Lyttelton Harbour Review is a 100% voluntary community newsletter initiative developed after the February 2011 earthquake. It's a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative produced by Chairperson Wendy Everingham and Committee Member Jenny-Lee Love.

The objective of the Lyttelton Harbour Review is to help keep local residents informed with what is going on in the wider Lyttelton Harbour community. Of course the success of the Lyttelton Harbour Review could not be possible without the ongoing support and enthusiasm from the wider community.

A big thank you goes out to everyone who sends information; is willing to be interviewed or lets us know what might be happening in the neighbourhood. The Lyttelton Harbour Review project would not be possible without you all.

If you have an event, topic, sport announcement, fundraiser or cause that you would like to share with the harbour community, then Wendy or Jenny-Lee would love to hear from you:

The Ships Telegraph

Have you heard of it?

The "Ships Telegraph" was originally the unofficial Newsletter of the "Steam Tug Lyttelton Preservation Society". The unofficial newsletter was started because the official newsletter "Boot Topping" had not been produced for a very long time. However, the "Ship's Telegraph" was so popular and I received so many calls and emails congratulating me for producing it that I have decided to make it a newsletter completely independent of the "Steam Tug Lyttelton". While it will still contain news of the Tug, if there is anything of interest to report, being an independent newsletter will allow the content to appeal to a wider audience and have a greatly increased circulation. Hence the new look picture at the top of the newsletter. If anyone would like copies of Ship's Telegraph numbers 1, 2 and 3 or no longer wishes to receive this newsletter please let me know by email at >clivekeightley@live.com.au<.

If you are wondering what my background is I served as a Radio Officer for 25 years in the Merchant Navy, briefly on British Ships, while the majority of my sea time was on Australian Ships. I was promoted to Superintendent Radio Officer Services at Amalgamated Wireless (Australasia) Ltd, in Sydney, and was responsible for all Radio Officers serving on Australian Merchant Ships. After leaving the sea I graduated as an Accountant and became a Member of the Institute of Public Accountants. I finished my studies at the Australian Maritime College where I obtained a Graduate Diploma in Business (Shipping).

If anyone would like to make a contribution to "Ships Telegraph" or have something of interest concerning the "Maritime Scene" published in this newsletter please contact me by phone or email.

Over the last couple of weeks there have been quite a few instances of local businesses and community organisations being broken into. In our tiny town where we promote community and a sense of connection this is upsetting.

This is a call to be more careful around your premises and to be more observant of unusual behavior. If you see or hear anything suspicious please report it. Call the Lyttelton Police 378 0200

Merchant Navy Association Canterbury Branch

The Merchant Navy played a critical role during wartime transporting troops, military equipment and vital cargo around the world under the constant threat of enemy raids. Merchant seamen are civilians, not military people. Among the 30,000 who died during World War 2, 135 were New Zealanders. September 3rd is known officially as Merchant Navy Day and recognises the contribution and sacrifice made during wartime by crews of Merchant Ships. September 3rd was also the start of World War 2 in 1939. Within three hours of the declaration of war the first Merchant Ship was sunk in the Atlantic Ocean.

The New Zealand Merchant Navy flag, known as the Red Ensign, has been flown on all New Zealand Merchant Navy Ships, both cargo and passenger, since 1901. The Ensign is also flown on pleasure boats. It is similar in design to New Zealand's national flag except the background is red instead of blue.

The Merchant Navy Association was "launched" in the UK in 1989 and established a unique opportunity for retired and currently serving seafarers to get together to form a countrywide consensus on a range of issues and ideas. The Association has also made significant progress towards appropriate recognition and acknowledgement of the needs of the seafaring community. Today 95% of everything you see in the shops arrives by sea in ships and in all weathers every day.

We are most fortunate to have a branch of the Merchant Navy Association here in Lyttelton. We continue to honour the memory of those seafarers who lost their lives during the various conflicts which took place over the years. This year members of the Lyttelton Branch took part in the various ceremonies that took place on Anzac Day and laid wreaths in Papanui, the Cardboard Cathedral in Christchurch, Diamond Harbour and Lyttelton. After the ceremony in Lyttelton we all gathered at the Ambulance Station for refreshments. We will also be gathering again on September 3rd for Merchant Navy Day, the program for Merchant Navy has yet to be announced.

However, while we commemorate the contribution that New Zealand Seamen have made over the years, particularly during two world wars, on Anzac Day and Merchant Navy Day we also hold regular meetings every other month on the first Sunday of the month. These meetings are not only a time to discuss Association Business but also a time when members and their partners gather for a social occasion. The meetings are held at the Lyttelton Club where the bar is open and refreshments are provided by the members. In other words our meetings turn into a most enjoyable afternoon. Our next meeting will be on August 7th at 1pm. We also have an extremely good Christmas lunch just prior to Christmas each year.

Compared with forty years ago when New Zealand had a very large fleet of Merchant Ships manned by New Zealanders there are now very few ships under the New Zealand Registry. We are now therefore looking for new members outside the Merchant Navy. All we ask is that new members have a general interest in the sea and ships. For example members of Yacht Clubs, the Little Ship Club, the Steam Tug Lyttelton and people working in the Port Company would all be welcome to join the Merchant Navy Association.

Anyone who would like to join the Association or find out more about our activities please contact John Jeffery, our Secretary, by phone on (03) 3288969 or by email at j-jeffery@xtra.co.nz Otherwise just come along to one of our meetings at the Lyttelton Club.

Images End

Mark Soltero

Mark Soltero is an artist based in Christchurch, New Zealand. He works on a large scale – the work featured above, Galaxy, is 1.8 metres high and almost 6 metres long. Mark grew up and studied art in San Francisco at City College and California College of the Arts. Arriving in Christchurch in 1995, he completed his degree and later gained his Masters in Fine Arts with Merit in 2014 and was awarded the inaugural prize for excellence in post graduate drawing. His work has been included in exhibitions throughout NZ and he has been a finalist in many competitions including the National Contemporary Award in 2015.

Soltero's work explores critical moments in his personal history and draws heavily on the environment in which he developed as an artist. The largest work Galaxy is inspired by an experience he had as a youth when he saw the first showing of Star Wars in the Coronet theatre in San Francisco. A large painting of this cinema also features in the exhibition and the title is a direct reference to the Star Wars series. His works are emotional responses to events in his life and also to the artists he admires and whose works have influenced him. In this exhibition the influence of Ed Ruscha's work is very evident and Soltero corresponded with Ruscha about the adaptation of some of Ruscha's compositional devices in his work – in particular this is evident in Coronet.

The work, Passage, is also very large (almost 5 metres long) and connects elements of his heritage with his contemporary experience. He has ancestors who arrived in America on the Mayflower and later in the early 20th century on the many ships that came from Europe and clogged the harbours of New York. His son now sails a Laser dinghy at Mount Pleasant Yacht Club. These elements are represented in Passage.

'Images End' brings together a collection of work from what Soltero refers to as the 'Back Catalogue'. These works form a reflection on the nature of images in a networked world. The materials and processes: black, white and grey, applied as if printed, through stencils on hessian or paper, reflect the evolution of his ideas about painting. Soltero's ideas stem from an intellectual imagination, but are driven by an emotional need to create. He is compelled to paint.

Lyttelton Museum moves ahead with plans to rebuild.

Members of the Lyttelton Historical Museum Society have voted to proceed with plans to acquire the former Council Service Centre site on London Street in Lyttelton, for the purposes of building a new museum. The decision was taken at the Society's Annual General Meeting, held on Sunday, 10 July.

Chair of the Lyttelton Museum Development Committee, Peter Rough, said "We are delighted to have finally selected a site that we would like to acquire for a new museum. We took our time to thoroughly investigate a number of potential sites and carry out due diligence before we decided on the Service Centre site. We have advised the Council of our interest in the site and look forward to a positive outcome for the Society."

The site on London Street is in the heart of Lyttelton with views across the harbour, and easy access for locals and visitors alike. The local Community Board supports the exciting new plans. "Should the Council be amenable to the Society acquiring the former Service Centre site it is hoped that a new museum could open as early as 2019", said Board Member Ann Joliffe.

The previous museum building was lost as a result of the Canterbury earthquake sequence, however the museum collection was rescued and is currently stored at the Air Force Museum of New Zealand. During the last three years over 8500 items have been catalogued and photographed and are being made progressively available to view online via the Museum's website www.lytteltonmuseum.co.nz

New People, New Opportunities.

Naval Point Club

Nestled near Magazine Bay, many of you would be familiar with Naval Point Club. The only ocean water sports club in Canterbury and it's right on our doorstep. Matt Hunter is the newish full time manager for the club and David Noakes has just joined him as the full time programme manager. Winter being their down time they are busy planning away for the new season and the future of the club.

David has been in the job two weeks and he's very excited about his new role. Following in Ross May's footsteps he's also a resident of Diamond Harbour so gets to come to work each day on the ferry. Not a bad way to start the day!

"I come from an outdoor education background with climbing and kayaking as my preferred sports. I've also worked at the Sir Edmund Hillary Outdoor Pursuit Centre and the Outward Bound Trust." he said.

With this background David is very keen to get many younger people involved in the club so they can have the opportunity to enjoy outdoor sports on the sea. Club activities currently include sailing, kayaking, stand up paddle boarding, waka ama and wind surfing.

David is very keen to expand the range of outdoor activities on offer. Currently the club is actively seeking Learn to Sail and Windsurfing instructors however they are also keen for other water sport trainers of any description. If you are a qualified water sport trainer and you'd like to be involved with the club, please contact David.

David's role also includes the management of the club building. "The club has a great multi-function room with wonderful views of the harbour" he said. When it's not used for club activities it's available for hire. Over the years it's been hired for a variety of activities. "We've had some great weddings and birthdays here", says David. Al Park has held great concerts there, LPC has had board meetings there, some community groups have used it for strategic planning days, there have also been private parties, and small conferences. The room is available for any for profit or not for profit activity, prices are adjusted accordingly. Simply call the club to enquire.

"Our club is for the whole community and you don't have to be a club member to utilise the facilities" Matt says. However, if you are a member then there are some clear benefits for example, the public boat ramp for trailer boat access normally costs $6 however for member's boat launching at the club ramp is part of the membership package.

If you are interested to find out more about the club, they will be holding an Open Day later in the year. More details will be released closer to the time. Keep an eye on their website and facebook page www.navalpoint.co.nz. In the meantime, the short term activity planning is in full swing.

Longer term planning sees a new combined Coast Guard and Naval Point Facility, ramp and jetty improvements along with breakwaters for wave attenuation. These improvements will enhance the safety and useability of Naval Point for all users but the exact details of those plans are dependent on the QRA – Quantitative Risk Assessment on the Tank farm which hopefully will be released by the City Council shortly.

Naval Point Club is Canterbury's one stop shop for boating education and open water sports. The team welcome your visit and enquiries. Simply call 03 328 7029 or email Matt at manager@navalpoint.co.nz or David at programmes@navalpoint.co.nz

Looking for Instructors

Naval Point Club Lyttelton is looking for Learn to Sail Instructors, Windsurf Instructors and coaches for the 2016-2017 season. We invite registrations of interest by any instructors or coaches for both adults and youth. The club is fortunate to operate good quality coach boats and the amount you coach will depend on your ability and the time you have available. There is heaps to do!

To apply for a position or to find out more information about the club simply email David Noakes at programmes@navalpoint.co.nz or Matt Hunter manager@navalpoint.co.nz. Alternatively, you can call the office 328 7029 or 027 379 9212. For the most up to date information check out their facebook page or the website www.navalpoint.co.nz

Looking ahead to a summer of arts and events ...

Each year, Project Lyttelton organises Lyttelton SummerFest, a festival spanning 3-5 weeks in January-March (dates to be determined).

The festival has a focus on arts education and development and promotes events in the arts, family and community in Whakaraupo/Lyttelton Harbour.

Project Lyttelton uses a self-management system for all its projects. Instead of directives coming from the board or management, we have an advisory group for each project, and it is that group which makes the decisions about what direction to take, how to balance the budget and how to generate new ideas and projects.

We'd love a couple more members for the SummerFest advisory group, which will meet about once a month from August until March.

Members don't have to be able to make every meeting or take on any work other than sharing ideas, brainstorming and advising (though there are always opportunities to volunteer and help out more if you want to).

If this sounds like you, get in touch with Lucette@Lyttelton.net.nz or ring 328 9243.

July 29th Sperm Whales of Pegasus Bay

Manuel Fernandes introduced us to the Whales of Kaikoura.

He is just completing his PhD on the vocalizations of the male sperm whales in the region and the effect that whale watching activities have on the whales' behaviour patterns. This is vital information with the growth of tourism as the whales use echolocation to track their food (largely squid, but also a significant percentage of fish for the males).

The good news is that experienced and respectful skippers who keep sufficient distance and manage their approaches correctly appear to have minimal effect on the behaviour patterns of established whales, and that it is only the whales who are new to the area who may be more cautious at first but the effect reduces over time as they get to know the local boats.

It was a fascinating talk that we would have loved to listen to for far longer.

July 8th Jack Tar Sailing

Mike of Jack Tar Sailing took us on the journey of his long affair with the sea starting from his days in Sea Scouts through to owning Oyster - the distinctive sailboat with rust sails seen most days on the harbour - for his sailing instruction programs as well as charters for romantic evenings and team building exercises.

In 1964 Mike joined the Royal New Zealand Navy, with his first overseas stop being South Africa, working on steam tugs. A year later, he was off to England working on everything from coasters to ocean liners. Mike returned to New Zealand in the mid 80's, first to his hometown of New Plymouth and finally to Christchurch in 1989 where Mike became involved with the Spirit of Adventure trust. Here he became a sailing instructor - a path that he's continued through to today, recently obtaining the highest sailing teachers' qualification available - he's qualified to instruct the America's cup crew!

Mike set up Jack Tar Sailing in the mid 90's, with a small sailboat called the Cherub. Finding he didn't have enough space for students & charter passengers, and enchanted by a beautiful boat he had seen in Nelson, he bought the Oyster in 1998 and sailed her down to Lyttelton where she's been sailing ever since.

You've probably seen the Oyster in the harbour - she's the distinctive 9.9 metre sailboat with interestingly shaped, rust coloured sails. She was built in 1902, partially from Pohutukawa wood, and Mike has been sailing her around the harbour for the past 18 years.

Beyond the fun charter trips for up to six passengers + Mike as skipper; he also runs programs where you can obtain unit standards and/or certificates that allow you to sail a yacht in most parts of the world. This includes his tutoring work for Coastguard Boating Education programs such as Day Skipper, Boatmaster, VHF Radio operation, GPS operation, and Boat Handling.

St Davids Street closed again for celebrative moment

Lyttelton's latest road closure isn't a sign of earthquake repairs; instead it marks the meeting spot for a special gathering. After two years of earthquake repairs SCIRT's Fulton Hogan rebuild team has treated the patient St Davids Street' residents to a BBQ.

Residents poured into the street to celebrate the end of repairs. Project manager David Oliver together with resident Ray Cuthill manned the BBQ, both showing their appreciation for the crew responsible for repairing the earthquake damaged retaining walls in the street. In return, the Fulton Hogan team fed the hungry residents, saying thank you to those who have construction work near their front yards for close to a year.

Work to repair five retaining walls started July last year, involving around 75 soil nails and anchors installed into the walls. Each wall took up to three months to be repaired. During this time a new storm water main near 70 St David's Street was also installed. At times vehicle access was limited and restricted, but the residents kept their patience and supported the hard working crews with homemade muffins, scones and coffees.

Of course by now the residents in Lyttelton are well used to road cones and closures. Artist Fred Tunncliffe shows his optimistic view on the rebuild with his painted road cone t-shirt: "I thought I made a tongue in cheek statement with road closures till 2025, actually now I think I may have been right with my long term thinking."

Fred lives on St Davids Street and the wall in front of his house was one of the five to be repaired.

"The crew were great, it was actually very interesting to see the work in action and also to discover what was behind the wall and how solid it is."

Elsewhere in Lyttelton, SCIRT's Fulton Hogan team is continuing to rebuild the walls on Sumner Road; this work is expected to be completed in November this year. The crews are also busy on Cunningham Terrace and Voelas Road, work will be wrapping up here at the end of next month.

A repair to a retaining wall on Shackleton Terrace will begin mid-August, and a final wall in Sutton Quay starts next week and won't be finished until the end of the year. Other repairs to the wastewater, storm water and a fresh water main in Godley Quay will finish this October.

Work on Jacksons Road, retaining walls, underground services and roading, has been completed and Voelas Road/Webb Lane is close to completion.

LIFT Library, New Books

Fluoride Free NZ 3rd edition, November 2015
Published by FPNZ.

There is a lot of discussion now about potential changes in laws to bring fluoridated water to Christchurch. This book contains 26 articles by a wide variety of writers in various countries about the latest research and scientific reviews on the effects of adding fluoride to our drinking water. These articles are very convincing: adding fluoride to drinking water is largely wasted as it by-passes the teeth quickly on the way to the digestive system – where it has been shown to cause health problems. Other methods are more effective in preventing tooth decay – like reducing consumption of sugar-laced foods and drinks, and other systems used in other countries. I recommend that you read this information and add your voice to the action.

What every environmentalist needs to know about capitalism 2011

Fred Magdoff & John B Foster

A couple of months ago I quoted a comment about this book that had just arrived in LIFT, but now I've read it, and strongly recommend it to everyone who has any interest in why our environment is suffering so much. The authors provide detail on the nine critical of the earth system: climate change; ocean acidification; stratospheric ozone depletion; the bio-geochemical flow boundary (the nitrogen and phosphorus cycles); global freshwater use; change in land use; biodiversity loss; atmospheric aerosol loading; and chemical pollution. They see climate change as the biggest, most immediate threat since it overlaps with all the others. It makes fascinating reading when you consider what has happened in the five years since this book was written; for example this mild winter, increasing Canterbury's drought issues, with record temperatures monthly, supports the information in this powerful book. The part that is played by capitalism is made clear throughout, and there is plenty of information about what needs to be done. A quote from the first chapter: 'The principal cause of ecological degradation, insisted Rachel Carson, author of the classic work Silent Spring, which sparked the modern environmental movement, is a society that worships "the gods of speed and quantity, and of the quick and easy profit, and out of this idolatry monstrous evils have arisen." '

LYTTELTON HARBOUR TIMEBANK

September 2015 marked the tenth year in the life of the Lyttelton Harbour Timebank. To celebrate we thought it would be great to have the founder of Timebanking, Edgar Cahn, visit from the USA. With no budget Margaret Jefferies set about to make this happen. Letters of support came from various sources and the next thing Air New Zealand was sponsoring his flight over. An amazing Timebanking Christchurch Hui followed and then everything was capped off with a terrific member party at the Lyttelton Top Club.

Timebanking has made its mark in New Zealand. The world is looking in our direction to see how we do it. As a result of Edgar's visit the Governance team in the Lyttelton Mount Herbert Ward on the City Council joined and we had our first story published in the UK Guardian.

Abducted

There were three close friends who lived together in a farmyard. Their names were Ab, Duck and Ted, and they lived very happily in a lush green paddock during the day, snuggling together on copious amounts of straw at night. Ab was a goat. No ordinary goat, he was startlingly black all over, with a sleek shiny coat. He made Farmer Joe think of the All Blacks, so he was called AB. As so often happens with names, this soon became Ab.

Ted had also been named by Farmer Joe. A large horse with a big mouth and very large teeth, he reminded Joe of a television programme he used to watch a long, long time ago. It was called Ed the Talking Horse, so Ed he became, until Farmer Joe thought that perhaps times had changed and he would add the dignity of a T to the front of Ed's name. So Ed became Ted.

As for the duck...well, duck was simply Duck. Don't be fooled though, for Duck was no ordinary duck, and was more than a force to be reckoned with in this trio.

It was Duck who first noticed something was amiss. Early one morning, Duck, who was always perched at the top of the sleeping triangle, woke in a flap. High on the top of the farm shed roof, an almighty cacophony of COCK-A-DOODLE-DOOS had broken the usual dawn silence. The DOODLE-DOOS seemed to echo louder as they slid down the corrugated iron, thudding on the bodies of Ab and Ted, who were asleep no longer. Trembling with shock, they could just make out the silhouette of a large rooster against the pale peach sky.

What an intrusion! The three friends had recovered by the evening, but the next morning it happened again, and every morning after that. Something had to be done, and Duck called a meeting, suggesting that Rooster should be abducted from the farm yard.

So the plotting began. As it happened, Ted occasionally left the farm yard to go for a trot down the lane to the village. His large teeth and strong mouth could do wonders with the gate latch, and Ab and Duck were skilled at distracting Farmer Joe. On these sojourns, Ted often visited Harriet for a gossip. Harriet was a cosy red hen who strutted around an apple orchard at the end of the lane. Quite the femme fatale, she was known for being the most flirtatious bird in the district.

The plot was soon formed. Ted would visit Harriet and tell her about the splendid rooster on the farm yard roof, while Rooster would hear endless raves from the three friends about scarlet Harriet, fluffed up in the apple orchard.

The abduction soon became a reality. Rooster was so vain, he couldn't wait to impress Harriet with his COCK-A-DOODLE-DOOS, and Harriet fluffed all her feathers in anticipation. All it took was for Ted to guide Rooster down the lane, making sure it was on a bright sunny day when Harriet would look her preening best. Needless to say, it was feathered infatuation at first sight, so Rooster was painlessly and happily abducted.

So it was that Ab, Duck and Ted lived very happily once more in a lush green paddock during the day, snuggling together on copious amounts of straw at night. They also continued to snuggle together in the blissful sleepiness of a silent dawn. This continued for many, many weeks, until one Friday morning. The evening before, Harriet and Rooster had decided that life was getting a little crowded amongst the apple branches. They had decided to take their large family of little cockerels to introduce them to their friends, Ab, Duck and Ted. They couldn't wait to introduce them, but decided to perch silently on the roof top of the farm yard through the night, so they could sing a dawn chorus at the first peach glow of early morn. Gathered along the highest pitch of the shed roof, their silhouettes looked magnificent as they opened their beaks in unison. COCK-A-COCK-A-DOODLE-DOODLE-DOO! The magnificent cockophony reverberated throughout the village, and of course down the corrugated iron roof.

Down below, Ab, Duck and Ted dived deeply into the straw. They stayed there for a very long time, with only their three tails showing. They had a decided droop.
