Lyttelton Harbour Review is a 100% voluntary community newsletter initiative developed after the February 2011 earthquake. It's a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative produced by Chairperson Wendy Everingham and Committee Member Jenny-Lee Love.

The objective of the Lyttelton Harbour Review is to help keep local residents informed with what is going on in the wider Lyttelton Harbour community. Of course the success of the Lyttelton Harbour Review could not be possible without the ongoing support and enthusiasm from the wider community.

A big thank you goes out to everyone who sends information; is willing to be interviewed or lets us know what might be happening in the neighbourhood. The Lyttelton Harbour Review project would not be possible without you all.

If you have an event, topic, sport announcement, fundraiser or cause that you would like to share with the harbour community, then Wendy or Jenny-Lee would love to hear from you:

The Merchant Navy.

The name "Merchant Navy" was adopted in Britain, in the early 1920s, it recognized the wartime importance and sacrifice of the "British Empire Mercantile Marine", as it was then known, during the Great War. In that war approximately 2 500 ships and 15 000 seafarers were lost. Many of them were New Zealanders who served on British "home boats" that linked Great Britain to this country. New Zealand's Union Steam Ship Company provided valuable vessels to be used as Hospital and Troop ships, whilst also maintaining vital trade links with India, the Pacific and west coast USA.

Although, technically, merchant seafarers are civilians, they were very much in the firing line. This was especially so in the Atlantic Ocean, where the German submarines almost turned the tide of the war against Britain. The Battle of the Atlantic was unceasing during both World Wars. Winston Churchill admitted that it was his constant and greatest worry. Germany fought with submarines, battleships, aircraft and mines in the attempt to stop the flow of food, oil, and material across the Atlantic, and indeed from all around the World, to Britain. In fact, Britain required more than a million tons of supplies every week to survive, feed the people and military personnel, also to build up the force required for the invasion of Europe. Had Germany succeeded in their atrocious schemes to sever the vital Merchant Navy supply lines, Britain would have speedily had to accept starvation, and been forced to surrender. The cost was huge! In the Atlantic alone, approximately 174 Allied warships, 3 500 merchant ships, were sunk, and 30 000 merchant seafarers lost their lives. Many of those crew members were women, and boys, as young as 16! On Tower Hill in London, there is a very poignant memorial to seafarers of the Merchant Navy and Fishing Fleet, who have no known grave but the sea.

The Merchant Navy has played a critical role during all wartime conflicts and emergencies, including the so called "Cold War" from 1945 to 1959. Transporting troops, military equipment and vital cargo around the world, under constant threat of enemy attack.

September 3rd, 1939, was the day that Britain declared war on Germany. That very evening a German submarine torpedoed and sank the SS Athenia (a British merchant ship) with consequent loss of passengers and crew lives. This showed that Germany was well aware of the necessity to commence, and be prepared for, the battle of the Atlantic. One wonders why it took the New Zealand Government 65 years (1945 to 2010) to recognize, almost surreptitiously, September the 3rd, as Merchant Navy Day, thus achieving the dubious honour of being the final Commonwealth country to so act. The New Zealand Ministry of Veterans Affairs still seems to have little knowledge of, or interest in, ex Merchant Navy personnel.

New Writer for the Review Welcome Ludovic Romany

Our community newsletter is all about sharing our local stories and encouraging people to tell or write their Lyttelton Harbour tales. Ludovic Romany enjoys writing. He's written much of his life. He's had some poetry published and has written two novels. He dropped into the Information Centre recently wanting to know how he could get involved more with community life. I suggested writing stories for the Review.

Ludovic has been in Lyttelton since 2009. Prior to that he had spent time in Auckland and Australia. His early years in Lyttelton were at Cressy House. "I really enjoyed living there, the experience was quite amazing. I loved imagining the things that had happened there in years gone past." He said "I particularly remember the dark narrow corridors and the clinical smell of the former hospital. I could sense and feel the happenings of the past." "The chimneys and the boiler room also evoked strong feelings for me." The location was perfect for a writer's mind.

Since 2009 he has been in and out of Lyttelton. After the earthquakes, he wrote a book "Becoming the Fetch". "It was a teenage adult fairy tale. At the time, there was so much grief and sadness around that writing the book kept me sane. It was a real giggle and addressed lots of the gobbledy gook in my mind", he said.

Ludovic's latest book is called "Innocence". He's currently looking for a publisher. The book details the life of local Lytteltonean Witeremoana Peepe otherwise known to many of us as Wi.

Great News, Onsite work at Timeball to begin!

Heritage New Zealand is very pleased to let you know that the first sod will be turned at the Reserve Terrace site in Lyttelton on Wednesday 5 July at a construction blessing to mark the beginning of onsite work to return the iconic black Timeball, with its Cantabrian red stripe, and tower to the port town.

When completed visitors will again be able to see the Timeball drop at 1pm each day while enjoying the harbour and town views in the park-like surrounds. An automated Timeball mechanism will be housed inside the tower which, as part of the requirement to get building consent, precludes visitors from entering.

"We looked into retaining and repairing the existing mechanism as part of the project but, for a number of reasons, the automated option was chosen," says Heritage Destinations General Manager Nick Chin.

"The existing mechanism was extensively damaged during the 2011 quakes and was in an extremely fragile state when retrieved. Even if restored there was no guarantee how long all the parts would last, so maintenance costs and longevity were issues. Also, with the public unable to access inside the new tower to view the existing mechanism if rebuilt, it was felt an automated mechanism was a better option.

"The estimated cost of repairing the original mechanism is $175,000. We still have that option available, along with perhaps putting it on display at a local museum."

The project will cost $3 million to return the Timeball, tower with original brickwork, the original flagpole and interpretation to the landscaped grounds to commemorate a significant maritime feature that has been an integral part of Lyttelton's history since 1876.

Since the June 2011 earthquake the former Timeball Station has been carefully deconstructed, with as much heritage material as possible itemised and stored, and other conservation, planning and pre-construction work undertaken.

"It has been a lengthy, and at times difficult, process but we have learned so much from what is our first major rebuild project," says Mr Chin.

"Thanks to the wonderful financial contributions from key donors who have funded this project, and the support and patience from the Lyttelton community, we are pleased to be getting the onsite work finally underway."

Hawkins Construction is the main contractor for the project, working alongside The Building Intelligence Group (project manager), Possenniskie Consultants Limited (quantity surveyor), Dave Pearson Architects (architect), Ruamoko Solutions (structural engineer), Geotech Consulting (geotech engineer) and Bosworth Stone Limited (stonemason).

Way back in 1955 at the age of ten I lived at the top of Brenchley Road on a twenty six acre farm. The hills above and around Lyttelton were our playgrounds. With no television, phones or computers we children made our own fun. We climbed trees, hunted for lizards and baby rabbits, and picked mushrooms. We also found many Huhu grubs in the rotting tree branches and very big weta's, stick insects and big hairy spiders. We built huts and played cowboys and Indians. Sat in creeks in the hot summer days and made sledges to ride down the hills. Wild pigs roamed the hills up in the bush and possums were abundant.

My dad worked very hard on the farm. He used to grub out the gorse and broom from the paddocks. He threw it all on a big heap and when Guy Fawkes night came around there was a good night for many of the children in Lyttelton. When dark the heap was set on fire and a guy made from old trousers and a jersey stuffed with straw was thrown into the flames. All of us children had fireworks, rockets, bangers, sparklers and all sorts of crazy things. A good night was had by all.

This all happened at the top of our hill now called Hylton Heights! What a lot of changes since those early days in my life!

Now its sixty years forward since those happy days to July 2nd 2017. I was invited to join a group of people from Lyttelton to a native tree planting afternoon at the Urumau Reserve above Foster Terrace and below what was once referred to by locals as the Plantation. The day was organised by Brian Downey and Wendy Everingham. An invitation had been made to a team from Fat Tony's to form a planting team for the afternoon.

I counted thirteen people when they all gathered outside Wendy's house on Foster Terrace. In the garage were spades, rakes, grubbers, gloves and tarpaulins. Brian had earlier taken the mix of native plants up the track and wooden stakes were dotted all around in the ground where planting would take place. The organisation was brilliant.

Everyone was armed with spades and anything else they could carry and then they set off up the track. The planting area was quite steep and just down from the track. Brian did a demonstration on how to plant the little natives. It wasn't just a matter of digging a hole and popping the plant in. He cleared a small area making sure all the grass roots were separated from the soil. The grass was put to one side for mulching. He then worked with the soil and made a ledge in front of the hole that he'd dug. This was done so the water would feed the plant and not run off.

He took the little tree from its container and placed it in the hole. It was patted in gently but firmly and when it was settled in, he heaped a huge armful of mulch around the area making sure the tree could still see the sunlight. Everybody followed his instructions and they all enjoyed spending approximately two hours planting. Over forty little trees were now in their place and in seven to eight years they will mature and look awesome on the hills.

A lot of fun and laughs was had and when finished they looked down at their work with satisfaction. It was nice to meet the group as I hadn't met them before. After tidying up and carrying all the tools back down the track to Wendy's garage they all dispersed. A barbecue was arranged by Brian and Wendy and was held at Fat Tony's. What a lot of good food to be had. Dino did a great job with the cooking and Wendy with her lovely spuds and coleslaw.

Thank you everyone and nice to meet all the planters. You were a great bunch, Tim, Tom, Rohan, Roger, Micha, Dino, Keita, Melissa, Ian, Dorothea, Helen and Liam.

Thanks to Brian and Wendy for inviting me and encouraging me to tell my story.

"The smell of the earth took my mind back to those days a long time ago amidst the hills. The view of Lyttelton is incredible from below the Plantation".

Ernie's Crossing Change Takes Time

Ernest Venes is a great example of a person who sees an issue and makes sure that something is done about it.

Ernie arrived in our Port Town ten years ago. He was a new immigrant from Bromley, Kent in the UK. He made this journey at the tender age of 82! "I moved because my two daughters were located on this side of the world and I had no relatives left in the UK. I needed a bit of TLC" he said. His journey saw him re-locate to Lyttelton. A former civil engineer who had spent many years working on marine engineering projects specifically with ports and harbours, Lyttelton was the perfect place for him to settle.

If you didn't need to step out of your house, Ernie is located in the perfect spot. He has a bird's eye view of all port activity from his home on the Bridle Path.

However one can't lead life just from the confines of your home. Ernie was diagnosed with macular degeneration back in the 80's. This is an eye condition that results in the gradual deterioration of your sight. In Ernie's case his sight is so poor that he could no longer drive so to maintain his independence he walks everywhere.

Walking to Lyttelton central can be a problem for him but getting to the bus on Norwich Quay was really difficult. "In 2015 I had two near misses trying to cross Norwich Quay" he said. "When I look ahead most of my vision is blurry, I have to listen hard for cars and sometimes I got it wrong" he said. This led to the beginning of his campaign to get a pedestrian crossing installed on Norwich Quay so that he and others could cross the road safely.

"I was 90 when I began this campaign. It all started with a letter to the Community Board" he said. "Crossing the road was just so incredibly difficult for me. Some days I would walk right down to Oxford Street and use the pedestrian crossing over Norwich Quay but that was also problematic for me. Parked cars would restrict my vision and I had to trust people would stop".

"I am delighted that the crossing has finally been installed and it has made my life and others much easier to navigate this busy road. The Puffin Crossing means that the lights stay red until I step off the crossing. I now know I'm safe the entire length of the road". Despite Ernie's success getting his crossing he is confounded at how long the entire process took. "It took two years and two months for my request to be actioned! I am dumfounded just at how long this basic safety issue took to solve. In my day job in the space of two years I would have designed and have built many a project within a two year window"!

Despite Ernie's frustration at how long it took the bureaucratic wheels to turn he's really happy that he's been able to make a difference. His persistence means he and many others who are elderly, young, slow or mobility impaired now have a safe way to reach the bus stop to Christchurch.

It took a retired elderly gentleman to solve this issue for Lyttelton. Safe crossing over Norwich Quay has been an issue for years but despite people campaigning nothing happened. It took a retired engineer from the UK to make it happen. Thank you Ernie.

Kilwinning Lodge 26 Canterbury St, Lyttelton.

Work has begun on the major restoration of Lyttelton's 1871 Kilwinning Lodge, one of few historic buildings in the portside suburb to survive the earthquakes, and a former well-loved venue for community dances, drama and concerts.

Damaged by the 2010/11 quakes, the former Freemasons' Lodge at 26 Canterbury Street will have its original ground floor strengthened, and its second-floor space restored.

The top floor of the timber building will become the home of the Lyttelton office of Christchurch-based Structex engineering consultancy, which bought the lodge in December 2015, while the ground floor will be available for lease, says Will Lomax, director.

"We're about to go through the building consent process and apply for heritage funding. Our team is totally on board with this project.

"It seemed to me that this beautiful and historic building would be the perfect place for us to have our own office, while at the same time, ensuring its safe future for the wider Lyttelton community. It has some beautiful features, including a stunning original floor. The upstairs is a portal to the past, is untouched, and is the original Masonic interior."

The harbourside resident and staunch supporter of Lyttelton said the district had lost much of its history through the earthquakes and it felt right to do something positive and retain the old 350sqm Masonic lodge timber building, which latterly had been the home and studio of artist, Bill Hammond.

"He bought the property in 2000, owned it for 10 years and he carried out quite a lot of bracing and strengthening on the building after the earthquakes. When he decided to sell, and we could see the building was fixable, we didn't hesitate."

Originally a single storey building, a second storey was added in 1903 after the building caught fire in the big fire of Lyttelton and was significantly damaged. Over seven months an entire new upper storey was added; the original ground floor façade was able to be retained. The building remained a lodge until a declining membership resulted in its closure.

Once consents are granted, the bottom floor will need extensive work and both the brick side walls will be replaced.

Plastic Free July, Can you take the challenge?

You may have seen some of us at the market promoting Plastic Free July, encouraging more people to take up the internationally promoted challenge not to buy plastic for a month. Of course, it's never too late to take up the challenge no matter what month you choose.

Of course, it's not easy to do, but it does make you aware of the extraordinary amount of plastic we churn through in our daily lives. The planet is in crisis as a result of this, and every bit of plastic ever created remains for ever. Soon there will be more plastic waste in the sea than fish, and plastic has entered the food chain to the extent that most of us have it in our systems as well.

While large scale solutions are being explored, there are things that we can do in our daily lives, and if the manufacturers find that we are avoiding their packaging and products, they will change. Here are some things you can do to work towards being plastic free for at least one month.

10 Simple Things Everyone Can Do:

1. Shopping Bags – Always take reusable cloth bags shopping and refuse plastic ones at the checkout. Smaller netting bags can be used for produce.
2. Bin Liners – Either make your own from newspaper or simply scrub out your rubbish bins after use.
3. Plastic food packaging – If you eat meat, some of the few remaining traditional butchers will allow alternatives to plastic packaging. Don't buy pre-packaged fruit and vegetables. Take your own container if buying from the supermarket deli counter.
4. Takeaways – Stainless steel takeaway containers are available to substitute for those endless plastic boxes we accumulate.
5. Excess packaging – If you can, remove the packaging and leave it at the checkout and ask them to dispose of it. Eventually the message will get through.
6. Takeaway coffee cups and bottles – Carry your own reusable cup and bottle with you. Almost no takeaway cups are biodegradable as they are lined with plastic. Refuse straws and plastic cutlery as well.
7. Milk – The Happy Cow company are back in business and present their organic milk in exchangeable glass bottles. No more plastic.
8. Pre-packaged fast foods and dairy products – Ask yourself, do you need them, or could you make your own at home.
9. Hygiene Products – try reusable nappies, and bamboo toothbrushes, clothespegs and cottonbuds.
10. Soaps and shampoos – Some shops provide these in bulk for you to refill bottles, and brands such as Ethique sell them in bars wrapped in paper – no need to buy those plastic bottles.

Internships?

Ara Institute of Canterbury, Department of Business, Industry Placement Programme Ara Institute of Canterbury has students available to work with organisations in the following majors: Accounting, Human Resources/Transformation & Change, Sales & Marketing, Event Management, Project Management, Operations and Production, Innovation and Entrepreneurship, ICT/Business Information Systems, Hospitality Management, and Sports Management

We take a flexible approach and should you consider assisting our students to gain industry exposure and improve their work readiness we offer the following options:

- Degree Students looking to complete up to 400 hours of work experience (over a semester; Feb-June or July-Dec or over two semesters; Feb-Dec or July-June) plus a research project for their host organisation related to the major(s) of their degree (to be completed in their own time)
- Graduate Diploma Students who need to complete a research project for an organisation that relates to the major of their graduate diploma.

We ask that host organisations offer work experience in a business/office environment. Home offices are not generally suitable for work experience but we may be able to assist with a group research project in this instance. Students are not expected to be paid for their work experience or the research project they produce for their host organisation.

Alternatively we have students available to look at business problems for you (this is just a research project) which they conduct in their own time. It would require minimal involvement from you - once at the beginning to explain your requirements and then on conclusion of their research at their presentation where you will be supplied with their findings. Field trips to premises are also a good experience for the students but not always necessary.

Lyttelton 'Port Saddle' Masterplan

LPC recently released the Lyttelton 'Port Saddle' Masterplan in partnership with the Banks Peninsula Conservation Trust, and is seeking community feedback on proposed ecological enhancement work.

The Lyttelton 'Port Saddle' Masterplan covers an area of 17 hectares of LPC-owned land, located above the eastern edge of Lyttelton township.

This land has been identified for community recreational use, ecological protection and enhancement of the indigenous flora and fauna, and the long-term protection of landscape values for the benefit of the current and future communities of the Lyttelton Harbour basin.

Improved access to the land from the Lyttelton township and enhancement of nature corridors with the adjacent Urumau and Department of Conservation reserves, will mean the community can enjoy, learn about, and contribute to thriving indigenous flora, bird, lizard, and invertebrate habitats.

Winter Love.

By: Sophie Wilde. D.H. Writers Group

If I never see your summer face
I'll lack for nothing.
For I have found a winter love and I am smitten.

I revel in your wild and westly winds that push and pull me, playing rough.
And the cold kiss of you raining on my face and tearing at my eyes,
I welcome.

In June your moon is bright at five when night, though adolescent, is man enough to take her out.

And I go walking in that early evening – afternoon where everything is etched in silence after rain.

In that stillness I can hear your misty whispers in the hair of nearby hills and catch the creak of water underground.
I see you sliding drop by silver drop amidst the folding grasses and linger limpid on leaf and limb around.

How do you do that?
Breezing from the rolling sea that's somehow warmer than the cold I walk in, to gently brush my face and lift my hair in passing (as though a god were passing) to let me know you're there.

What summer light could hint at how you glint in winter, when the sea is beaten silver by a wind that's torn the sky to shreds, and left the clouds all piled in clumps so weirdly shaped, and coloured every hue from black to white, peach grey and golden blue?
Dear Sweet you do amaze me!
Ah truly do I love
your winter wooing;
I am not waiting for a summer song to win
my heart.

Show:

Up'n'Under at LAF July 12-22 Performances every day except Monday

Top Dog Theatre perform another classic comedy, written by John Godber. In 2003 Top Dog performed Godber's BOUNCERS in Court 2. In 2008, SHAKERS in the Arts Centre, and last year, Top Dog performed TEECHERS at the Gloucester room, Isaac Theatre Royal, again to packed houses. Godber's winning tale centres around Arthur (Tom Trevella), an ex-Rugby League player who could have still been playing were he not barred for life for violent conduct. The disciplinary board-member who pushed for his ban, Reg, (Aaron Boyce) is the manager of the local champions, the Cobblers; a team he is so proud of, he reckons they are unbeatable. In a fit of piqued pride, Arthur bets Reg his house that he can coach any team to beat the Cobblers, with Reg to name the team. He does; the team from the Wheatsheaf Arms, a team so poor, whose place in the record books is held by never having won a game. Arthur now has five weeks to train the Stragglers to take on the Cobblers in their head-to-head, in an all-or-nothing battle with pride, ambition and livelihoods at stake. An evening of comedy and hysterics, brought together by Artistic Director, Derek Doddington. A slideshow of images from the museum's photograph collection is displayed in the window of the Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre. The slideshow screens 10am-9pm daily and is updated every few months.
