Lyttelton Review Our Story

Think back to February 2011 and the urgent need we had for information. Julie Lee was the co-ordinator of the Timebank. "During the earthquakes of 2011" I was working with local emergency services. I saw the need for timely and correct information to be communicated locally, and started doing daily, sometimes twice daily, broadcasts via internet and posted outside the Lyttelton Recreation Centre, which was the Civil Defence Welfare Centre at that time" Julie said.

"My broadcasts were pretty basic. Remember these?"

Water - This is progressive. It is hoped that most of the harbour basin will have water over the coming days. This could change, teams are working really hard. Please BOIL BOIL BOIL BOIL BOIL, until further notice.....

Gradually some sort of rhythm returned to the town early March 2011. "As Chair of the Information Centre I started giving Jules more information to be added to her broadcast. The newsletter improved to a two-column format but neither of us had the skills to make the layout look great." Information was key to our recovery. We continued the two-column format until June 2011.

As is always the case in Lyttelton, the right person pops up at the right time to make something happen. Lynette Baird had a conversation with Jules and then a conversation with Wendy and next thing Lynette created the Review in the form we have been used to since June 2011. Lynette had great publication skills as well as really detailed knowledge of the housing industry. The Review became a joint publication between the Information Centre and Lynette Baird. Lynette a licensed Real Estate Agent designed and jointly wrote articles for the Review. Her knowledge proved invaluable as residents had to navigate their way through all the earthquake rebuild processes. Lynette's husband Phil got into the act as well. He took many of the photos that were used for the front cover and the various articles. Lynette remained involved until February 2015. We farewelled her and Jenny-Lee stepped up to do the design and layout role.

"What a buzz it's been doing the Review. I was really stoked to be asked to come on board or if I could I help out and relished the option of reformatting and designing the content. I love the variety of the stories and am proud of the all the people who get involved, read, contribute and enjoy our Lyttelton Review. I'm personally proud we are now in printed copy and get a wee thrill watching someone pick up a copy at the local and sit with a beer for a good read! Or if I'm out someone will ask "How do I get an email copy". It's nice seeing the Review grow along with the community and look forward to helping with many future editions and telling your stories" said Jenny-Lee.

"Our 200th edition gave the team a chance to meet up and celebrate what has been achieved. I think the Review is another example of something positive emerging from the earthquakes. With so many stories to tell we took ownership for ourselves. No one else was going to collate our stories and disseminate all the information vital to our area. Thank you Lyttelton Harbour for supporting this community initiative, it's been great telling your stories and even after 200 editions I still love telling our stories. "

Musical Delights

Lyttelton Market

Lyttelton community and visitors, who make up our incredible soup, will remember back in 2010, the market was held at the grassy and at the neighbouring school-yard, on Oxford Street. It was here that a father and his son came to busk nearly every Saturday morning. Currently with the markets growing and earning its position on London Street, Masa and his family continue to entertain us when they can. What is interesting about these personalities, is the dedication of the father, Masa Ito, encouraging his son Kaito, playing their weekly repertoire. Not only has their skill and repertoire increased hugely, now they add to their number, with six-year-old daughter Mana, developing her vocals and instrumental support.

Mana revealed that she would like to be a dancer when she is older. Amongst the skills Kiato is developing as a teenager, is the enjoyment he finds playing soccer. Masa appreciated supporting Lyttelton throughout the years of its recovery and loves to work with community. Besides his music, Masa is a qualified Chef who not only cooks the wonderful Japanese cuisine, but also cooks pizza at the Tannery in Woolston. We look forward to watching and hearing more of the developing musical delight, Masa and his family entertain us with.

Community Land Trusts- Capturing Land for People

Making Lyttelton More Affordable?

Martin Lange recently toured New Zealand. From Stroud in the UK he has been involved setting up Community Land Trusts. "In the UK and Wales there are currently 225 Community Land Trusts" he said.

Community Land Trusts enable a community to secure land for a variety of purposes. "It might be for housing, civic buildings, community assets such as a farm" he said.

He was invited to come to New Zealand by Carolyn Hughes. She's involved with Land Trust NZ. This trust focuses on biodynamic and sustainable farming. This tour saw Martin tour NZ and Lyttelton was enroute. He spoke to Project Lyttelton and then there was a community session at the Lyttelton Community Board Room on October 16th. Over 40 people came to hear his interesting story.

To learn more about these trusts he went on a fact finding trip to the USA to explore how the trusts operated there. The best example that he found was in the state of Vermont. Interestingly Senator Bernie Sanders was instrumental in establishing Community Land Trusts there. Martin found that Community Land Trusts were considered the best way to make homes genuinely affordable for ever, prevent citizens lives from being ruined by debt, rescue falling neighbourhoods, build stable communities and win support for more local housing. He found in Vermont the Community Land Trust owns 3000 homes – rentals and part ownership homes. The trust is made up of a board of Directors – 1/3 state, 1/3 tenants/owners, 1/3 community. The trust owns the land and various others own the buildings.

Over the years Martin has been involved in several projects in Gloucestershire. "I now see my role as a honey bee spreading the word about this movement with receptive communities around the world".

Lucette Hindin from Project Lyttelton said "What I found most exciting about Martin's approach was the idea of the three-legged stool - that society will be at its best when the state, the market (or business world) and the community sector (including families and all sorts of groups) have equal power and work together to make decisions about our world."

With that in mind it set the scene for how Lyttelton could get involved in such an initiative. Are there people who might like to donate land to a trust? Might the council like to be involved? Council current community housing arrangement seems to be heading in this direction. Would you like to be involved exploring such an initiative? With the election of a new government and new ways of thinking appearing maybe this is the perfect time for a Community Land Trust to be explored.

Margaret Jefferies and Lucette Hindin are keen to explore the possibility. Contact Project Lyttelton if you are interested. lucette@lyttelton.net.nz 328 9243.

Orton Bradley Cafe is set within Orton Bradley Park which is a private 650ha rural property situated on the southern shores of Lyttelton Harbour. The Cafe itself is focused on sustainability and working towards zero waste. Fresh produce is sourced locally allowing the cafe to showcase the best quality seasonal food. The cafe brings people together over high quality, in house made food and beverages along with C4 coffee in the beautiful setting of Orton Bradley Park.

The park and cafe offer a fantastic family friendly location with large open spaces, as well as a large children's adventure playground with flying foxes situated next to a small stream. There are also a number of short mountain bike tracks suitable for all members of the family and over 25km of walking tracks catering for all ages. The walks range from the famous Rhododendron walk (20 minutes) to the popular Waterfall Gully Track (2 1/2 hours) and beyond to the DOC Packhorse Hut or Mt Herbert. There are also a great number of native trees providing homes to a variety of bird life.

Ursi Riederer and Maria Lee co-manage the cafe and they are well known within the Diamond Harbour community and bring different strengths and experiences to Orton Bradley Café.

Maria has been the Kitchen Specialist at Diamond Harbour School for many years and is passionate about utilising local produce and cooking seasonally, she is also the Diamond Harbour Timebank coordinator and writes the monthly recipe column in the Herald. Ursi is not only a naturopath, she is also a trained chef and has spent nearly 20 years working in kitchens around New Zealand and Australia.

As part of the focus on sustainability, reusable coffee cups will be available for purchase but the cafe will not sell take away coffee in disposable cups. Disposable cups and straws can not be recycled and create huge amounts of landfill and ocean litter. Most paper cups are coated with a plastic resin for durability and convenience meaning they can't be composted or recycled as well as the possibility of carcinogenic chemical leeching. The cafe encourages customers to come in and enjoy their coffee in a cup while sitting in a beautiful environment.

The café uses beans and tea from C4, a local Christchurch coffee supplier and will offer full barista services. Another point of difference is there are no commercially bottled soft drinks available. Instead, the cafe offers batch-made soda syrups with freshly carbonated water to purchase by the glass. Tea lovers need not miss out, the cafe has a wide variety of organic teas available.

Within the cafe itself, there are four differently themed rooms available; The Victorian Room (in a nod to the heritage of Orton Bradley Park), The Lounge (with a comfortable sofa area), The Board Room (ideal for meetings or large groups and also featuring local artists' work for sale) and The Book Exchange Room (bring or swap a book to read).

Maria and Ursi also have plans to offer various exciting events over the summer, including movie nights under the stars, music concerts and a ticketed Wild Foods Dinner Party. The café is family friendly with a kids corner and toys making a welcoming space for families with babies and children of all ages.

All of this within the beautiful setting of Orton Bradley Park. Orton Bradley Cafe, more than just a cafe!

Miss Andrews's Book Shop and Lending Library.

Another Lyttelton story from the 1940's.

Here in the 21st century 2017 to be exact, book shops and libraries are very common. One such shop that I remember as a lad was Miss Andrews bookshop in Port Lyttelton. A small and rather quaint little shop located in Oxford Street and just near the bakers building and tearooms owned by J.T.Norton Ltd. For those times it had a great variety of stationary products, paper supplies, toys. crystal products, kitchen wares, gift ideas and a small but popular lending library for the grown up!

As one entered the dimly lit shop you became aware of the familiar smell of books and all sorts of paper stocks and sometimes the slight aroma of a child having just consumed a banana!

It was shopping the old way. Miss Andrews knew almost all the locals that came to the shop including crews from visiting ships. English was not the only language spoken here!

You would expect to be greeted with, "Good morning young man", and all I could see of Miss Andrews was the feather in her green felt hat, showing just above the top of the counter to indicate to the customer where the little ladies voice was coming from.

My first comic called Cats and Jammer kids were printed in black and white and cost me two pennies. Color comics did not appear until after the war years in around 1953.

All items for school, business or home could be purchased here. Toys of all descriptions something for the kitchen, wonderful Mechano sets from England and those awful G nibs for your school pen and the orange cover of the standard issue of pupil's times table's books costing one shilling and three pence.

Fountain pens were only available to senior school pupils.

Sadly the little shop was severely damaged by the earthquakes and is now demolished and a bare gap is all that remains in Oxford Street.

This shop was a way of shopping and getting to know the local parish pump for gossip on the locals. Now it's just a pleasant memory for those who can remember the early 40's.

Article John Denton

Note: School children were not permitted to use fountain pens at school. They used a nib holder and the ink was supplied from a small inkwell in the child's desk. Only when the child passed from the standards section, standard six and went onto high school were they allowed to use a fountain pen. Even then it was a privilege to have a fountain pen. Your writing skills had to be first class. Hence the reminder of the scratchy hard to write with G nib. Ball point pens were not thought of until around the late 1950's.

Hold the Dream

Rex Harrison Diamond Harbour Writers Group

It's easy to dismiss dreamers. We hear things like "that will never happen", "you're living in la-la land", "get real mate" - and I haven't even considered the attacks on dreamers in social media.

So let's look at some dreams that have come true. Sometimes completely, sometimes partially, but with degrees of success nevertheless.

Women's suffrage. At one time the thought of votes for women was regarded as preposterous - the whole idea was met with ridicule and at times violence. Significant beginnings have been made.

After World War One there was a dream of a united Europe, or maybe even a united planet. So they formed the League of Nations. Imperfect it is true. Not all players bought into it, key players were excluded, and some nations continued to put self-interest ahead of the collective good. But it was a start.

After World War Two there were at least a couple of dreams.

One was to avoid the mistakes of the Treaty of Versailles whose terms were so harsh and unfair that they effectively sowed the seeds of the next war. The dream was to enable Europe and the world to get over the horror and move on. This led to the Marshall Plan whereby America poured millions into the reconstruction of Europe - the first time in human history where victors actively aided the recovery of the vanquished rather than exacting revenge.

Another was to create an international order that this time would eliminate warfare, in effect resurrecting the dream of the founders of the League of Nations. This time all players were involved, although concessions such as the veto had to be made so that the various power blocs would not feel threatened or out-manoeuvred. Not perfect, but a step further than the League of Nations.

There was the dream of an American nation free of slavery. That dream took a bloody civil war, but it came true. Admittedly they have a long way to get the next dream - racial unity. But if South Africa can do it...

Which is the another dream that came true. Through patience, persistence, and steadfastness in the face of violence, apartheid was overturned. Once again they have a long way to go, but they have begun.

Christchurch once had a dream of a rejuvenated central business district. What once looked impossible is now becoming a reality. Maybe adversity is necessary for some dreams to come true.

And let's not forget the little dreams. Who can forget Burt Monroe? How about the increasing prosperity - not yet universal - enabling families to do more than dream about improving their standard of living and educational opportunities? And sporting dreams? They may not seem important in the greater picture, but for a small nation to field the world's top rugby team or win the America's Cup must count for something.

There are times when it's not so much holding the dream as avoiding nightmares. The nations of the world have actually agreed to eliminate the chemicals that were causing the depletion of the ozone layer. Nuclear weapons are no longer tested in the atmosphere. Consensus is slowly emerging that the environment cannot be endlessly exploited.

So let's not dismiss the dreamers. Sometimes dreams come true only after horrors. Sometimes they come true through sheer dogged persistence. Sometimes they come true in small steps. But the good ones do come true - eventually. Hold on to the words of Martin Luther King - "I have a dream".

All Right? Workplace Wellbeing Rollercoaster Poster and Toolkit

The original All Right? rollercoaster proved incredibly popular and we quickly ran out. But due to popular demand, we've produced a special one just for Canterbury workplaces! The rollercoaster portrays the wide range of feelings people can experience. Each rollercoaster comes with a set of carriages for people to say how they're feeling at any one time.

By helping us become more aware of how we're feeling at any one time, the rollercoaster helps build our emotional intelligence. Improving our emotional intelligence strengthens our ability to navigate life's ups and downs and adjust to change, and enhance our relationships. Use this form to order your rollercoaster, and we'll send you enough carriages for everyone in your workplace!. https://docs.google.com/forms/d/e/1FAIpQLScrzF4F\_b\_aYJR3ZQbGS8iW-nJmlFdkxX4CfHxwHC6RYh6Qww/view

We're also inviting you all to have a sneak preview of our workplace wellbeing toolkit www.allright.org.nz/tools/workplaces. We'd love to hear any feedback you have on 378 6837 or Emily.Arps@cdhb.health.nz

Update on works and Activities at Naval Point Club

Works to repair the fire damage at the club house commences on Tuesday 31st October 2017. During this period the physical Naval Point Club office will be closed, accessibility to the club house will be limited to the toilets, showers and waka gear storage only. You will still be able to contact the club via email or telephone as all calls will be diverted to a member of staff. The anticipated period of remedial works will be 10 working days, but we will keep you up to date during the process.

All programmed activities will go ahead for the duration whilst the building work is in progress.

We have made provisions to use the outdoor area for a bar and will have a sausage sizzle available for all the hungry sailors on Saturday's and Oborns Nautical Twilight racing on Wednesday's. Gail, our Bar Manager, will be back on board accompanied by her daughter Sally, to give you a limited bar service. This will consist of bottled beer, RTD's, wine and soft drinks. So no pumped beer! Cash only bar, but don't worry if you have eftpos as we have a cash back facility available in the reception.

Many thanks,
Naval Point Club Lyttelton

Community House Walkers

Last Thursday the Lyttelton Walking Group were walking in Lyttelton. As we turned from Dublin St into Exeter St we came across the elderly man who lives on the corner (with the beautiful garden). He had a wheelbarrow and was looking at this huge pile of wood on the road. We decided to give him a hand and started filling up the wheelbarrow and carrying armloads of wood into his shed. Along Exeter Street came a troop of Ashburton Scouts – they were quickly roped in and were a tremendous help. By the time the man asked us to leave something for him to do we had moved about ¾ of the pile. We all felt good after that as that is what voluntary work does for you. I might add the man told us he was 99 years old and here he is getting in firewood for next winter!!! I call him an optimist!

Thanks to Mary Jamieson for sharing this story.

Lyttelton Museum

On November 2nd the Christchurch City Council will make a decision on whether the land the former Christchurch City Council Service Centre operated from can be gifted to the Lyttelton Historical Museum for the site of the new museum. Staff are recommending to Councillors that the land is gifted.

Banks Peninsula Festival of Walking – Every weekend in November.

This amazing local festival is approaching fast. If you want to attend any of the walks please book on line via eventfinda.co.nz. Bookings close three days prior to each event so there are no last minute bookings. For a list of all the walks visit www.bpwalks.co.nz. There are also programmes available at the Lyttelton Library and the Lyttelton Information Centre.

Farewell Andrea King

Andrea has been one of the longest serving volunteers at the Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre. A morning tea was held to celebrate her contributions over the years. For nearly 10 years she has worked nearly every Friday morning 10-1pm. Her friends gathered to say goodbye and to wish her well. Andrea and her husband John have left Lyttelton to live at Alpine Views. They have both contributed significantly to our community over many years.

Updated Harbour Maps

Free Material for Everyone to Share

If you would like new harbour maps for your business the Information Centre has just received a large delivery. Updated tear off pads available for everyone. To order, either phone the Information Centre 328 9093 or pop in during our opening hours at 20 Oxford Street.

News from the Top Club

Refit to Begin

The Lyttelton Top Club is about to enter the biggest transformation in its history, and we would love to share our progress with everyone along the way. We absolutely feel like we can once again be central to everyone in the Lyttelton and wider community, and love seeing new and returning faces to see what we're up to.

Having presented a design for the changes we wanted to make a couple of years ago, the members were provided with an update back in August that suggested we do everything we can to just get on with it. Message received loud and clear, and the last 2 months have been extremely busy planning on our redesign.

We are proud to have a highly engaged membership and shared some ideas that were really well received. It is the support of members that really makes this place what it is, and we want to reward everyone with a new look Top Club.

The exciting news is that we are likely to start the works (finally, I hear you say) in the next couple of weeks, with the first element being to paint the outside and give the building a complete refresh. We plan on then working on our sports bar before we then create a temporary bar while we build a brand new look and feel to the main bar area. We will celebrate at every stage along the way too, so keep an eye out for when we update you all on hitting our milestones.

We want to make the most of the fantastic view we have, and will continue to encourage people to have meals in our atrium area, and will be relaunching our restaurant offering in the new year.

While all this is going on, we will continue to stay open for business, as well as holding a few different Christmas lunches throughout December. Every week we hold our ever popular Housie nights. We have our cash draws and raffles every Thursday, hope to launch a regular pool competition shortly and will have a monthly quiz night in both November and December. Don't forget the free courtesy car too.

Steve and the team are great at keeping everyone updated on their Facebook page, so go and check that out for more regular updates, but the best thing you can do is head down there to have a catch up with friends – enjoy a drink and the view, and keep us all honest in our commitment to making the club successful into the future.

HOUSING: PROBLEMS AND ANSWERS
 New Zealand's housing problems have featured during the election build-up. Watch Bryan Bruce's documentary on the reasons for these problems: "Who Owns New Zealand Now?" a real eye-opener! Then watch some short videos on measures taken in other countries and New Zealand, to handle these problems in practical ways that involve The Third Sector (NGO's, Not-for-profits, communities) rather than depending on Public (government) and Private (business) Sectors. Learn about land trusts, co-operatives etc. The recent visit by Martin Large highlighted these ideas. Now you can get more detail. Friday 3rd November, 7.15pm at The Portal, 54A Oxford St, Lyttelton, up the drive between the playground and the swimming pool. Koha appreciated, or Timebank trade.
