Lyttelton for helping to get the initiative off the ground. The biggest thanks though goes to all the artists, performers, makers and creators who have contributed to the wide variety of exhibitions, performances, events and arts workshops over the last two and a half years.

Kate Belton, the building's new owner, is keen to keep downstairs as a gallery and arts space and is asking interested people to contact her at kate.cosbey.belton@gmail.com

Keep an eye out for future creative endeavours by the Harbour Arts Collective in 2016.
