Review Creators

Lyttelton Harbour Review is a 100% voluntary community newsletter initiative developed after the February 2011 earthquake. It's a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative produced by former Chairperson Wendy Everingham and Committee Member Jenny-Lee Love.

The objective of the Lyttelton Harbour Review is to help keep local residents informed with what is going on in the wider Lyttelton Harbour community. Of course the success of the Lyttelton Harbour Review could not be possible without the ongoing support and enthusiasm from the wider community.

A big thank you goes out to everyone who sends information; is willing to be interviewed or lets us know what might be happening in the neighbourhood. The Lyttelton Harbour Review project would not be possible without you all.

If you have an event, topic, sport announcement, fundraiser or cause that you would like to share with the harbour community, then Wendy or Jenny-Lee would love to hear from you:

Pūrau burial ground could be returned to rūnanga

Banks Peninsula Community Board will soon weigh up whether to start the process of restoring ownership of a former Māori burial ground at Pūrau to local rūnanga.

The quarter acre section, the Pūrau Māori Reserve at 177 Pūrau Avenue, is currently owned by the Christchurch City Council.

The land at Pūrau has special significance to Te Hapū o Ngāti Wheke. Pictured is the tomb of Tiemi Nohomutu, a Ngāi Tahu rangatira buried in Pūrau in 1850.

The Council is considering returning ownership to local rūnanga because the land has important cultural values and significance to Te Hapū o Ngāti Wheke.

The reserve is an urupā (Ngāi Tahu burial ground), and Ngāti Wheke would prefer it is managed by Court-appointed Rāpaki Trustees who already have responsibility for three other urupā in Lyttelton Harbour (Whakaraupō).

There have been ongoing discussions about returning ownership and management of the Pūrau urupā over the past century.

The land currently has reserve status, and returning ownership to the rūnanga would involve removing this under the Reserves Act 1977.

The Banks Peninsula Community Board will meet on 23 April to discuss and vote on whether to start the process involved in revoking the reserve status of the land.

This would include a public notification with an opportunity for the community to say whether they support it or not and a hearing panel to consider all submissions before making a recommendation to the community board.

The board would then need to report to the Council seeking approval for the reserve revocation.

If the process to revoke the reserve status goes ahead, handover from the Council to Te Hapū o Ngāti Wheke would take place later this year.

Street artist Dcypher to discuss proposed murals for Lyttelton Playground and Skatepark

During the repair work to the retaining walls of the Lyttelton Playground and Skatepark, the Christchurch City Council damaged the existing murals. The Council has on-going maintenance issue with graffiti at the park and a continuing responsibility to buff-out offending graffiti and tagging. The Council has been advised that amateur street artists generally respect more accomplished street artists. So, the Council has invited the best street artists active in Christchurch to tender to create a large mural on the existing walls. Dcypher, an internationally known street artist, was awarded the project after a fair and auditable evaluation process.

Dcypher is engaging with community groups (Lyttelton Primary School, Lyttelton Youth Group, Lyttelton Harbour Iwi Group, and the arts community via Lyttelton Harbour Arts Trust) on Tuesday, 10 April before settling down to the drawing board to prepare the final detailed design which will be presented to the community on Saturday, 14 April at the Lyttelton Farmers Market, where he will receive comments.

Wall 3 Skatepark

Lyttelton Skatepark and Playground Proposal

Initial sketches to be further developed

Dcypher won this competition by reflecting back to Lyttelton the aspirations itemised in the artist's brief. Dcypher's portfolio is filled with examples where he has taken the client's goals and aspirations through his creative process and produced a unique artwork specific to that client. In this case the client is the whole community of Lyttelton.

Attached you can find the visual proposal (the final work will be in colour). One of the suggestions to him that is already underway, is that he incorporate specific Lyttelton architecture rather than the general architecture in his initial proposal.

If you have an interesting idea or further feedback to the proposal, you are welcome to attend the meeting and speak with Dcypher, or email Council project manager, Jon Malis at Jon.Malis@ccc.govt.nz with suggestions prior to 5pm on Tuesday, 10 April 2018.

Recreation Centre

Activation Begins

The Recreation Centre activation team headed up by Margaret Jefferies is making progress. If you pop to the Recreation Centre now the first thing you will notice is between 10-4pm the front door should be open and a friendly member of the community will be there to greet you when you visit for recreational and other purposes.

The Community Desk is being run by a combination of community groups and individuals. Lift Library founder Juliet Adams will be there the most of the volunteer helpers. For April you will be able to talk to her directly about the LIFT library. She will be at the desk Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons 1-4pm and Friday morning 10-1pm. Her actual library will be moved to the Recreation Centre very shortly. This means that the library, now home based will be more accessible to you all.

The library is full of books that match its name LIFT Library. Pop in and see what Juliet has to borrow. You will also be able to borrow books from the other volunteers every day of the week.

L= LE, I= Inspiration, F= Facts, T= Transition (LE= Living Economies)

Lyttelton Harbour Timebank is also on the front desk. If you want to join the Timebank, seek help with anything or just have a chat Jill Larking will be on site Thursday 10-4pm. Wendy Everingham will be there Monday to Wednesday afternoon 1-4pm, and Friday afternoon 1-4pm.

The Lyttelton Fruit and Vegetable Collective have also re-located. Jan Cooper will distribute the vegetables each Wednesday 12-30 to 2.30pm. If you miss those collection times the Recreation Centre will be open until 4pm Wednesday afternoon and then the overflow can be collected Thursday 10-4pm. No more Friday collections.

Recreation Centre activators Claire Coates, Holly Cunningham and Jane Walders will be at the desk Tuesday and Wednesday mornings. If you have ideas for the Recreation Centre they are the best people to discuss this with. If you can't meet up with them directly you can have your say on the future of Lyttelton Recreation Centre by filling in a survey. https://docs.google.com/forms/d/e/1FAIpQLSc0fyMkw7XArQG1EXNECM61J1g-L3oO8YAdV_A34UkcwgDNnQ/viewform

To date the team have had a very good response to both the online survey and one on one conversations. "People in the community are telling us what they are imagining would be good to develop at the site.

Although the online survey will finish soon, we are still open to having helpful conversations - this information is directing us onto the next steps" said Margaret.

The front reception area will serve multiple purposes - a drop in area for people to chat, a work space if required and a community information point. The space is going to evolve and we are open to your diverse suggestions.

One immediate new feature is the showers will be open for the general public. Showers will cost $3.

The Recreation Centre is also moving back to its role as an emergency centre for the township. The Lyttelton Information Centre is no longer the community point for this.

A lovely response to the newly opened community desk last week came from Kay Commons and Monica Palmer. They popped in and they are excited about the possibilities of using the space for people home during the working week. The first of their ideas is to begin a Book Club. If that's successful they'd like to think about a Mahjong Club and a Coloring Group. The possibilities are endless. If you are excited to activate something please pop in.

A Chance to Celebrate

Our Native Forest Revegetation Journey

It really is quite amazing what a community can achieve when it works together for a common goal. Under the wing of a local with over twenty years of on ground experience many community members have been working away on a variety of projects to help reforest our local reserves. Some people have been working in isolation so the idea of a community celebration at our community nursery is a chance for everyone to meet up and see what we have all achieved. Since 2016, over 100 people have been working away for this common goal!

One group of locals have been collecting native remnant seed and since the inception of this group in 2016 eight people have been up in the Lyttelton Harbour side of the Port Hills doing this. There is quite a bit involved. The most important part is gaining permission to visit the sites where the remnant trees are located. Developing trusting relationships is most important for this.

Once permission is granted for a site visit, small teams of seed collectors then set off generally for a half-day excursion into the forest. Each year we try to introduce a new person or two to this activity. This activity itself isn't that straight forward. Many of the community members are not used to walking off-track and in the bush so slowly those skills have been developed.

The team is now at the point where three people are confident to lead group seed collecting whereas in the beginning it was only one.

Once the seeds are collected they need to be cleaned and stored for our community seed library. Again, this is not a simple task. It's pretty much been trial and error for the six people who have been involved with this part of the process. Some of the fruit gets washed and the seeds are prized from within to dry. Some of them aren't cleaned at all and get sown directly.

Others are stored in tins until they ripen further and others undergo warming/cooling processes in an attempt to get the seed to germinate. Unused seeds then require storage. That means there are seed jars to label and seed registers to update and photos along the way so that all the information can be recorded! We need to ensure that every seed that leaves our hands is accounted for and that it can be traced back to where it was originally collected from. We need to be able to prove that the seed is eco-sourced from our area.

Once the seeds are all sorted, other community members have popped up their hands to germinate the seeds. Similarly, there is no set manual on how to do this. A brief workshop got people headed in the right direction and showed us that an ice-cream container with holes in the bottom was a good container to use for germination. Twelve community members have been involved with germination to date. The containers are popped under bushes in home gardens to replicate dark forest conditions and the seeds are left to do their thing with the help of constant watering. Some germinate really quickly and others can take over a year or fail. It's all pretty random as we try to replicate nature.

When the seedlings have germinated and have produced a few leaves they are pricked out and planted into small individual pots. Similarly, community members have attended workshops to learn how to do this. It's not that easy as the plants are so delicate and you don't want to destroy the new root systems or break the vital lifeline that links roots to leaves. Once potted, there are also other challenges. Weather conditions are critical for survival rates. We have learnt that too much strong wind is a recipe for lots of dead plants. Too much light is also an issue. So we are forever trying to work out what the right environmental balance is.

Later, when the seedlings are established, they are potted on to a bigger PB3 potting bag. That's when they head to our community nursery. Our combined community efforts have grown an astonishing 543 plants within our first year of full production.

Our nursery celebration will be the first time that our watering, planters and weed control teams will get to see where the plants are coming from for this season. Similarly, it will be great for the seed collectors, cleaners and propagators to meet the people who will care for the plants they have grown over the next two- year period. Yes from the day the plants get planted there is a two- year maintenance regime on the site. To date seventeen other locals will ensure the plants are watered at the optimum time for the best growth. The watering team are backed up by a comprehensive watering model developed by Brian Downey and that is used to direct the team for optimal watering dates. Our waterers are a major contributor ensuring the survival rate for the plants is greater than 90%.

Prior to planting this winter there are also a couple of people who prepare the reserve for planting. The weed team scans the area and will get rid of Old Man's Beard and other bad weeds that might impact the new plants. The planting grid needs to be marked and the site cleaned up to ensure broom and gorse aren't a barrier for the planters.

We expect another 70 community participants will come to the community planting days along with approximately 15 senior students from Lyttelton Primary School. It's a really big community effort to ensure this all happens.

Our upcoming community nursery visit will be the chance for all the participants to celebrate all this amazing community buy-in and for everyone to see that the success of the programme relies on the combined efforts of everyone.

Collett's Corner

A New Idea for Property Development

There is quite a bit of talk around the place about the new development proposed on the former Empire and McKay Shipping site on the corner of London and Oxford Streets Lyttelton. Land Owner Camia Young and her team from Ohu – Office for Holistic Urbanism were in Lyttelton to give further clarity on the project and answer questions from locals.

Camia a trained but not practising architect from Colorado moved to New Zealand and in particular Christchurch after the 2010/2011 earthquakes.

"I wanted to be part of the rebuild of a 21st century city. I see Christchurch as a test place for what is possible. It's a place where 40 years of building is being completed in 10!" she said.

Camia thinks architecture is on the cusp of a new era. She explained that she's pursuing this community led building development for four reasons.

"I think we are entering a new age of belonging. People are wanting more shared use community spaces. I like the opportunity this presents. The concept of this type of property development is new. It's a challenge. It also enables me to address my concerns about wealth inequality and our environment. Our planet needs us to do things differently" she said.

For the past couple of months Camia and her on the ground Community Weaver Jules Lee have been getting community input on what sort of building people would like on that site. They presented the community with two options based on initial feedback.

INTERGENERATIONAL

First and Second Floor: A mix of accommodation for people looking to downsize as they move into their later years, as well as short-term leased apartments to enable the digital nomads to visit and stay in the community.

Ground Floor: An integrated co-working space, community focused restaurant and shop will provide a space for small businesses, local community groups and creative practitioners to work together. The restaurant will be designed to bring the community together to share conversation and kai. At the heart of the space will be an elders circle to inspire sharing stories.

Basement: A small fleet of approximately 30 shared electric vehicles complete with charging stations. Vehicles would be available for both residents and visitors.

ATTRACTION

Second Floor: A quirky cinema with views towards the hills and harbour, reflecting and connecting to Lyttelton's creative scene. We heard from the Lyttelton Primary School Student Council that they would like a place to screen locally made movies, together with themed movies that would cater for all generations.

First Floor: A unique hotel accommodation for loved ones to stay and experience our vibrant and thriving community, designed to cater to a range of interests including small self contained apartments, single well appointed hotel rooms and backpacker dorm room accommodation for those traveling on a budget.

Ground Floor: We heard from many of the market stalls holders that they wanted a more permanent presence in the township. The ground floor will be designed as a market hall with eateries and shops featuring local products and a range of restaurants catering local food, wine and beer similar to the Saturday market but indoors and open during the week.

Basement: Roman style bath and spa for locals and visitors to relax and heal, this would incorporate therapeutic treatments such as massage and physio therapist.

Feedback from the meeting was clear that most people would like a mix of the two suggestions. It was highlighted that some of the planned uses may not be economically viable, were already being considered somewhere else and that the appropriateness of senior housing in the commercial area may not be suitable.

The audience was very interested to know how you could be involved in the project. Camia said "You can be involved as a tenant, business owner or investor". She was asked what the investor model would look like. It is Camia's intention that Lyttelton residents will be the first to be offered shares in the building. "There is no guarantee that the entire building will be Lyttelton owned. That will depend on who subscribes" she said. In line with her belief that the project should offer more wealth distribution she's looking for as many investors as possible. Part of the aim of the meeting is to encourage people to consider getting involved. "As the concept is very new I think there will only be a small percentage (10%) of people who will be interested in a project like this" she said.

Camia's intention is to take on board the feedback from the public and come up with a blended proposal and then move into the design phase of the project. The design phase will be done in house and not subject to design by committee.

Project updates will be available via the OHU Facebook page, newsletters and further public meetings.

One thing is certain the new building will be called Collett's Corner and for local Anne Toomey that's a great honour that her family connections on the corner of London and Oxford Street will continue into the future.

Port Lyttelton exhales the endless hum of the syllable sacred to industry and commerce serviced by the rattling stream of gargantuan trucks and trailers with their grumpy klaxon honkers augmenting the liturgy of large objects crashing and banging and the turning of huge hulls by the tugs.

The dense throng of the farmers' market mutually impede each other as they are randomly distracted by various stalls and goods and friends that they bump into along with strangers issuing greetings and apologies tinged with confusion and bumbling about the periphery of small groups clustered in front of busy vendors patiently dealing with customers who don't know what they want but want something to delight themselves or others or not.

Harbour Co-op

So...what does it mean to be a cooperative? It's come to our attention that a lot of our community members don't actually understand who we are, what we stand for and how we work. We think it's time to introduce ourselves...so you, our community, know why we're here and what our vision is. Over the course of the next few newsletters, we'll explain!

Wikipedia says this when asked what a co-op is - A cooperative is "an autonomous association of persons united voluntarily to meet their common economic, social, and cultural needs and aspirations through a jointly-owned and democratically-controlled enterprise"

Our primary driver is to provide for the well being of the harbour community. That's a pretty cool motive... so how do we deliver this? We provide healthy, nutritious food, sourcing local, organic products, and where this is not possible, finding ethically and responsibly made products from further afield. We run a member-owned, economically sustainable business and we monitor our margins to maintain our profits. We provide an opportunity for community members to become shareholders, a one-time payment of $365. Becoming a shareholder means you own a slice of the business, you help us to keep providing for the community and you have a say in how the cooperative is run, not to mention in-store discounts and a bulk buying power monthly. We are always looking for new shareholders, swing by and have a chat to us if you'd like more information about this.

Beginners Guide to Local History Kia ora!

Starting on the 8th of May, Christchurch City Libraries will be offering a free six week evening programme called Beginners Guide to Local History. There will be diaries, historical maps and images, and stories of shenanigans! More details can be found on the Christchurch City Libraries Events page.

Dyers Pass Road changes

A new speed limit has been proposed for Dyers Pass Road. The limit is likely to be lowered from 70kmh to 60kmh, with changes coming into force in April.

Our Community Board strongly supports an education programme to back the change.

Our Board has not approved a staff recommendation for double yellow lines on the Peninsula side of the hill.

Weeding Sunday

Although weeding day dawned clear on 25th March, an overnight downpour stymied our offensive on a patch of old man's beard that we wanted to target in Urumau Reserve.

Instead, we redeployed our forces and potted up some plants for the planting team. We potted up some flax, NZ juniper, Hebe, and Coprosma robusta (which you might see on planting days later this year).

Join us on our next weeding day on April 27 when we hope to get on to the old man's beard patch that escaped our attention this time.

We meet at 1 pm at the Foster Tce entrance to Urumau Reserve.

Bring along secateurs and a pruning saw if you have them. Alternatively, we have a couple of spares.

Community Service Awards

Community Service Awards are given to individuals and groups in recognition of significant voluntary service.

Nominations for the Community Service Awards open Friday 16 March and close Friday 13 April 2018.

Council's Community Service Awards are a way of giving well-deserved recognition to people who make our communities better places to live. They are a way of thanking and honouring volunteers who, without pay and with little recognition, demonstrate dedication and passion, inspiring others to make service a central part of their lives.

Whether it be for youth, older adults, education, culture, church, recreation, sport or community service fields, we want to make sure they are thanked and honoured for their dedication. We only find out about these people through you. If you know of someone who deserves recognition for their community service, nominate them for a Community Service Award. Forms are available from the council website or drop into the library's council service centre desk.

Governors Bay Jetty

Support the Governors Bay people rebuilding their Jetty. Colin Jamieson has painted a series about the Jetty and explains the spiritual journey he experienced at a service of worship at St Cuthberts Church Sunday April 15th, 9.00 am. Jennifer Barrer shares poems from their book "Port, Hills Poems." Learn how parallel lines, contradicting the common law, do meet at the horizon, at infinity and in eternity & how we can likewise live beyond the law.

Light at the end of tunnel lane closures

Up to 15 overnight tunnel closures may be required between July and December during work on the $28.7 million Lyttelton Tunnel fire protection upgrade project.

Single-lane closures between 9pm and 5.30am have been confirmed for 8 to 10 April, and 12 and 19 April. Some single-lane closures are also forecast for May and June.

A new deluge fire suppression system and a large reservoir are being installed to boost tunnel safety and reduce the risk of closures.

The tunnel portal buildings are also undergoing earthquake strengthening and a new wastewater pipe will help futureproof services in Lyttelton and the bays.

The pump house is nearly complete and the ground work is well under way for the large reservoir. A 200-metre-long pipe is being laid to feed water from the reservoir to the pump house.

The New Zealand Transport Agency says tunnel users and local residents will be notified of planned closures to minimise disruption to motorists and the community.

Work on the tunnel is due to be completed by the end of the year.

Lift Library Book Review

Cradle to cradle: remaking the way we make things

William McDonough and Michael Braungart

This is the later edition, 2009, paperback and easier to hold – but not suitable for reading in the bath! This is a fascinating book. The tone is light and chatty: “At last, you have finally found time to sink into your favourite armchair, relax, and pick up a book”. The main ideas are well set out and easy to follow. It is probably aimed at designers, but I’m not one and I found it very interesting. The title is catchy: “Cradle to cradle”. It refers to the current design principle of planning an item from “Cradle to grave”, which means from manufacture through use to disposal. The author’s vision is to design items that have no “grave” but another “cradle” where at the end of a useful life the item could become “food” in some sense. Disposal would release nutrients either biologically as safe non-toxic compost or technically as reusable components. So nothing would be wasted. In other words, the end use of the product is part of its original design.

They argue that minimizing waste is not enough. Our well intentioned efforts at “reduce, reuse, recycle” are the wrong approach. “Your rug is made of recycled polyester bottles, which they were never designed for, and wrestling them into a carpet uses as much energy, and creates as much waste as a new carpet, and after all that effort it is still on its way to the landfill, just stopping off at your house on its way”. So they then actually did make a carpet according to their principles.

One of the authors is a chemist and one an architect and they give many examples of what they have actually accomplished. So it is all possible and is powerful stuff. This actual physical book that you pick up is a good example of what they are advocating. It is made of plastics, polymers that are infinitely recyclable at the same level of quality, the inks are non- toxic and can be washed off and also reused. And most importantly it feels lovely and silky to hold and is very clear to read (and waterproof, so you can read it in the bath!). So functional, pleasurable and effective with no waste.

Lyttelton Tunnel Fire Protection Upgrade Project

PROJECT UPDATE

MARCH 2018

Work to improve safety in the Lyttelton Tunnel with a new $28.7 million fire protection system is ramping up – the current contractual completion date is December 2018.

Once the system is operating, it will improve safety for tunnel travellers, on a route that's an economic life line for both Canterbury and the South Island.

MANAGING TUNNEL TRAFFIC

Up to 15 separate full late night/early morning tunnel closures could be required in the second half of this year as part of the installation and testing of the tunnel's new fire suppression system.

The aim is to keep full traffic lane closures to an absolute minimum as well as disruptions to motorists. The community and tunnel users will be given at least 3 weeks notice prior to the full closures.

Emergency services will have access through the tunnel at all times. A 90-day schedule for single and full traffic lane closures is updated monthly and can be viewed at www.nzta.govt.nz/assets/projects/lyttelton-tunnel/lyttelton-tunnel-lane-closures.pdf

WHAT DOES THE PROJECT INVOLVE?

The project involves installing a new deluge fire suppression system designed to contain a fire until emergency services reach the scene and building a large reservoir to supply water for this system. Some earthquake strengthening of the tunnel portal buildings will be carried out along with communication equipment upgrades.

A new wastewater pipe is being installed to futureproof wastewater services in Lyttelton and surrounding areas. Find out more about this project at <https://ccc.govt.nz/services/water-and-drainage/wastewater/wastewater-projects/lyttelton-harbour-wastewater-project>

WHAT'S BEEN COMPLETED SO FAR?

Construction of a pump house is nearly complete and ground works have started for the building of a large new water reservoir. Work is on track with laying a 200 metre long pipe to feed water from the reservoir to the pump house.

Two of the pumps for the water deluge system

AN INSIDE JOB

Finding a suitable work platform for the construction crew to do their jobs in the confined surrounding of the tunnel duct was challenging. This had to provide a safe and stable working surface to install brackets for the sewer line inside the tunnel ventilation duct.

The working platform and drill rig designed for ensuring tunnel duct panels loading restrictions and increased hole drilling efficiencies are achieved during the installation of 9km of new pipe, held in place by 1326 brackets.

Crews often have to walk up to 1km to reach their work site inside the tunnel ducts dressed in full protection kit – not an easy task.

One of the wall mounted speakers for a new public address system to improve communications inside the Lyttelton Tunnel. The system broadcasts safety instructions to tunnel users in an emergency.

COMING UP:

April 18-21 25-28 LAF

Spoonface Steinberg & The Ballad of Paragon Station. Two young actors combine to perform two exhilarating solo performances to audiences this April.

Spoonface Steinberg with Evie Guttridge is Lee Hall's (writer of Billy Elliot) extraordinary, award-winning play about faith, love and the meaning of life, and was first broadcast on Radio 4 in 1997 to unprecedented acclaim. A monologue by an autistic girl facing a terminal illness, it is at turns funny, intensely moving and profound.

The Ballad Of Paragon Station with Hester Arden is a one woman storytelling show about 4 people who can't sleep at night in a city by the sea. "What keeps you awake at night Stacy Kay?". Inspired by Dylan Thomas's 'Under Milk Wood' and Nan Goldin's 'The Ballad of Sexual Dependency' the play explores the lives of four characters through original portraits created in Hull and London in May 2017. A generation's struggle for identity, intimacy and escape, the show is an intimate, semi autobiographical visual treat with an 'absorbing, energetic performance' by RADA trained actress Hester Arden.
