Information Centre Update June

Excellent news we are reopening! The next two weekends and full time from the beginning of July will see all our amazing volunteers come back to the centre. All are more than ready to share their knowledge and enthusiasm for the harbour with any visitors that pass through our doors. Worries were that there were few people around, but campervans are beginning to roll through Port and with the school holidays I feel that there will be a few more people exploring through the tunnel and across the hills.

Level 1 has allowed all businesses to reopen but the drop in the number of international visitors to our shore has greatly affected tourist businesses. The long-awaited return of the large cruise ships to the harbour has clearly been delayed and despite the industries enthusiasm and optimism it is unlikely that international borders will allow for this kind of travel for a while. The Cruise industry however is keen to look at the New Zealand market and begin to offer trips round our own islands as a different way to explore.

Our Website offers a great deal of information on the businesses and activities within the harbour however alongside this we are currently developing a Lyttelton Harbour Brochure. This is intended to share our Harbour's main attributes - Harbour, Hills and Heritage – to a wider audience. An exciting and large project we hope to complete by spring.

Exploring and supporting businesses locally has never been so important. In the upcoming school holidays, some may head to the ski slopes, to enjoy a quieter experience than other years. Others may stay in town and attend Kids fest events; these are a great way to entertain the children and support so many different Christchurch business. www.kidsfest.co.nz. It could be you stay at home or you still have to work, you may have a break away to the Bach or go to visit to family or friends, whatever you decide to do just remember to be safe and warm. This time of year, the weather is changeable and roads slippery, Haere tuu atu, hoki tuu mai – go well, safe trip.

Christchurch dog owners

Will have an extra month to pay their dog registration fees this year.

Residents with responsible dog owner status normally have to pay their discounted dog registration fees by the end of June but the Christchurch City Council has extended the payment deadline until 31 July.

Other dog owners have also been given a payment extension, until 31 August.

"We know it's been a challenging few months for people so we want to give them some extra time to pay their dog registration fees," says Council Animal Services Manager Mark Vincent.

Dog registration forms are being sent out this week. If dog owners do not receive a form by Friday 19 June, they should contact the Council on 03 941-8999.

"It is really important to register your dog because if it goes missing or runs away and we find it, we have an accurate record of who the dog belongs to and where it lives," Mr Vincent says.

Christchurch is home to more than 38,000 dogs.

Dog registration fees help pay for dog bite prevention education programmes, dog parks, free dog microchipping and other animal management services throughout the city.

Share Your Views on Councils Revised Budget

Mayor explains how Covid-19 has impacted on the councils finances.

The world has changed dramatically over the past few months and we have all been affected in some shape or form by the COVID-19 pandemic. Many businesses and individuals have been forced to rethink their plans and finances as the impacts of the lockdown, the border closures and the worldwide recession have hit home.

A balancing act

Against this backdrop we've reworked our Draft Annual Plan, looking at how we can support our city's recovery, at the same time as tightening our belt so as not to put too much pressure on our residents and businesses. Getting that balance right is the challenge of this budget. When we went out with our original Draft Annual Plan in February, we proposed an average residential rate rise of 2.74 per cent and an overall increase of 4.65 per cent. The recommended budget option trims the average residential increase to 1.81 per cent and the overall rise to 3.5 per cent.

If you own an average-valued house ($508,000) the amount you would pay each week for Council services (such as water, wastewater, libraries, parks & roading) and community facilities would increase from $53.54 a week to $54.51.

Proposed Changes.

- We have capped spending on capital projects at $400m, plus $118m for the Metro Sports Facility and the Multi-Use Arena. We have also reduced operational spending by $23m and increased borrowing by $102m over two years.
- We also propose introducing excess water usage charges for the top 20 per cent of residential users and resuming the use of glyphosate-based weedkillers, with appropriate precautions in place.

- We also want to give a one-off $360,000 boost to the Strengthening Communities Fund so we can help community organisations cope with the challenges of the COVID-19 crisis.
- In addition to the recommended budget option, we are consulting on two other budget options with proposed rate increases of 5.5 per cent and 4.65 per cent, respectively. All the options include the same savings on operational expenditure and the same spending on capital. Where they differ is on the scale of borrowing.

Why zero isn't an option

Some will question why we have not put forward a zero per cent rate increase option. If it were achievable in the context of an Annual Plan change it would be an option. But it isn't possible.

It is worth remembering we would have got to zero, if we were starting from where we were in February. Then, we would have needed savings of about $24m. But because of the losses I've highlighted, we would now have to find more than $40m in savings, which would severely impact on some of the core services we provide and a significant number of the projects we are able to deliver.

We would need to shut some facilities or significantly cut back their hours, reduce or stop services, and cut many of our capital projects.

Remember, it requires about $100m of capital expenditure savings to reduce rates by 1 per cent. So, people who say just cut the stadium, would not even meet the 3.5 per cent. And there is nothing on budget for the stadium next year either. I personally think the multi-use arena is essential. Businesses have invested in the central city with the promise that was made with the blueprint, and we have an obligation to fulfil this.

If we were to slash more work from our capital programme, the knock-on effect for our economy and our recovery would be huge.

The Council is a significant purchaser of goods and services from local businesses and provides an important pipeline of work for construction and contracting companies, including sub-contractors. If we literally turn the tap off, it will have a ripple effect that will lead to more job losses and significant economic hardship for the city.

It would also put us out of step with the Government's approach to the post-COVID recovery, which is to support employment by continuing to build infrastructure. Much of what we do is co-funded by Government agencies, for example, maintenance and renewal of roads.

More work to be done

Another reason we have not included a zero per cent rate increase option is that the savings required would have a major impact on significant levels of service. Those levels were set in the 2018-28 Long Term Plan (LTP) and cannot be changed without triggering an amendment to the LTP.

We are due to adopt a new LTP next year. That's when we can review all our levels of service and do a lot more belt-tightening if that is what our communities want us to do.

We have a short window to receive your feedback and would welcome your practical suggestions for how we can support our city's recovery and keep the pressure off rates increases, while still delivering the required levels of service.

In the meantime, the organisation will continue to look for savings and ways of reducing the costs that impact on rates.

How to give feedback

Public consultation on the revised Draft Annual Plan 2020-21 is open until Monday 29 June at 5pm.

Submissions can be made online at Have Your Say, via email or letter, or by filling out a form available at all Council service centres or libraries.

Manaaki Mai

Manaaki Mai is a beautiful 50acre piece of land nestled below the ridge that overlooks Purau bay. Within it you will find native bush walks surrounding the Waituturi stream, orchards, an olive grove, bird songs aplenty and the occasional weta hidden within kanuka stumps. Amongst this natural wilderness nestles rustic and boutique accommodation and a variety of perfect places for a small special gathering. As Andrea is a wedding celebrant why not make the gathering a wedding?

Paul and Andrea Dahl were not even looking to buy land let alone an accommodation business until one fateful day when they took a walk over the land and without even seeing the house, they knew they wanted to become kaitiaki (guardians) to this slice of paradise in Lyttelton Harbour.

“Manaaki whenua,

Manaaki taangata,

Haere whakamua”

Care for the land, care for the people, go forward.

This whakatauki (Maori proverb) embodies all Paul and Andrea wish to achieve on their journey. The plan is to regenerate the native bush, allow the previously farmed land to regrow, control predators and uncover the gardens and orchards that were lovingly planted but had become overgrown. In doing all this, they work closely with the ‘Whaka Ora’ (healthy harbour) team and neighbours to strengthen the land to keep out pests, and non-natives and prevent run off from the land entering the harbour. Alongside this they are seed gathering the native harbour species in order to share around other areas of the harbour that are to be replanted. They really are at the start of a long and rewarding journey.

The orchards and olive grove were well established and have produced a plentiful harvest. Olives have been pressed on site – Manaaki Mai olive oil! And fruits have been shared with friends and neighbours reinforcing their commitment to caring for the people through caring for the land. Connections with the Orton Bradley Bush Farm School have given great joy as children are encouraged to connect with nature through exploring the bush, listening to bird song and lighting fires to cook on.

In talking to both Andrea and Paul it is so clear that the ecology and natural environment and sharing it with others is what is important to them throughout all their business. Accommodation is at the heart with a stunning bush rustic retreat and outdoor bath as well as a two-bedroom lodge with full amenities they offer bed and breakfast if you really wish to switch off. You can choose your activities from bush tracks around the land or the beach is just down the hill however you could just curl up on a chair in the bush and listen to the birds. it really is perfect for a peaceful escape from modern life.

The weddings allow further opportunity to share the environment with others. Specially crafted plateaus around the farm maximise the natural setting and allow couples to choose where to hold their ceremony. Andrea speaks passionately about the how the wedding packages came about.

"You don't have to spend a fortune to have a beautiful wedding; the packages we have created are small which fits with our space and are designed to create a flexible, easy and relaxing day for bride, groom and others if they choose". As Andrea is the celebrant, she enjoys working with couples to ensure their service is what they want are comfortable in its undertaking.

Have a look at their website www.manaakimai.co.nz or for full details see under accommodation in The Directory at the back of The Review.

As we travel less and explore local, I encourage you all to see what Manaaki Mai has to offer, this could be the perfect place for that night away, or small wedding, it really is only a ferry ride away.

The Russians are coming! - Not quite

Had an anxious call from Bill (not his real name) who recently moved to Lyttelton from the old country. He was concerned about all the foreign Russian seafarers on the streets.

"They shouldn't be allowed off their ships," he declared.

In these Covid-19 times, Bill's anxiousness is only natural.

But there are a few facts that may help to ease his concerns:

They are not all Russians - a number are Ukrainian (an important distinction to them).

They are not all men - there are a few women too.

They are not seafarers (a term generally reserved for those who work on cargo ships) - they are 'Fishers' (Fishermen): those who work on deep sea trawlers or fishing boats.

They are not 'foreigners' - while the crews hail from foreign climes, they actually work for New Zealand companies - one with its office here in port - and as employees of NZ companies are covered by NZ labour laws and are subject to the same Covid-19 level restrictions. If we can go to the supermarket or take a walk, they have the same right to do so, just as any other NZ worker.

They are not recently arrived - many have worked on trawlers out of Lyttelton for years (a lot longer than Bill has been here).

Their ships are not from overseas, Lyttelton is their home port - it is written on the side of the ship and the ship flies a New Zealand flag.

They have not sailed from a foreign port - they left Lyttelton to fish and are returning to Lyttelton after months at sea.

Currently, there are four of these factory trawlers in port with crews of about 80 on each. That's a lot of 'Russians' in town. Normally, many would head home about this time of year when their ships do a crew change for the winter fishing season. This year they can't due to Covid-19 border restrictions.

I hope Bill will appreciate their plight. They do not want to make him anxious. They just want to go home to their wives and kids after months at sea. But for now, Lyttelton will be their home for bit longer than expected, before having to head back out to sea - there will be no crew change this year.

Recycling

Our Yellow Bins

It's really hard to keep up to date with what does or does not get recycled by the Christchurch City Council. If you are fortunate enough to have a smart phone you can download the Christchurch City Council App and you'll get the latest information about what can go in your bin and when the bin will be collected.

As at June 2020 this is what is listed as collectable:

- Aerosol, air freshener and deodorant spray cans.
- Books both hard cover and soft cover and magazines. You are requested to remove the hardcover.
- Cardboard boxes, egg containers, greeting cards
- All clean glass bottles and jars (no lids)
- All food and drink metal and aluminium cans
- Clean Paper- newspapers, phone books, brochures, envelopes, envelopes with plastic windows
- Plastic bottles and containers with the numbers 1,2 and 5. (no lids)

If you aren't sure of the numbers on the bottom of plastic containers the attached poster lists the plastic numbering code and gives examples of products made from each type of plastic. What is collected depends on the ability of people to repurpose the plastic into something else.

These are the only clean plastic containers that are acceptable in your yellow bin for recycling now.

Number 1 – This type of plastic is generally clear and shatterproof. It is used to make firm drink bottles, carpet and clothing fibre. The plastic is made into pellets and can be recycled at least ten times over.

Number 2 – This is a high-density plastic. It's used for Ice-cream and milk containers and laundry detergent/soap bottles.

Number 5 – Again another firm plastic. Used for yoghurt/ dip containers, microwave dishes, garden furniture, straws.

Steadfast – Good Result

Leasing Proposal on Hold

Last month the Christchurch City Council notified residents that they were considering leasing and then gifting a series of former naval buildings at Steadfast to the Sea Cadet Association of New Zealand. Comments were sought on the proposal.

After feedback from the Cass Bay Residents Association, Cass Bay Reserve Management Committee and the wider public the Council' leasing team under the direction from the Parks Unit has decided to put this idea on hold for the time being.

Feedback from a wide variety of people including former Mayor Noeline Allan highlighted that Steadfast was bought by the former Banks Peninsula District Council for the people of Cass Bay for community and recreational purposes. Leasing or gifting the site to the Sea Cadet Association of New Zealand before the community had a say on how Steadfast would benefit community needs was putting the cart before the horse.

As a result, the City Council Parks Unit has now agreed to preparing a Development Plan for the whole of the HMNZ Steadfast site. This work will begin in July.

City Council Leasing consultant Felix Dawson confirmed this in writing.

1. The Council will prepare a development plan for HMNZ Steadfast as a whole
2. The plan will include a concept plan for the site and a prioritised programme of works.
3. The Council's Parks Unit team will be seeking community input on site values and issues to guide the preparation of the plan, starting in July (exact date to be confirmed).
4. The Parks team will consult with the Cass Bay Residents Association as an initial first step.
5. The plan will provide sufficient detail to seek development funding and to guide future works.
6. Once a draft plan has been prepared it will be put out for public consultation before being reported to the Te Pātaka o Rākaihautū/Banks Peninsula Community Board for final approval.
7. The process outlined above will include consideration of the proposal to lease the old navy buildings to TS Godley
8. The report proposing consideration of the lease will be put on hold while we are working through the process. This includes a request for submissions on the proposal publicly notified on 16/5/2020

This is good news for the residents of Cass Bay. At long last Steadfast will not be a site behind locked gates and a plan will be created to enable safe access to the grounds and linkages to bush tracks in the hills above.

Get ready for Matariki to take a starring role in mid-winter family events around Christchurch.

Matariki is the Māori name for the cluster of stars also known as the Pleiades. It disappears for about 28 days during mid-winter and when it reappears on the horizon – this year from 13 to 16 July – the Māori New Year begins.

Matariki is a time for whānau and friends to come together to reflect on the past year, remember those who have passed away, and prepare for the seasons ahead.

Christchurch's annual children's festival KidsFest, held in the winter school holidays from Saturday 4 July until Sunday 19 July, has several Matariki-themed events this year.

Christchurch City Council Manager of Events and Arts Lucy Blackmore says Māori New Year is becoming more widely celebrated each year and it's a great fit with KidsFest.

"We're all about families having fun and learning together so having some Matariki events in our line-up is wonderful and a great way to teach children about the importance of reflecting, celebrating together and moving forward."

Guided lantern-lit KidsFest Matariki Night Walks beside the Styx River on Saturday 11 July and Saturday 18 July are fully booked but families can join a Nightlife Lantern Walk through Pūtarīngamotu/Riccarton Bush and discover some of the wildlife that only comes out at night. The self-guided trail runs every evening of KidsFest between 5.30pm and 7.30pm and a trail guide will be available to print off from 4 July from KidsFest in Parks.

The Council's Parks team is also hosting Matariki planting events during KidsFest, including two at the Rongoā Garden on Marshlands Rd on Sunday 12 July. They are an opportunity to join rongoā (traditional healing) practitioners as they celebrate the Māori New Year with a karakia and tree planting to symbolise new beginnings.

The dawn planting will be followed by a hui to share wishes for the year to come, and a second family-friendly planting event (an accredited Children's University event) will be held at 10am at the same location.

Or join neighbours, friends and Council park rangers for a Matariki planting experience at the new West Broken Run Reserve in Wigram on Friday 17 July at 10am.

The KidsFest Matariki Discovery Trail offers free, self-guided trails for children to try at Halswell Quarry Park, Ferrymead Park, The Botanic Gardens and 303 Radcliffe Road Reserve throughout the festival.

The aim of the trail is to find each of the nine stars and there are fun facts and activities at each stage.

Christchurch City Libraries is celebrating Te Iwa o Matariki – the nine stars of Matariki – digitally this year with weekly Matariki posts and stories, songs and craft activities on the libraries' Facebook page.

A Matariki workshop Wananga Ao Te Mārama will be held by rongoā practitioners Maire and Aperehama Kipa on Saturday 11 July from 1.30pm to 3.30pm in the Ngā Purapura / Activity Room, Level One, Turanga Central Library.

People can write in and describe what Matariki means to them and have it published on the Canterbury Stories digital heritage site, from 13 July onwards.

The COVID-19 lockdown and uncertainty around public gatherings meant the libraries weren't able to plan their usual extensive programme of Matariki events and family activities this year.

A community Matariki event that is going ahead this year is Matariki in the Zone at Avebury Park in Richmond on Sunday 19 July. From Monday 20 July to Friday 26 July Light Site lighting displays will be left in the area for people to enjoy at night time.

Now, this is the tough stuff. Despite our best intentions and even efforts, we can still end up with the wrong people on board for various reasons. How do you tackle the difficult task of 'sacking' a board member? After all, board members are 'just volunteers'. How do you actually get the result you need, but also still act with some grace? How can succession planning actually happen in practice in small organisations, and how do you deal with 'founder syndrome' when founders have out-lasted their value for the organisation and may even be holding it back? This session will be led by Garth Nowland-Foreman, an experienced trainer and facilitator, and not-for-profit governance expert. Garth is a director of LEAD Centre for Not-for-Profit Governance & Leadership.

We approved a plan to install a no stopping restriction on Wainui Main Road at the Barrys Bay Boat Ramp, following a request from the French Farm Aquatic Club to improve access to the facility. We also approved funding for a community project run by the Diamond Harbour Youth and Community Trust from our Discretionary Response Fund.

Kimi's Teddy Tales

Hello people, bears and everyfluffy,

Last week has been very exciting for me. After the change to Alert Level 1 not only humans are allowed to socialise again. Also bears and other fluffies can now meet up without social distancing, and we could finally hug our new cuddly friends Oscar and Fido. You might remember that I first spotted the teddy and his pet dog in their house on Randolph Terrace, and we communicated via cut-outs at their window and cards in their letterbox. And now the big day had come!

My siblings and I spent an entire day with them and had our picnic. But first we went to my home and had coffee and breakfast. Fido was not very happy with our offerings. He rightly claimed he was not a honey bear but a dog and had different dietary requirements, so we served him a pack of salami. This warmed him and Oscar up to the many fluffies surrounding them. They are not used to such big crowds of stuffed animals.

Despite an adoption stop many years ago, my family is still growing because my Mum's heart melts when cute animals in the shops ask her to rescue them. My international friends also keep sending me fluffies every now and then. That's how my grizzly brother Bernhard and Bilbo, a heavyweight sheep, moved in, coming from Switzerland and the UK. Those two accompany me on many outings and travels and have been at Oscar and Fido's letterbox with me quite a few times.

It was very hard to select the animals for our picnic, as it was impossible to take them all. And it became clear that the Timeball Station was not the ideal place because my Mum, despite being a great sportswoman, was not willing to carry two huge bags full of fluffies, a bag with food, a bag with the cameras and a big blanket up the hill. Instead she took us by car to the Allandale Reserve at the end of the harbour, and there we had sandwiches, biscuits, sweets and apples in the warm winter sunshine until someone in Governor's Bay started a big fire and the stink wafted down to our idyllic picnic spot. We went back home and kept on chatting there. When we dropped off Oscar and Fido back home in the evening, they were quite exhausted from this exciting day and fell straight into their beds.

I have a lot of virtual friends all over the world, and, of course, we communicate on social media. But when we could still travel, I met up with quite a few of them, and some have visited me in New Zealand, and I showed them the highlights of Christchurch and Lyttelton. We have become close friends with several fluffies and even stay at their houses when we are in Europe. With our best friends we don't communicate online only but also write postcards and send parcels. But this has become very difficult since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic and the dramatic reduction in flights.

Wondering how I could spread some joy among my mates, I wrote about 30 postcards and threw them into the mailbox in front of the Lyttelton Pharmacy on 17 April. But so far only two thirds of them have arrived: the first one on 2 May in Canada, the second one on 6 May in Australia, the third one on 18 May in the UK, and it took until 30 May for the first three cards to arrive at their destinations in Germany. It has been impossible to send parcels with non-essential content under level 2 – but when I finally could ship one to the UK, it overtook most postcards. However, I am still waiting for a parcel from this one friend to arrive here. No idea where it is stuck, as we have received a parcel, also from the UK, many weeks ago although it had been posted only a few days before the missing one.

What a joy it was to find this parcel sitting in front of the door! It contained a LOT of chocolate and sweets, all purchased for next to nothing after Easter. They really sell Easter bunnies and big Easter eggs for 50 pence in the UK after Easter to get rid of them quickly, and I was so delighted about the parcel because we had not got any chocolate bunnies for Easter. Every time our hu-man had gone to the supermarket in the weeks before Easter, they were sold out. When I send parcels overseas, the postage often costs more than the content, and now NZ Post charge an extra NZ$ 10 per kilo for parcels to the UK and Europe!

When a parcel is delivered to our house, every fluffy is very excited, particularly my chocolate-monster donkey brother Karli. When my Mum is not around, we use our red wagon to transport it into the house, and the big bears have to work hard and heave it up the stairs where we unwrap it and indulge in all the goodies.

As no-one can really travel and mail is so slow, we receive and send fewer cards and parcels right now. But we still enjoy looking at the many quirky mailboxes in Lyttelton on our walks. All these individual constructions are very Kiwi. Some of them are not really weather-proof but look spectacular. Unfortunately, our favourite mailbox in Lyttelton – the miniature version of the original cottage – has been removed. We have spotted it under a tree in the garden, thinking it would deserve a prime spot (somewhere else?) or be displayed in a museum. My rugby-fan brothers Daniel and Whitelock love the All-Blacks mailbox on Harmans Road. When we walk past all the open mailboxes I make sure that my sheep brother Bilbo doesn't pull envelopes out of other people's letterboxes. But he understands that mail for humans usually doesn't contain chocolate.

Tomboy

story Chats Duncan

I sat on a bench in Diamond Harbour Memorial Gardens, thinking of my younger days. 'Catch me if you can,' Bonnie shouted at us, running hard towards the trees, her blond hair streaming out behind her. 'Right, you're on!' I yelled, racing after her. Tane took a different route, skirting the woods to the left, knowing that she would exit that way towards home. We were all aged thirteen, free-spirited, bursting with life and energy.

I can't remember if we caught her or not. Maybe Tane Tuhoro did, the rugby's team's awesome winger, who served in Korea as a second lieutenant. So long ago, we were inseparable then, as we all lacked siblings. I was in Korea too, Sub-Lieutenant Andrew Mann, RNZN, patrolling South Korean waters onboard HMNZS Pukaki, a Loch-class frigate in 1950. In the war, the Americans preferred to call, 'The Forgotten War.' Aged nineteen I had told my friends, 'I'm joining the navy.' 'That's because I'm going into the army,' said Tane laughing. 'Not true,' I replied, 'all the nice girls love a sailor.' Bonnie Tyler, threw back her head and said, 'but I'm not a nice girl, am I?'

A year later, Tane was dead, blown apart by a shell near the 49th parallel. I was at sea when it happened. I tried to ring Bonnie by phone at the next port of call but failed to make contact. My letters were all returned, unanswered. Life took over, and we lost touch with each other. The years rolled on. I continued in the navy, finally taking early retirement as a commander, after serving my last posting as New Zealand's Naval Attache in Washington DC. After the Korean war ended, I visited Tane's grave in Busan, South Korea, at the UN Memorial Cemetery. I found his name inscribed on the Roll of Honour under DIED IN ACTION, a moving experience for me reading that. I compared the injury I suffered during the same period. A broken wrist, from heavy weather at sea, and felt a little embarrassed.

I travelled extensively after that, to Europe and America mostly, visiting friends I'd made during my naval career. I never married, somehow it didn't seem appropriate. I have always been a loner. I read a lot, books have replaced people I guess, and I enjoy my own company. Long hours at sea suited me fine but arriving in port, when everyone else rejoiced, somehow unsettled me. I wanted more sea time. Returning home to New Zealand I decided to look at property for sale in Diamond Harbour to put down roots finally. While shopping in Christchurch, I unexpectedly bumped into Bonnie in the city mall. We were both startled, but despite the years, still recognised each other. I thought she looked rather forlorn and sad. We entered a café and began filling in the gap years. Bonnie, I think reluctantly at first, told me about the agony of losing Tane.

'Andy, after you joined the navy, and Tane the military, I felt lost. You were the brothers I never had. I became depressed in being alone. But on finishing his training, Tane came to Burnham military camp, so I wasn't alone anymore.' Bonnie paused and took a sip of her coffee, avoiding eye contact. 'Eventually,' she said, 'we had a brief affair.'

'So, Tane was your choice?' my words sounded harsh, and I wished I could retract them. 'No, it wasn't like that, Andy, please believe me.

I regret it happened at all because it didn't solve anything for me. I still felt just as lonely.' My head filled with unwelcome images as I watched a single tear roll down Bonnie's cheek. 'I know this might sound stupid, but when it happened, I was thinking of you, not Tane. I thought about the time when I was 13 and got lost in the woods, and you found me.' My mind rushed back 40 years, and I remembered. 'You heard me crying; I was so grateful when you turned up. You hugged me better, and I kissed you full on the lips, do you remember that? That's when I knew we should be together; but you went off to Devonport to enter the navy and left me, never to return.' 'Tane betrayed the bonds of our friendship, our alliance,' I said, 'he broke his leg of our three-legged trilogy.' I felt heartbroken by her revelation. 'Look, there's more,' she turned away from me trying hard to overcome her emotions, 'We had a child, a son,' she whispered. My world imploded. I was stunned. 'You have a son?' 'I had a son, he died in a terrible boating accident, when he was three.' Her words were tragically hollow, coming from deep within her. 'God, I'm so sorry, Bonnie,' my words sounded equally empty.

Disturbing thoughts invaded my consciousness. Did Tane somehow take his own son's life to seek forgiveness for betraying our trust? Ridiculous. Two wrongs never make a right? The questions mounted in my head, seeking answers. Did Tane use his Mana, his supernatural powers, to influence an event after his death? My knowledge of eastern philosophy suggested such things were deemed possible. But I had always remained sceptical, unwilling to agree to the impossible. How could DNA be eradicated; preventing it from passing forward, denying his seed to future generations? Questions followed questions, rushing through my mind, as I sat contemplating this unsettling information.

I was in shock, experiencing a deep feeling of sadness and lost opportunity. Imagining all those lost years we could have spent together. Now I realised why my letters had been returned, unopened. Tane had had charisma. That exceptional gift very few has that draws people towards them. He radiated happiness and goodwill. One felt it was a privilege to be in his company. To lose such a person was tragic, unthinkable, yet it had happened. My chest heaved with emotion at the dreadful waste of his passing and with grief. Bonnie reached out for my hand saying, 'it's okay to let it out, Andy, we both loved him. If he's looking down now, he will give one of his outrageous laughs. How I miss that laugh.' I pulled myself together and said, 'Right then, let's get on with the rest of our lives, shall we?'

Roasted Sesame Winter Slaw

Makes a lot

Ingredients:

- 2 cups each shredded Savoy cabbage, purple cabbage, kale
- 2 cups shredded carrots
- 2 scallions
- 1 cup chopped flat leaf parsley
- ½ cup chopped mint (optional)
- ½ cup sesame seeds

Tahini Cream Dressing with Orange

Dressing:

Makes 1 cup

2 Tbsp. olive oil

3 Tbsp. lemon juice

1 Tbsp. liquid honey (or agave, maple syrup)

1/3 cup tahini

½ cup water

a couple pinches of salt (depending on whether or not your tahini is already salted – season to taste)

zest of 1 organic orange (optional)

Directions:

1. Wash and shred the cabbage and kale as finely as possible (you can use a food processor attachment for this if you like). Place in a large bowl.
2. Shred the carrots either with a food processor or on a box grater. Add to the cabbage.
3. Finely slice the scallions into rings. Wash and chop the parsley. Add to the bowl.
4. Whisk dressing ingredients together. Add water to thin to desired consistency.
5. to pop. Remove from heat immediately. Pour over salad ingredients.
6. Toss everything in the bowl together and serve. Pour dressing on only after the salad has been plated – this way you get some bites with lots of dressing and some without for the best balance. Garnish with extra parsley and sesame seeds. Salad (without dressing) will keep in the fridge for at least 2 days.

Zoom workshop with Brent Barrett

Trapping Possums in Winter

Join us for a Zoom workshop with Brent Barrett from Boffa Miskell on trapping possums.

Over winter, possums head down into the valleys in search of food. Possums are opportunistic omnivores, eating leaves, buds, flowers, fruit/berries, nectar, eggs, chicks and invertebrates. They predate native fauna and also compete with them for food.

Brent will share his expertise on how to best attract and target possums in the backyard setting and provide an update on some innovative technology being trialled on the Port Hills.

Wednesday 22 July 2020 7pm – 8.30pm via Zoom

Please register via Eventfinda. Go to www.eventfinda.co.nz and search for Predator Free Port Hills. Once you register you will be sent full details on how to connect via Zoom. Zoom is an online meeting platform that enables you to attend this session from the comfort of your lounge.

Paragon Dreams

NZ Premiere LAF July 16,17,18 23,24,25 7.30pm

'She always liked to make an entrance, why stop beyond the grave?'

'15 years ago, my mother went missing-presumed dead. Her fiat cinquencento found stranded on the estuary bed.'

Rain soaked, pregnant and alone, Hannah Stirling turns up at an old laundrette in the middle of the night. With nowhere else to go, will old loner Uncle Stan take pity on her?

Set in a gritty port city in the neon lit week of a travelling fair, 'PARAGON DREAMS' is a breath taking contemporary take on the noir thriller genre from hot property on the UK live performance scene, Hester Ulliyart.

Two parts family drama, one part Lynchian mystery, Ulliyart shapeshifts her way through an intricate maze of characters as we follow our heroine Hannah's brave step towards the truth. As we delve deeper into the secrets leading up to her mother's disappearance 15 years ago, we ask ourselves- are some things better left alone, or does the past always catch up with you? Can we ever forgive? Should we?

What is Uncle Stan hiding in the old Laundrette?
Who is the girl from the take-away?
Is there always a price to pay in order to live freely?

A fiercely talented writer/performer, Ulliyart's charismatic character portrayals and rich emotional expanse, combined with her vividly poetic rhythmic script and the beating pulse of Joe Ropers' original soundtrack make for a powerful story of love, deception and survival that will leave you breathless.

Witty, dark and visually beautifully with a haunting soundtrack and an incredible central performance, this is one show that will stay with you in dreams.

'If you ever incline to the belief that good, original story-telling is dead, then an evening in Hester's company is highly recommended. No. Change that to "absolutely imperative"... Here we have that rare thing – a play that is both honestly felt, and truly expressed.'

Yorkshire post

'In many ways, it expresses the pinnacle of what theatre is capable of. It is dynamic and highly theatrical, its storytelling is slick, clever and expertly crafted.

Hester Ulliyart's performance is breath taking. A writer-performer, she carries the production with vigour and works in seamless synergy'

A Younger Theatre

Ulliyart superbly plays Hannah, she's gritty, northern, has dry humour, and her acting is passionate. This play is gripping.
