REVIEW CREATORS

Lyttelton Harbour Review is a 100% voluntary community newsletter initiative developed after the February 2011 earthquake. It's a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative produced by former Chairperson Wendy Everingham and Committe Member Jenny-Lee Love.

The objective of the Lyttelton Harbour Review is to help keep local residents informed with what is going on in the wider Lyttelton Harbour community. Of course the success of the Lyttelton Harbour Review could not be possible without the ongoing support and enthusiasm from the wider community.

A big thank you goes out to everyone who sends information; is willing to be interviewed or lets us know what might be happening in the neighbourhood. The Lyttelton Harbour Review project would not be possible without you all.

If you have an event, topic, sport announcement, fundraiser or cause that you would like to share with the harbour community, then Wendy or Jenny-Lee would love to hear from you:

LYTTELTON WASTEWATER PROJECT WORK PUMPS UP

Work on a $53 million project to upgrade wastewater services in the Lyttelton harbour area is moving to a crucial phase, with work under way on a new pump station at Simeon Quay.

A new pump station is being built at Simeon Quay. The new pump station will connect to two submarine pipelines that have been built to carry untreated wastewater from the townships of Governors Bay and Diamond Harbour to Lyttelton. It is being built to pump the untreated wastewater, via new pipelines, through the Lyttelton Tunnel and onto the existing Woolston pump station. From there the wastewater will be pumped through to the Christchurch Wastewater Treatment Plant in Bromley.

Currently, wastewater from Lyttelton, Governors Bay and Diamond Harbour is treated at wastewater treatment plants in each of the townships before being discharged through outfall pipelines into Lyttelton Harbour.

Christchurch City Council City Services General Manager David Adamson says the start of work on the new pump station means the Council is another step closer to bringing an end to the routine discharge of treated wastewater into Lyttelton Harbour.

"The pump station on Simeon Quay is a vital part of the new wastewater system we are building and the most visible aspect of this multimillion-dollar project.

"Construction of the pump station will have some impact on traffic in the Simeon Quay area, but our contractors will be doing their best to minimise the disruptions," Mr Adamson says.

Work on the fourth and final stage of the Lyttelton Harbour wastewater scheme will begin in March, which involves laying several kilometres of new underground pipeline to carry the wastewater from Heathcote to Woolston.

The entire project is planned for completion and commissioning by early 2020.

THE ROAD LINKING SUMNER TO LYTTELTON WILL REOPEN ON THE LAST FRIDAY IN MARCH.

Contractors have spent the past two-and-a-half years working to reinstate Sumner Road, which has been closed to traffic since tonnes of rocks came tumbling down onto it from the surrounding cliffs during the 22 February 2011 earthquake.

Sumner Road is just weeks away from opening.

“Work to reinstate the road is almost complete and it will reopen to traffic from 6pm on Friday, 29 March,” says Christchurch City Council Transport Planning and Delivery Manager Lynette Ellis.

“It will be another positive step forward for Christchurch because it will mean there is again a direct road link between the communities of Sumner and Lyttelton. It will also mean that oversized and dangerous goods trucks travelling to or from the Port of Lyttelton will no longer need to use the Lyttelton road tunnel.

“We know that people are very excited about Sumner Road reopening and we would have liked to have had an open day so that people could walk or cycle the length of the rebuilt road and see all the work that has been done before it reopens to traffic.

“Unfortunately when we began looking at how we could stage such an event, it quickly became clear it would cause too many logistical and safety issues,” Ms Ellis says.

“Logistically with very limited parking available at the Evans Pass end of Sumner Road it would be difficult to accommodate large groups and to get people back to where they had left their vehicles.”

“Having thousands of people heading through Sumner to the top of Evans Pass and coming out into Lyttelton’s narrow streets also raises safety concerns.”

While significant work has been done to reduce the rockfall risk along Sumner Road, there is still a possibility that rocks could fall onto the road.

“A truck or vehicle passing by is exposed to that risk for significantly less time than thousands of walkers or cyclists would be. That level of risk wasn’t acceptable to us,” Ms Ellis says.

Ms Ellis says if people do want to take a drive along Sumner Road after it has reopened, they should be aware there is no stopping restrictions along the entire length of the road.

PENINSULA PLAQUES

AN EXHIBITION BY JAN VALENTINE PRIESTLEY

STODDART COTTAGE GALLERY 1 – 31 MARCH 2019

Diamond Harbour ceramic artist Jan Valentine Priestley has worked on a collection of images of Banks Peninsula landscape and history which she prints onto paper clay formed into corrugated wall plaques.

They tell stories of our peninsula bays with each plaque a unique mix of her own photos, historical photos, old maps, lettering, imprints, stains and waxes.

Each unique piece is fired to set the images as a sepia coloured glaze then framed with recycled totara battens, Macrocarpa, chicken wire, No 8 fencing wire, and lead head nails.

The plaques can be hung outside on sheds, barns, wool sheds, verandas and fences because they are not damaged by sun or rain.

Jan has received much information and help from local museums, peninsula books, friends, neighbours and other contacts made while living on the Peninsula.

For 12 years her work has been exhibited at Sculpture on the Peninsula at Loudon farm, Teddington, a perfect venue.

She has also lived and worked overseas for many years, exhibiting in Sweden, Italy and the United States.

Stoddart Cottage Gallery in Diamond Harbour will be exhibiting her work in March 2019 with an opening event on Friday 1st March at 5 pm.

Historic Stoddart Cottage is the oldest house in Diamond Harbour and birthplace of well-known Canterbury impressionist Margaret Stoddart.

Stoddart Cottage Gallery is open every Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 10am to 4 pm. Visitors can reach Diamond Harbour by road or by ferry from Lyttelton. The Number 28 bus connects from the bus exchange in the central city.

GRANT APPROVED FOR LANDMARK LYTTELTON LODGE

A landmark heritage building in Lyttelton that was once a Masonic Lodge and the studio of a well-known New Zealand artist is a step closer to restoration. Kilwinning Lodge in Canterbury Street dates from 1881. However, it was badly damaged in the 2011 earthquake and remained empty.

Originally a Masonic Lodge, it was bought by prominent artist Bill Hammond in 2000. Hammond, who is known for his “bird people” paintings, adapted the hall to use as an artist’s studio, installing three large windows on the south side.

A heritage grant has been approved for Kilwinning Lodge in Lyttelton. The lodge’s new owner – a structural engineering company that bought the building in 2015 – has asked the Christchurch City Council for a heritage grant towards the cost of repairing, strengthening, and renovating the building so it can be used as an office upstairs, with leased commercial space on the ground floor.

At a meeting on Wednesday, the Social, Community Development and Housing Committee approved a Heritage Incentive Grant for Kilwinning Lodge.

The grant is split into $158,782 this financial year and $100,000 in the next financial year.

The owner of the classical-style building would need to enter into a full conservation covenant with the Council as part of the grant agreement. Committee Chairperson Councillor Phil Clearwater says the building is an important local landmark. It overlooks Albion Square and contributes to the unique identity of the town centre.

“The grant would protect a unique and significant building in an area where so many heritage buildings have been lost following the earthquakes,” he says.

The original single-storey brick building was damaged by fire in 1903. Rather than demolish and rebuild, the existing building was constructed reusing the brick walls and facade and a timber second storey was added.

The new owner plans to fix damaged areas and bring the building up to current codes and standards, while also maintaining and restoring heritage features that have been lost over the years, such as an original decorated parapet on the facade. The cost of heritage-related work is estimated to be over $1.2 million, with the Heritage Incentive Grant contributing about 20 per cent of the total cost.

The building is scheduled as ‘significant’ in the Christchurch District Plan.

It is part of the Heritage New Zealand Pouhere Taonga Lyttelton Historic Area.

LYTTELTON GIRLS' GROUP GOING PLACES

There's a new girls group in town and it's going from strength to strength.

"It's all really about the community support and having role-models and friends," says co-ordinator Candice Milner.

Candice used to attend the youth group at Lyttelton's Community House as a teen and thought it was a "cool idea" when she was approached by Project Lyttelton's Jill Larking, who is part of PL's Youth team.

Her youth group days had been a great experience, she was keen for other young girls to have that opportunity.

However they were mainly attracting boys and it seemed not many girls were coming along so PL's Youth team successfully looked for funding for a separate girls' group.

The current group of Yr 7 and 8 girls is slowly gaining membership momentum.

"As more girls join they bring along other others," Candice said.

The girls do a mix of social activities and also push the boundaries, trying new recreational activities that they may not have tried before.

Going from being a youth group participant to a young leader seemed a natural fit with Candice.

"In all aspects of my life I've had people to look up to, hopefully that will be an aspect of theirs, hopefully, where they can have someone they can come to. We're all learning together"

The musician and midwifery student had already been working with young people teaching music so it seemed an easy next step.

There had been a gap in the community for organised and supervised youth social groups after the Community House programmes closed and PL had been keen to get more youth attracted to the Recreation Centre as part of a revitalisation push to have the facility used more widely.

A small team was formed and launched youth nights on a Monday (all ages), and a Friday (Year 9-10). A youth worker was employed.

"I think trying all sorts of things when you're young is super important.

"We've been doing wake ama, then we'll probably have a couple of weeks hanging out at the Rec Centre with maybe movies and pizza," Candice said.

Giving the group opportunities to learn new things is a key focus for Candice.

While there are already plans for surfing lessons and self defence training, the group is really keen to learn from people in the wider community, hoping that people with skills to share may be willing to offer mini-workshops, sharing knowledge and building relationships. They would love to try dance.

Amy Sanders came along to a session at the Rec centre because she'd heard about it at school and it sounded cool. They made a cake in a cup and she was keen on the wake ama.

"It's lots of fun and it's definitely a good way to make lots of friends."

Tessa Jamieson has been on board since the beginning, after hearing about it from Candice who teaches music at her school.

"It's really fun, it's cool doing stuff with people you might not usually hang out with."

Next steps are to grow the group community, attract and include older girls and possibly find another part time youth worker.

URUMAU RESERVE

OUT OF THE BLUE LAND GRAB

At the eleventh hour Banks Peninsula Community Board members and the Lyttelton Reserves Management Committee received notification that 1.197 hectares of Urumau Reserve land was going to be taken under the public works act for road reserve and that the decision ratifying this recommendation was going to go to the full council, bypassing the Community Board. According to council staff this situation had arisen because Sumner Road needed to be realigned for the rebuild of the road and consequently the road encroached onto the reserve. With the road officially opening on March 29th staff felt there was some urgency to ensure the council land reflected the new road status.

At the Banks Peninsula Community Board meeting on Monday March 4th this was a hot topic. Wendy Everingham spoke to the board members in the public forum.

“How can a Reserve just be taken away with no public consultation?”

“How can you as the governing body be bypassed for decision making?” she said.

She raised some other interesting points. The report writers had taken no consideration to the environmental values of the site. They had only focused on recreational users and concluded that as this made no impact on walkers and cyclists, the land reserve re-designation would be fine. She also questioned why so much land was going to be acquisitioned and suggested maybe less could be an option. She urged the Community Board to attend the Council meeting on March 14th to comment on this poor process and to seek a better outcome for the reserve.

Community Board members were just as surprised with this last minute memo as members in the public gallery. Councillor Turner was extremely disappointed with the process and wondered why this report was so urgent to bypass the Community Board meeting. In an unusual move Councillor Turner insisted the memo be tabled as a supplementary report to the meeting so that the board could at least have a debate about it.

Staff were summonsed to appear to speak to the paper. Justin Simms and, Angus Smith from the Property Section and Peter Bawden from Roading were asked to explain their actions. Councillor Turner asked Roading Engineer Peter Bawden when the report was finalised.

“It was finalised after the final survey just before Christmas”.

That raised the question of the urgency. Why hadn't the report been presented earlier to the Community Board? Questions were also raised about why so much land needed to be taken. It appeared that had come down to survey cost. It seemed easier to have a straight line survey rather than pegging a boundary with the road in an area that the staff felt was dangerous.

In the end the Community Board did make a statement/recommendation to the full council on the situation. They sought some higher environmental protection for the area and wanted the Reserve Management Committee to still have some involvement with the area. The Board were also concerned that more land was being taken than necessary for the legal roadway.

COLLETT'S CORNER FUNDING ATTAINED

The equity funding campaign to begin the Collett's Corner project has reached its minimum fundraising goal of $300,000. Founder Camia Young shared that information at the Banks Peninsula Community Board meeting on March 4th. This means the Collett's Corner project can proceed to the next stage.

Camia explained, "Money raised to date will pay for the Resource Consent applications and required for apartment sales on the upper two levels for sale."

The equity campaign remains open until 7pm March 21st. The maximum funds being sought are $2,000,000. There is still time to be a part of this project if you choose.

The project is the first of its kind in the world. Rather than a couple of wealthy people owning the entire building the ownership is distributed by investors purchasing $100 shares in the company. This is property investment for all with the aim of distributing financial returns as well as helping to strengthening the community fabric.

A FEW BOOK REVIEWS AND SOME SNIPPETS – LIFT LIBRARY

Juliet Adams runs this amazing library. Each month she always gets some new books into the library. Here are two of her recent book reviews:

Government for the public good:
The surprising science of large-scale collective action 2018
Max Rashbrooke

“In a time of global political ferment, established ideas are coming under renewed scrutiny. Chief among them is one of the dominant notions of our era: that we should entrust markets with many of the tasks previously carried out by government. In this wide-ranging book, Max Rashbrooke goes beyond anecdote and partisanship, delving deep into the latest research about the sweeping changes made to the public services that shape our collective lives. What he unearths is startling: it challenges established thinking on the effectiveness of market-based reforms and charts a new form of ‘deep’ democracy for the twenty-first century. Refreshing and far-sighted, this stimulating book offers New Zealanders a new way of thinking about government and how it can navigate the turbulent world ahead.” That’s the blurb. Having attended the author’s introductory talk, and then read the book, I strongly recommend you read it. I normally struggle with books on such topics, but Max writes so well that there was only one chapter where I tended to skip bits. He provides detailed examples to back up positive ideas and practices, so you quickly gain a clear understanding of the points being made. And so often subtle humour lightens your mood when dealing with serious issues. My favourite chapters are: #1. Government for the public good: the core argument; #7. Only one earth: protecting the planet; and especially #13: A fluid future: a vision of liquid government – here he shows examples of true democracy – where citizens feature more in participation and deliberation. It’s a large book, requiring strong hands or a strong bookstand – but well worth every physical and mental and emotional energy you put into it.

Unsheltered:

2018 Barbara Kingsolver

This novel is fascinating, in the way in which the author tells two parallel stories, chapter by chapter. Chapter 1 is set in a real city, Vineland, in New Jersey, USA, in 2016, with a family struggling to cope with life. Chapter 2 is in the same place in 1871, when it was a new town established by an entrepreneur, Charles Landis.

Here we meet a science teacher, living in the same house, with family problems too, but more importantly a desire to educate the people about Charles Darwin and his new approaches to science. The chapters swing back and forth between the two groups in time, with the last word of each chapter becoming the title for the next one, creating great linkages. There are many themes in this wonderful book, all in LIFT library. Breakdowns in society; the importance of family and community; poverty not being dealt with by the government; exploitation by the rich; climate disruption; the importance of love and respect; the wisdom of trying not to live beyond one’s means, etc. I would love to quote many passages, but here are just a couple. From 1871: “When men fear the loss of what they know, they will follow any tyrant who promises to restore the old order.” From 2016: “Unsheltered, I live in daylight” – I interpret that to mean “Let’s get out from under our cover and see the real world – and protect its beauty”

Juliet also promotes any activities that tie in with the philosophy of the library. She does this also by hosting film nights. Keep an eye out for her programme. You’ll see it on posters around town.

SPENT GRAINS BREWERY - PADDOCK - PLATE

Brewery

Ever wondered what happens to all those grains used to make Eruption ales after the brewing process has finished? Just one of our 1500 litre brews uses around 200 kg of Canterbury's best malted barley (generally agreed by experts to be the best barley in the world!). The malted barley is added into the tank at the very start of the brewing process. Once the brew is completed the wet barley is left as a waste product from the process, but the grains still retain high levels of nutritional value after the sugars have been extracted. It's simply too good to be thrown away! But the high moisture content of the grains (75%- 80%) makes it impossible to store for more than a few days and its heavy and uneconomic to transport long distances, so we needed to find a local use as close as possible to the brewery.

To find a good home for our spent grains, Eruption has formed a partnership with Otaranui Farm, right here in Lyttelton, run by Jozefa Wylaars and Phil Garing. After our weekly brewing days, you will see Jozefa collecting the hefty bins of spent grains from London Street. These are taken back to the farm 1km away where they are used to feed the Lowline breed of cows and Boer and Saanen goats.

Paddock

The grains are fed to the animals a few times a week to supplement their grass and foraged diets. Jozefa invited us to come and watch at feeding time. The grain is eaten from a variety of troughs and at various locations to ensure it is shared out. The grain is delivered by quad bike and at times the over-enthusiastic goats climb on the quad bike! Jozefa is sure that this is a really healthy and wholesome addition to their diet.

Plate

To complete the full circle, back at Eruption, the restaurant kitchen purchases Jozefa's premium beef mince and our chef has designed the 'Full Circle Burger' to showcase the Otaranui beef. It's now the most popular item on the menu and customers give us great feedback about the taste and quality of the beef. Our customers are really interested to find out about the spent grains story which is totally unique to Lyttelton, and the very short distance between brewery, paddock and plate, surely not matched by anywhere else in the world? In fact Eruption staff like to point out the farm to diners who can see it from the restaurant balcony and deck.

The Otaranui beef is also used on our spicy London Street Fire Pizza and will also feature in new dishes coming this autumn.

Our next challenge is to create something equally as tasty using the Otaranui goat meat. The goats seem to love the grains even more than the cows. We will be launching the Otaranui Full Circle goat meat at a special event at Eruption early April.

Science of Spent Grains

Studies of brewery spent grains have found them to be a rich source of fiber (around 70%), protein (around 20%), essential amino acids and phenolic compounds. The phenolic acids present are hydroxycinnamic acids (ferulic, p-coumaric, and caffeic acids), which have many biofunctions, such as antioxidant, anticarcinogenic, antiatherogenic, and anti-inflammatory activities.

Also many studies have found adding spent grains into animal feed is not only great news for great animal health but it also increases milk yields, increases the fat content of milk and is a great source of amino acids.

Home Delivery – to your Plate.

Otaranui Farm also sells 10kg Beef Boxes; a mixture of all cuts, home delivered every month and goat meat at the farmers market at few times a year. Contact Jozefa@synapsys.co.nz for more information.

WEEDY SATURDAYS OR SUNDAYS!

URUMAU'S WEED TEAM

"The Urumau reserve is looking pretty good - dry but better than ever. If you would like to help with some weeding on the last Sunday afternoon in the month that would be great." said Geoff Knight from the Urumau Reserve Weed Team.

Currently the team is concentrating on Old Man's Beard at the Reserve entrance. Over the past twelve months target weeds have been Sycamore, Old Man's Beard, Fennel and Boneseed. Generally the team targets the recently native planted areas in the Reserve. They do that because they don't want the young plants to be strangled by weeds.

The weed afternoon is always weather dependant. If the weather does not co-operate and it's raining or too soggy the event is cancelled. If you'd like to come along the team meets at the steps to Urumau Reserve at 1pm. Bring along your gloves and secateurs if you have some plus wear sturdy shoes.

The team are also seeking feedback. "Would the last Saturday afternoon of each month suit anyone better, as I'm thinking of giving that a go rather than the Sunday. Let me know if you have an opinion either way?"

Finally a few words of encouragement from Geoff.

"The reserve is really doing well, with the various plantings becoming established and wilding native plants thriving all over the place. The weeding really pays off and is quiet low-key work, but very satisfying particularly as time rolls on and all of the improvement becomes apparent. You learn a bit too. Having a small crew who come along regularly and a larger pool that might only come along once or twice a year is really what we're after", he said.

If you would like to be involved or would just like further information get in touch with the weed team.

Below are a few national facts about weeds you might find interesting:

Source : The War on Pests A Landowners Guide for Banks Peninsula and Kaitorete Spit Published 2009

- There are now about the same number of introduced plant species growing wild in New Zealand as there are native plant species.
- Only 7 species of invasive weeds have been successfully eradicated from New Zealand.
- Over 75% of the weeds of conservation were deliberately introduced to New Zealand as garden plants.

- There are over 24,700 introduced plants growing in gardens and nurseries in New Zealand; 10% of these will naturalise (establish in the wild), and 10% of these will become serious pests.

- Humans = weed problems. People bring in new plants that escape; rubbish is dumped in bush reserves; and the expansion of coastal subdivisions and lifestyle blocks exacerbates the spread of pests.
- If left uncontrolled, pest problems expand exponentially. It costs $3 per hectare per year to control young wilding pines, compared to $1500 for 25 year old trees.

DIAMOND HARBOUR RECREATION LAWN

STORY BY CHATS DUNCAN

Entrepreneur Benny Main paused and surveyed the decision makers. Years of professional hustling had taught him a thing or three. Had they all swallowed his pitch? No, the lady on the right still looked uncertain. 'Just to clarify my proposal,' he said, 'I'll run over the main points again, to make sure you all fully understand,' focussing his attention directly on the doubtful, female treasurer. Benny always did his homework. 'The proposed Diamond Harbour Recreation Lawn will quickly establish itself as the primary source of income for the community. Forget those ineffective sausage sizzles and second-hand junk sales, those days are over, believe me.'

'Locals will pay a small annual membership fee, that entitles them to a free first coffee or tea at the Preserve cafe each time they play; already agreed by the owners. The Recreation Lawn will utilise the Domain grounds. I have already gained outline approval from the council. The layout itself will resemble a nine-hole miniature golf course. But the holes will be slightly larger to accommodate soft, mini-sized, tennis balls. Golf putters will be the only clubs used. As there will only be one club, it will be light to carry around and ensure everyone gets to hit the ball. Softer balls will also ensure that no one gets struck by a hard golf ball. Occupational Health and Safety have approved the concept.' The words flowed effortlessly, almost by themselves, thought Benny.

'On completion of their game, the players will return their clubs and ball to the Preserve or lose their deposit. Please remember, the Domain will not be churned up by golf trolley wheels or, heaven forbid golf carts! Visitors to this paradise will enjoy a leisurely paced stroll around the park, taking in the fresh air while appreciating the magnificent views.' Now for the close. 'You will see, in my proposal information pack the incredible financial returns for a very modest outlay.' The treasurer was smiling. Yea! 'Oh, yes, I should also mention, that anyone can play our unique form of golf, no previous experience is necessary. In your folders, you will find samples of advertising flyers with costs, all ready to order. Are there any questions, please?' Benny watched their body language, they were all onboard.

'And you say the Preserve cafe has already embraced your concept?' The Diamond Harbour Community Association President queried? Benny smiled, 'absolutely, they have grasped the idea and can't wait for the go-ahead.' The President thought this is just what the community needs; a regular income with little outlay and effort. Their members were ageing and less able to do what they used to. Management of the scheme was in the hands of the Preserve, who would gain the rewards from the extra hospitality business it generated, plus a small percentage. The President, a retired banker, asked Benny to leave them to allow a private deciding vote.

Benny retreated to the Preserve cafe and ordered a beer. All in all, not a bad day's work, he thought. The putters and miniature tennis balls were all supplied free to him; in exchange for advertising the supply company's name. Naturally, this little arrangement was entirely confidential. Benny would invoice the community for the clubs and balls, at a fair price, plus collecting his ongoing percentage of the green fees.

Six weeks later, found Benny preparing to move on to fresh fields. The committee had accepted his proposition. His delivery had won them over, and everything was up and running well. The Rec, as the locals preferred to call it, had been a huge success and brought in the dollars he knew it would. But what other challenges existed in this little haven? He had grown fond of Diamond Harbour. The locals were friendly, and he was seen by many as their saviour.

He sat on the jetty watching the activity on the harbour. His partner from Auckland loved it down here and wanted to relocate. Benny was pleased he had asked her to come south to see his work in progress. The owners of the Preserve cafe had offered her a job, as their young chef was returning to Australia. But how could he earn a living? He had ideas of adding nighttime play, with beautiful fairy light fountains. But at best that would only be a one-off sale; he couldn't justify any ongoing commissions. Sighing, he started up the road towards the village, thinking this hill climb is a pain in the butt. If only? Umm, yes, it could be a money spinner. A ski type chair lift, maybe with an optional flying fox descent? Benny smiled, he was in business. Now what was the name of that engineer, who owed him a favour, Charlie somebody?

To mark the opening of Sumner Road Lyttelton and Sumner Libraries are working together for a joint exhibiton. Visit both libraries for a slightly different story about the history of the road from past to present. As an added bonus the library is producing a bookmark that you can get stamped at either library with a special stamp to mark the occasion. Both libraries have discovered some really interesting stories about the original design and construction of the road, as well as historic use, and soem excellent images.

It's hoped you'll take the opportunity to re-discover the road, visit the libraries and connect with the villages of Sumner and Lyttelton just like you used to.

Decision-making for the Wellbeing Budget

Monday 1 April 7 – 9pm

at Environment Canterbury

(car park access off St Asaph St)

We will gather at 7pm for light refreshments provided by koha from CCC

The Forum will start promptly at 7.30pm

New Zealand is about to implement its first Wellbeing Budget in May, leading the world.

Adie Gray will talk about the work being done by Statistics NZ. This work has links to the Treasury's Living Standards Framework and the CDHB Canterbury Wellbeing Index.

Adie's particular role in the project is as Māori Partnership and Design Lead, tasked with ensuring Te Ao Māori perspectives are not tokenistic and are meaningfully applied within the project.

Adie will present for around 30 minutes on Challenging tokenism toward decision-making for Wellbeing. Participants will then break into the four wellbeings (social, environmental, cultural and economic) and workshop responses - including talk about who is at the table in deciding what wellbeing looks like. Adie will be available during the discussions.

We note that these developments are alongside the impending return of a primary purpose for local government to uphold the four wellbeings and hope there will be an update on this aspect by the time of the Forum

For more background you can download your own digital copy of Wellbeing Economics: The Capabilities Approach to Prosperity, written by Paul Dalziel, Caroline Saunders, and Joe Saunders - click here.
