REVIEW CREATORS

Lyttelton Harbour Review is a 100% voluntary community newsletter initiative developed after the February 2011 earthquake. It's a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative produced by former Chairperson Wendy Everingham and Committee Member Jenny-Lee Love.

The objective of the Lyttelton Harbour Review is to help keep local residents informed with what is going on in the wider Lyttelton Harbour community. Of course the success of the Lyttelton Harbour Review could not be possible without the ongoing support and enthusiasm from the wider community.

A big thank you goes out to everyone who sends information; is willing to be interviewed or lets us know what might be happening in the neighbourhood. The Lyttelton Harbour Review project would not be possible without you all.

If you have an event, topic, sport announcement, fundraiser or cause that you would like to share with the harbour community, then Wendy or Jenny-Lee would love to hear from you:

EXTREME FIRE RISK PROMPTS TOTAL FIRE BAN IN CHRISTCHURCH

A total fire ban is being put in place across the Christchurch City area, including Banks Peninsula, amid growing concern about the fire risk.

The ban prohibits any outdoor fires being lit in both rural and urban areas and comes into force at midnight tonight (12 February).

"The past six weeks have been much drier than normal and the risk of fire, particularly in the Port Hills area, is now extreme," says Fire and Emergency New Zealand (FENZ) Metro Area Commander Dave Stackhouse.

"Our focus is on protecting life and property and with no significant rain forecast for the city, we have made the decision to move to a prohibited fire season.

"That means there is a total ban on the lighting of any fires in open air," Mr Stackhouse says.

The public are still allowed to use gas-operated appliances, barbecues, grills, and wood-fire pizza ovens, provided they are used safely in a clear area and there is a water source available to use in an emergency.

FENZ Principal Rural Fire Office Bruce Janes says a restricted fire season remains in place in the Selwyn, Waimakariri and Hurunui districts.

Anyone in those areas wanting to light a fire light outside must first obtain a permit from FENZ via the Checkitsalright website.

The Selwyn, Waimakariri and Hurunui districts may move to a prohibited fire season next week if the fire risk does not ease.

Anyone who sees smoke or fire should dial 111 immediately.

RECORDING MAGIC RETURNS AL'S NEW ALBUM

It's been a long time since AL Park last ventured into the recording studio for his own work. "I've always felt that the magic was never there for me" he said. "I've always loved performing live, that's where it all came together for me, so that's where I've put lots of my energy for many years."

That was until recently when friend Will Davie suggested that he make an album with all his current songs. That idea then morphed as they do, and with a great suggestion from Delaney Davidson - the album be made with all his local music friends performing, the possibility of an album took shape.

"I made the proviso that I'd consider the album idea if I had positive feedback firstly from Marlon Williams. Marlon thought it was a great idea, then Aldus Harding did and so it went. This album has felt a great thing to do and since that affirmation from my close music friends this entire project has been a great experience for me".

"It's been a project that has reconnected me with many old and new friends. Janice Grey worked with me so many years ago and she's on the album". Other performers who agreed to be part of special album include Anthea Struthers, Adam Hattaway, Adam McGrath, Anita Clark, Jordon Luck, Barry Saunders and Helen Mulholland.

The new album also connects Al to a time when all the performers became particularly close after the February 22nd earthquake. "I remember that day well. I was under the table with Barry Saunders when the Lyttelton Coffee Company was tumbling down. I knew immediately that my whole life would change. This album reconnects me to that special time when together the local musicians created Harbour Union. It's an expression of our love and support for each other. It's a bit overwhelming really but such a joy".

The new album as Al says "Is so much more than an album". It's about many of his friends saying "Thank You". Al's affectionately known as Boppa Park by many he has given support to over the years. He has the knack for taking musicians under his wing and mentoring them. He can spot talent and he's so good at nurturing it. He's particularly proud of a once very shy Elmore Jones. He's now employed in the music industry, married and really happy with his life.

Last year Al received a local government community award from the Banks Peninsula Community Board acknowledging his great mentoring skill of younger musicians from this area. So many of the people he's nurtured have come from Lyttelton. Adam Hattaway, Marlon Williams, Anthea Struthers etc.

This talent never wavers. Even to this day he's on the look out for new Lyttelton talent and was so proud of the young people he got involved at last week's film night. "Summerfest really reminded me of those early days when the festivals began. It was all about uncovering talented young people and last week was no exception with Jonno and Jordan.

Meanwhile Al's album with his friends is launched February 15th at Blue Smoke.

Better Already – The Songs of Al Park. Available in Lyttelton at Henry Trading.

CHRISTCHURCH'S SUMNER ROAD

Work on reinstating the critical road link between Sumner and Lyttelton is almost finished. The Christchurch City Council team and contractors are on track to have Sumner Road reopened to traffic at the end of March. The road has been closed to the public since tonnes of rocks came tumbling down onto it from the surrounding cliffs during the 22 February 2011 earthquake.

“Reinstating this road has been a massive undertaking but we are almost at the finishing line,” Council Transport Planning and Delivery Manager Lynette Ellis says.

“The final push is on to get the road surface laid, the safety barriers installed, and the line markings done. While our contractors are doing this work, there will be trucks moving through both Lyttelton and the Redcliffs-Sumner areas.

“At the Lyttelton end of the road, stonemasons are working to finish the retaining walls. The walls are being built from rocks that were salvaged from Sumner Road as part of the rockfall risk-reduction work,” Ms Ellis says.

The work on Sumner Road is being jointly funded by the Council and the New Zealand Transport Agency.

“Getting this critical transport route between the city and the Port of Lyttelton reopened is going to be a major milestone. It will make moving over-dimension freight to and from the port much easier and it will mean no more dangerous goods convoys through the tunnel,” she says.

“It will also reconnect the communities of Lyttelton and Sumner and open up access to the Port Hills for cyclists.

“When the road does reopen, there will be changes in traffic patterns as some heavy vehicles return to moving through Redcliffs, Sumner and parts of Lyttelton for the first time since the February 2011 earthquake. We will be working with the affected communities to let them know about the changes.”

Getting Sumner Road reopened has involved:

- Blasting 100,000 cubic metres of rock and moving it to Gollans Bay Quarry
- Building a 407-metre-long catch bench to intercept falling rocks from the Crater Rim Bluffs. The back of the bench is 18 metres high, and the 15-metre-wide floor of cushioning material is designed to trap falling rocks
- Building a 50-metre-long, seven-metre-high rock interception bund
- Reinstating 2.6 kilometres of road
- Installing 2.6 kilometres of safety barrier
- Replacing/resealing 16,700 square metres of road
- Repairing/rebuilding 30 retaining walls, the biggest of which is 132 metres long and seven metres high
- Planting 30,000 plants

HOW QUICKLY A YEAR GOES, LYTTELTON ARMS TURNS ONE!

It's almost a year ago to the day that Caroline Quinn did her first beer order for the Quinn family's newest business venture, The Lyttelton Arms! Caroline reflects on a year of adjusting to a seven day a week business. "On the whole there have been lots of pleasant surprises", she said.

"The team we have here is the best thing. We have been really lucky to hold onto most of the former staff. Our bar staff are wonderful and they have really helped us on our steep learning curve, moving from construction to hospitality"

During the first year things have changed. "In line of our vision of creating a traditional Kiwi Pub with a community feel we have switched to a venue where as well as getting a drink you can eat in a relaxed family atmosphere".

"Making the transition has been possible with our two great chefs". Chef Dino will be well known to many Lyttelton people having grown up in Lyttelton. "He's making his mark with his eagerness to ensure the kitchen caters for all diets and tastes," said Caroline.

The Lyttelton Arms is a real family affair. "My mum Anne looks after the administrative side of the business, I do the marketing, fill in when someone's away and help behind the scenes. John loves to be out the front as the host. He loves chatting to patrons. He also looks after the ordering. Even our girls get involved and have come down when things get really busy to help out collecting glasses".

John and Caroline have lived in Lyttelton for nearly 20 years. "This was our local pub for many years when it was The Irish, John had his stag do here and even had a pint here on the morning of our wedding! We have many happy memories here and look forward to creating many more with us on the other side of the bar".

Naturally there are more things to be done at The Lyttelton

Arms before it's exactly what Caroline and John dreamed of. Their design skills come to the fore now. Gradually they've been transforming the interior to match their vision of the place.

"It's got a much warmer feeling now with the old wooden floor boards exposed and the intimate booths in the eating area." To make the place even more cosy the Quinn's are looking to install a log burner this winter, redesign the back bar and there are plans for a revamp of the back deck and the façade.

For Caroline this business venture is all about giving back to the community and getting to know it better. With two girls in the netball team they have supported Lyttelton Netball. She's also been able to assist Streetwise who look after homeless. John has enjoyed working with the patrons who are part of the local planting team for Urumau Reserve. "It's with these connections that we get to know our wider community even better" said Caroline.

As for customers, "We have amazing group of locals, who we look forward to seeing, one of my favourites are the Maureen's!" Maureen W is famous for her order of "a glass of wine and a hug"!

LET'S OWN THINGS DIFFERENTLY: The Equity Crowdfunding Campaign for Lyttelton's Newest Commercial Development is Open

New Zealand's first equity crowdfunded, community-minded commercial development is soon to be owned by everyday New Zealanders. Collett's Corner – set in the heart of Lyttelton, Christchurch – will be a place that contributes to the community, both socially and economically.

The project's collective ownership model marks a visionary shift in the structures that underpin a building's creation, enabling fairer distribution of wealth in the hopes of closing the inequality gap that divides our society. With 8 people in the world controlling the same wealth as the bottom 50% according to a recent Oxfam Report [1], it's a shift that is well overdue.

Collett's Corner will be located at the corner of London and Oxford Streets. With a floor area of 2,710 sqm, the building will be host to a lively mix of wellness centre, community concierge, hospitality, retail, co-working space and apartments. The final design, led by Warren & Mahoney, is the result of hundreds of ideas contributed by the community over a 2-year collaborative process.

The project has been made possible by a relatively recent legislative change. In 2014, New Zealand law changed to allow an entire community to own a single company without going through expensive legal processes for the first time. By setting Collett's Corner up as a standalone company with shares, the development can be owned by many everyday investors, instead of a few individuals with deep pockets. The minimum buy in for Collett's Corner is one share, which costs $100. Any New Zealand resident can invest in shares, and the maximum portion any one person can own is 10%. Shares must be purchased through the Collett's Corner crowdfunding campaign which opened to Lyttelton locals on 7 February 2019, and the rest of New Zealand on 14 February 2019. The offer period closes March 21st.

The project has been initiated by entrepreneur, developer and international architect Camia Young. Having co-designed the Gap Filler Pallet Pavilion and co-founded XCHC, she has a track record for creating buildings that in turn build community.

"I'm interested in defining the next era of architecture, creating places of connection and belonging. I truly believe it is possible to create a more equitable society if we work together." "It's time to turn the tables on how our economic systems work – or don't work – for us. By taking advantage of new opportunities in ownership and development, we can start to move from an extractive economic system to a regenerative one."

February 7th marked the Crowd Funding launch party in Lyttelton at the Wunderbar. At a very well attended event the audience learnt more about the project. Margaret Jefferies from Project Lyttelton and Ryan Reynolds from Gap Filler spoke and showed their support for this creative venture. "If any place can make this happen it will be Lyttelton", said Margaret. Ryan endorsed that and also said that during the earthquake upheaval our communities dreamed of doing things differently but often the big ideas couldn't get off the ground due to limited funds. "We now have a big idea that can be funded by community".

People can learn more and invest via Pledgme <http://pldg.me/collettscorner>. For questions about this offer or the project, please email Camia Young at camia@ohu.nz. To stay up to date with Collett's Corner, please register at www.collettscorner.nz.

SEA WEEK MARCH 2ND – SUNDAY MARCH 10TH THIS YEAR'S THEME IS "CARE FOR OUR SEAS"

Sea Week is New Zealand's annual education awareness week about the sea. All regions around the country celebrate. In our region here are some of the events you can get involved with.

Citizen Scientists wanted!

Kia Ora and welcome to the Marine Metre Squared website!

Marine Metre Squared is an easy way for anyone to survey the plants and animals living on their local seashore.

The NZ Marine Studies Centre, University of Otago, is encouraging everyone to participate in long term monitoring of their marine environment – the Marine Metre Squared. Anyone can take part – individuals, families, schools and community groups.

Here you can find everything you need to get involved in this exciting nationwide Citizen Science project, start surveying your local seashore, and find out where plants and animals that live between the tides are found around New Zealand.

Take a moment to join the Marine Meter Squared project – it's easy and free.

As a registered member you can get full access to our online MM2 database where you can add your own survey data to show others what's living between the tides on your local shore, and compare your shore with others in New Zealand to find out which species live where using our simple mapping and analysis tools.

Registered members can also join our online community where you can connect with other members of the MM2 network, get help with species identification, take part in new projects and challenges and suggest mini-projects of your own.

To register visit <https://www.mm2.net.nz/news/1>

What's in a teaspoonful of seawater?

Tuesday 5 March 2019, 5.30 – 7pm at Spark Place, ground floor – Tūranga, 60 Cathedral Square, Christchurch Central, Christchurch 8011. The library venue at Tūranga is a 10 minute walk from the bus exchange.

An evening's talk by Dr Paul Broady –What's in a teaspoonful of seawater?

There can't be much can there? But we're talking about extremely small microbes and some very large numbers are involved. Life in the ocean is dominated by microbes so even in a very small volume there are many different types. The total number of individuals easily surpasses the human population of Christchurch! Also, different microbes perform different functions in the complex ecological webs of interaction that are active at this tiny scale.

Paul's talk was popular last year – come and learn more about our fascinating marine environment.

Free but koha welcome to allay cost of venue hire.

NEXT STAGE OF THE CRUISE SHIP BERTH

On Monday 18 February HEB Construction will begin driving land-based piles in the next stage of the construction of the Cruise Berth. This new phase of piling will be using larger 914mm piles and as they are all land-based piles, greater use of the hammer-tool may be needed to drive them.

We anticipate this phase of the piling will continue until the end of March.

The piles are shorter than the water-based piles, meaning the driving may not take as long per pile. However, because each pile may need to be hammered, the noise created will be more noticeable. Piling will not be continuous during the day, with frequent periods of no piling.

Unfortunately this is a noisy process and we acknowledge that this will be disruptive to Lyttelton residents and business owners. By providing notice of this work, and publishing the schedule, we hope that people will be able to plan around it.

The piling schedule on the Harbourwatch website will be updated regularly. You can find it here.

If you have any questions, comments, or wish to speak to us regarding the piling, please contact LPC's Environmental Advisor for the project Jared Pettersson at Jared.Pettersson@lpc.co.nz.

The Holiday – A Portrait.

By

John Riminton - Diamond Harbour Writers Group.

"You need a break. We are giving you three weeks off". No doubt in the tone of the Chairman of the Research Committee.

Peter Cross, tall and thin, saw himself as a dedicated scientist although his colleagues often preferred the word "obsessive" when talking about him during coffee breaks. A schoolboy maths prodigy, he had not bothered much with the other subjects in his general education: languages, history, art were for the others, not him. A scholarship to the Science Faculty where he discovered biotech. 1st. Class Honours then a well-received Ph.D. thesis on gene editing.

Now he was lead investigator in a well-funded research project on DNA splicing, working under the unpublicised umbrella of a major Pharma corporation.

The news of his time off spread quickly through the lab, prompting one of his female colleagues to ask what he proposed to do with the time. "Haven't thought about it yet, probably spend the leave at home catching up on some collateral reading". "Don't do that" she exclaimed, "Go of a real holiday; go to Florence, it is said to be the most beautiful and interesting city in the world – forget work and enjoy yourself".

Later, back in his unshared, immaculately tidy unit, he thought "Why not?" and the next morning a rather surprised secretay made the bookings.

No trouble with the journey and he was soon in the dining room of a comfortable hotel, enjoying his first taste of Italian cooking – very different from the little trays of frozen pasta that he frequently microwaved for an evening meal. He had picked up a guide book at the airport and, browsing through it he saw that there was no shortage of museums, though seemingly none devoted to science. Methodical as usual, he decided to check them in alphabetic order starting with the Accademia Galleria tomorrow morning.

He had arrived in September and he set off in mild and beautiful sunlight taking in the, to him, very unusual architecture. He soon reached the Galleria and, wandering through the overwhelming collection of statues, busts and painting, his attention was suddenly captivated by a statue at the focal point of a long gallery – Michaelangelo's David. Entranced, Peter read that it had been carved from one block of discarded marble. How could anyone have chipped away all that unwanted stone to produce this? And why?

That was enough for his first day.

Days passed. The word "Renaissance" became part of his mental vocabulary. His mathematician's eye was intrigued by the Dome of the Cathedral. How had the architect – Bruno somebody – mastered those complexities without even so much as a calculator, let alone a computer? Drifting in and out of the museums, Peter was astonished by the number of paintings of mother and child. Did the 14th. Century have a motherhood fetish?

He took a coach trip into the surrounding Tuscany hills. It was a superb day with the famous Tuscany light bestowing a blessing on the whole scene. Why was that light so different from that over the similar Scottish Border hills?

Finally it was time to go home. He arrived back to be greeted by a chorus of questions from his colleagues: "How did that go?", "Did you enjoy yourself?"; "What did you see?"

A brief description of The David and then "Tell me what has been going on here while I've been away. I've really missed it".

What Makes Lyttelton, 'Lyttelton'?

Take part in the 2019 "This is What Community Means to Me" Survey.

Like towns everywhere, Lyttelton has changed much over the past 20 years. As a port town, our make-up has always been diverse. But what makes Lyttelton, "Lyttelton"?

- What does being a part of this community mean to residents and the people who work here today?
- What's important? What's not? And have these things changed in the past decade or two?

Project Lyttelton, a longstanding community organisation, is seeking to answer these questions in the "This is What Community Means to Me" Survey.

About the Survey

The intent of the survey is to help community organisations in Lyttelton consider how they can best support a town that we can all thrive in and enjoy. The findings will be shared widely.

The survey is being run by a third party and all responses will remain confidential.

Please share your thoughts.

1. Pick up a print copy from the Garage Sale or Lyttelton Rec. Centre, or scan the QR code below.
2. Drop your completed survey in to a collection box at Lyttelton Rec. or the Garage Sale by:
Sunday 3 March 2019.

GOVERNORS BAY FETE

SATURDAY 30 MARCH, 12PM TO 4PM (FETE) AND 6PM TO 10PM (MUSIC FESTIVAL)

We are organising a reinvigorated fete that will showcase the amazing talents and work of members of our community. Our vision is a fete which is fun with a great community vibe. There will be free activities, music, stalls galore (new and old), music, fun for the kids, food, a pop-up bar, a "show and shine" gathering of vintage and sports cars, and other attractions that will make this a truly memorable community day.

For more information, email govbayfete@gmail.com or find our event on Facebook.

Save the Jetty Music Festival

After the fete winds down, the Save the Jetty Music Festival winds up. We're lining up some awesome local bands, including The In Crowd, 3KG, and James Constable.

An evening of fun, cool music, good food and beer. Relax and enjoy the vibe.

Tickets on sale now (early bird $15)

For more information or to buy tickets, see <http://www.savethejetty.org/save-the-jetty-music-festival> or Governors Bay Jetty Restoration Trust's Facebook page: <https://www.facebook.com/savethejetty>.

Late night Lyttelton Tunnel closures

From Sunday 24 February, you'll need to plan your travel around late night tunnel closures.

These are essential to both install and test a new fire protection system inside the tunnel.

Work on this $28.7 million project is expected to be completed by April/May 2019.

Traffic lane closures are timed for late night/early morning on the lightest tunnel traffic days of the week, that is Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

In conjunction with the late night tunnel closures, we are carrying out maintenance on SH74 (Tunnel Road) to ensure fewer nights of disruption for motorists and residents. Work includes replacing some guardrails and road resurfacing work between Port Hills and Horotane Valley overpasses as well. Lyttelton-bound traffic into the tunnel for the 10-minute openings will be unaffected. Traffic leaving the tunnel towards Christchurch will have to exit onto SH76 Port Hills Road.

TUNNEL CLOSED
from 11pm to 4am
Sunday 24 February
Monday 25 February
Tuesday 26 February

The tunnel will open to traffic for 10 minutes on the hour on these nights.

Emergency access will be maintained through the tunnel at all times.

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW

- Real-time traffic information for the Lyttelton Tunnel area is available at www.tfc.govt.nz
- A schedule of tunnel traffic lane closures can be found at www.nzta.govt.nz/assets/projects/lyttelton-tunnel/lyttelton-tunnel-lane-closures.pdf
- Check the Transport Agency's official Twitter @nzta_cwc and Facebook facebook.com/nztasouthisland pages.
- For traffic and travel information, call 0800 4 HIGHWAYS (0800 44 44 49) to speak to one of our team.
