The Review

Is a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative designed to keep our community informed with what is going on around the harbour. It's also an opportunity to showcase the people and places that other wise would go under the radar. Our community connections ensure we know what's going on in the wider community and can share the news with you all. A big thank you goes out to all the contributors and our funders Rata Foundation and Christchurch City Council Strengthening Communities who enable the hard copies to be printed each edition. Similarly to Wendy Everingham for writing and editing and Jenny-Lee Love for design and production. If you have any local events, news or stories you would like included we'd love to hear from you.

Information Centre February 2021

This is my first update after taking over the Manager position at the Lyttelton Information and Resource Centre. I would like to publicly acknowledge the contribution of Ruth Targus who has worked hard to extend the reach of the centre. She has been an inspiration and will be missed by us all.

I would also like to acknowledge Penny Carnaby for her hard work and dedication as Chair of the board. She has been replaced by Chris Brown, an existing volunteer, who I am confident will be a great asset in his new role.

Chris and I are excited about the future direction of the Information Centre. Not only in terms of promoting Lyttelton to the wider world, but also in building a network of information and resources for our local communities.

We are always keen to hear from you, so please get in touch if you would like to know more about what we do, or maybe you are interested in becoming a volunteer, or have a business and would like information on becoming a member.

As I write this article on the 10th anniversary of the earthquakes, the memorial at Albion Square reminds me of the strength and resilience of our wonderful community. We at the Information Centre would like to acknowledge the continued struggles and angst of that time, but also be thankful for the help and support shown to and by the community.

Please be kind to each other.

Ngā mihi nui
Jane Davies

Volunteers

If you regularly have 2-3 hours to spare and would like to serve your community, please consider joining our amazing group of volunteers.

It gives you an opportunity to meet new people and make new friends, gain further knowledge about events and activities around the harbour, monthly training sessions at various venues in the community and the satisfaction and sense of purpose most volunteers experience.

Whether you can spare time once a week or once a month we would love to hear from you.

I am remembering the dance of the earth that mystic violent waltz its pulse and those who left us at this time and those of us it left behind

Poem Stephen Estall

New Team

Lyttelton Information Centre

It is time for some changes at the Lyttelton Information Centre. Manager Ruth Targus and Chair Penny Carnaby have announced exciting new plans and they have both stepped down. Thanks to Ruth and Penny the organisation is well placed for the next chapter in the Centre's history.

Stepping into new roles at the Information Centre are Chris Brown as Chair and Jane Davies as Manager, two Lyttelton locals who have lots to offer the Centre. Jane has been a volunteer at the centre for a few years, Chris since 2020. They have a good handle on the operations so that gives them a good head start. Interestingly we are chatting on February 22nd, the 10th anniversary of the Christchurch earthquake. The direction of the Information Centre has changed markedly since then and since COVID-19 and now the team find themselves as one of a handful Information Centres left in the area!

Chris Brown has lived in New Zealand for twenty-four years and all that time has been in Lyttelton. He has quite a diverse background very grounded around people. "In my early years I was in the tourism industry working at Air New Zealand." Chris was lucky to be able to retire early from that career and since then he has been actively working in the community in several key community roles.

"I spent a couple of years volunteering in the Drug and Alcohol referral section at the City Mission and then went to volunteer at Victim Support". He's learnt so much about the criminal justice system from this opportunity. "It was my role to help people who had experienced a homicide. I would initially give people emotional support, that would then move to advocacy support and then support throughout the trial". Naturally, this is very emotionally demanding work and as a volunteer the intensity of this work can only be sustained for a limited time. He left that role after a few years.

Moving on he then did something lighter and you may remember him from his time working down at Video Ezy with Mike Yoder!

Currently Chris helps at Nurse Maude and has the privileged role of documenting people's life stories. As an interesting aside he is also called into the Otago Medical School's role play unit where he plays various roles of a mature male patient. Trainee doctors can practice their communication and bedside manner skills on him!

Chris brings all these wonderful skills to the Information Centre. "I'm very much looking forward to the challenge.". The International Yacht race coming to the harbour next year is exciting him and he is already thinking how our wider community will be able to tap into that opportunity.

Manager Jane Davies has also had a long association with Lyttelton. Her family first emigrated from Wales to NZ in 2000. "We lived in Christchurch for nine years then went back to Wales and returned again two years ago. For twenty years I have dreamed of living in this township". That dream came true when the family moved back here two years ago.

Like Chris, Jane has been an active volunteer since returning. Jane's helped at the Lyttelton Recreation Centre, the Information Centre and as a volunteer for Assistance Dogs NZ with their fundraising activities and boarding trainee dogs. Volunteering is important to her and has helped her and the family settle into this special place.

Back in Wales Jane worked as a child & family social worker, the majority of which was spent in a foster care environment supporting foster children and foster carers, plus she has lots of administration and managerial skills that will be key for her new part time role at the Centre.

"I'm really looking forward to getting to know our local business community and getting the word out that the Information Centre is a community resource for all the community. We are not just about visitors", she said. She is keen to also explore new ways to get information to a wider group of people.

"For both of us this is a really exciting new opportunity", said Chris.

The Lyttelton Information Centre has been operational since 1994.

Repair, Remake and Reuse @Lyttelton Library

From Saturday 20 until Saturday 27 March, we are holding a number of events at Lyttelton Library based on the theme of Repair, Remake and Reuse, carrying on from the Sustainable Living week held back in 2019.

We will lead into the week with a stash swap of craft materials, fabric and wool, which will run from Saturday 13 March for a week, and will be followed by the Shed Stash Swap, which will run until Saturday 27. These two stash swaps are a great opportunity for you to clear out your sewing or craft room or your shed, and pass those little treasures that you just haven't got around to using onto someone who will take them and make something wonderful. Or you may find that new hinge for your kitchen cupboard, or a hook for the back of your bathroom door. Remember that the shed stash is limited to small hardware items (bolts, hooks, nails, screws hinges etc) – no timber, no paint, no tools, no grubby items.

Tuesday will see a themed Storytime with Lindsey at the usual time of 11am, and there will be a craft activity for children after school at 3.30, re-using plastic milk bottles to make bird feeders. On Wednesday afternoon from 2pm there will be a drop-in session for people to make Bernie Sanders' mittens, and on Saturday 27 March there will be a second drop-in workshop from 10.30am on the art of sashiko, a form of visible mending.

Thursday evening is set for our community information evening at 7.30pm with a line-up of speakers who will talk briefly on a range of topics related to remaking, repairing and reusing. One speaker will be Jane Hackett from Christchurch City Libraries. Jane, a Lyttelton local, is a trained bookbinder and will talk about her work restoring and repairing books for the library and for private customers.

More information about these events can be found on the library website at christchurchcitylibraries.com, or you can ask at the Lyttelton Library.

Te Ūaka The Lyttelton Museum

Te Ūaka The Lyttelton Museum Fundraising Campaign Launch

Te Ūaka The Lyttelton Museum launches its campaign to build its new Museum in the heart of Lyttelton 10 years on from the Canterbury Earthquakes that saw its collection rescued and prior home demolished. With various fundraising campaigns to be launched throughout the year the Museum and its many supporters are confident they can raise the $9.9million required to build and maintain this fantastic community asset. For community by community.

Warren & Mahoney have worked closely with the Museum and Ngāti Wheke to realise the Community hub where we will actively share, celebrate, and preserve the taonga (treasures) and pakiwaitara (stories) of Ōhinehou / Lyttelton, Whakaraupō / the harbour for the benefit of current and future generations.

The Museum holds 20,000+ artefacts, many of which hold not only local, but national and international significance. There will be dedicated research and exhibition spaces; purpose-built storage spaces that meet international museum industry standards to care for the collection for generations to come. Community spaces, including hireable rooms that offer incredible views of the harbour basin. Education programmes will be developed to engage the younger generation in our stories and heritage.

"We're delighted to be launching the capital fundraising campaign after ten years of challenging but rewarding work to realise the aspiration of the Lyttelton Master plan

"Celebrating Lyttelton's heritage is about creating opportunities for people to connect with the stories and people of the place... The Lyttelton Museum is integral to the local landscape and heritage interpretation".

With support from an amazing team of consultants we will continue to do our utmost to make Te Ūaka a safe and welcoming space for all, to bring the collection back to port, and to share the many unique and fascinating stories of Whakaraupō."

Peter Rough - Vice President of Te Ūaka The Lyttelton Museum

The fundraising strategy is diverse and inclusive in the hope that all our supporters can contribute towards the success of our rebuild and this lasting asset for the Community. From fun grassroots fundraising; to philanthropic naming right opportunities; and in-kind donations when closer to the exciting time of breaking ground. The Lyttelton Museum Historical Society is a registered Charitable Trust so donations made to this project qualify for a 33.3% tax rebate - truly an opportunity to give and get back!

The Rebuild Campaign starts from a strong position thanks to some significant bequests as well as the gift of our excellent site in the heart of Lyttelton from the Christchurch City Council. This pivotal seed funding has provided the ability to engage first-class consultants to ensure the feasibility and success of the project.

This is Ours Now

Project Lyttelton Going Forward

Jacqueline Newbound has had various roles at Project Lyttelton since 2013. She began working on the Food Resilience Project leading a food outreach programme in the local schools and managed the Community Garden for many years. For the past year she's been the Project Lyttelton Manager and she's helping guide the transition of the organisation from the old to the new.

"Last year was quite a transition for the Project Lyttelton team. We have had to define who we were again." Under Jacqueline's leadership each key project focused on what needed to happen to make the project "hum" and improve the wellbeing of the people. The Library of Tools and Things moved seamlessly to The Puna Auaha and the Lyttelton Recreation Centre is now running well under the leadership of a newly formed community trust. The core projects within Project Lyttelton remain – Lyttelton Farmers Market, Lyttelton Community Garden, The Garage Sale and the Timebank.

With the core projects stable and working well the Project Lyttelton Board are focusing on what a "Climate Friendly Project Lyttelton" looks like. This work is going to focus on all the existing projects. What can each of the projects do to be more sustainable and climate friendly? Interesting questions are emerging. "It's our aim that as we find the answers to these questions, then we can share information/findings with the whole community as we all embark on our Carbon Zero journey".

Questions that are popping up include: How should we operate to achieve these goals? What do we need to do? How to we measure our progress?

"Our team has been having interesting discussions with the Lyttelton Port Company Sustainability team". LPC is having the same discussions in their organisation. Can the two organisations help each other as they grapple with the same questions?

Jacqueline says, "We won't know the answers to these questions until our people and organisation actually Walk the Talk." A new team has been set up within Project Lyttelton to drive the process and that includes working Pat Scott who is brimming with ideas having recently moved from Dunedin to Lyttelton.

Jacqueline feels the team are still following in Margaret Jefferies footsteps, but they have a new confidence now believing they can take Project Lyttelton and make it theirs.

Adding to Jacqueline's transition to the Manager and her years of work around the harbour she has a great appreciation of what Lyttelton Harbour has to offer. In fact, now her family have recently moved to Cass Bay, and they have been enjoying getting into harbour life since Christmas. "My entire family are really enjoying living over here and it feels like a new lease of life for all of us", she said. Even the family dog Tama has fitted in easily. "He's now the second Beagle in the Bay!"

Living in a real community is what they have all wanted for some time. "I love how I can walk into Lyttelton and do all the shopping locally. My entire family is doing things locally joining Naval Point Yacht Club, the Fire Brigade, Farmers Market and Community Garden teams. My only disappointment here is the lack of bus services into Lyttelton/ Christchurch for my teenage children. The service which is so infrequent at Cass Bay means we have to rely on the car too much."

Key Bits and Pieces - City Council Draft Long-Term Plan.

The Review Team have had a quick scan of the draft Long-Term Plan proposed by the City Council and media releases issued by Council. These are the items we think you might be most interested in.

1. Lyttelton Council Service Desk may Close

Mrs Baxendale says the Council is also proposing to close two of the service desks it operates because more residents are now opting to use online or phone services to make payments to the Council.

"Although we still have high demand at 10 of our 12 service desk locations – in particular ones that include New Zealand Post services – the service desks at Akaroa and Lyttelton have minimal transactions. We are therefore proposing to close these service desks. All other existing services at these locations, such as the library services at Lyttelton, will remain unchanged," Mrs Baxendale says.

2. Reduction in hours and programmes at Christchurch Art Gallery Te Puna o Waiwhetū

At Christchurch Art Gallery Te Puna o Waiwhetū, where the COVID-19 border closures has impacted on overseas visitor numbers, the Council is proposing to reduce the Gallery's weekly Wednesday late night opening hours to one late Wednesday a month. It is also proposing a 25 per cent reduction in the programmes the gallery offers to the public and school groups.

3. Excess water use charges

Christchurch City Council is proposing charging households that regularly use large amounts of water in an effort to make the service fairer and to curb extreme demand over summer.

The excess water use charge – to be put forward for public feedback under the Council's Draft Long-Term Plan 2021-31 – would apply to any household that uses on average more than 700 litres a day – roughly equivalent to taking seven baths.

4. Heritage Targeted Rate

We're proposing to introduce a heritage targeted rate instead of including all funding for heritage building in the general rate," says Mayor Lianne Dalziel.

"This targeted rate will provide a clear picture of the portion of your rates that you already pay towards specific heritage projects in the city. We're proposing that every ratepayer will pay this rate and it will be calculated as a number of cents per dollar of capital value."

The central city heritage buildings that would be funded through the targeted rate include:

- Canterbury Provincial Council Buildings: The targeted rate will help fund $20 million of capital expenditure in the 2027/28 year.
- Old Municipal Chambers (previously known as Our City Ō-Tautahi): The targeted rate will help fund up to $8.6 million in capital funding ($2.6 million in 2021/22 and $6 million in 2022/23). This funding will be transferred to the City of Christchurch Trust – a charitable trust set up by private company Box 112. Box 112 will undertake the strengthening and refurbishment of the building at the direction of the Trust.
- Robert McDougall Art Gallery: The targeted rate will help to fund $13.5 million of restoration work in 2022/23 to 2024/25. Depending on the outcome of consultation on this draft plan, this could also include $11.8 million of funding towards base isolation work.
- Canterbury Museum redevelopment: The targeted rate will contribute $23.7 million to the redevelopment in years 2024 to 2027.
- The draft budget includes provision for:
- Core capital spending of $400 million in the first year, $420 million in the second year and $443 million in the third year. For the remaining seven years of the 2021-31 Long Term Plan, the core capital spend will increase to between $500 million and $550 million a year.
- $253 million for the Council's contribution to the development of the Canterbury Multi-Use Arena and the remaining $21.1 million of Council's total contribution of $151.3 million for the Metro Sports Facility.
- $5.6 billion over 10 years to cover the city's operating costs.

To help pay for that spending, the draft budget includes proposals for:

- An average residential rate increase of five per cent for an average-valued house ($508,608) for the 2021/22 financial year – an increase that equates to an extra $142.25 a year or $2.74 a week.

- An average rate increase of 5.91 per cent for commercial property owners and 5.83 per cent for remote rural properties that currently pay land drainage rates.
- The introduction of an excess water use targeted rate for households that use significantly more than the average household.
- Several targeted rates, including one to help fund the restoration of heritage buildings and one specifically for the Arts Centre Te Matatiki Toi Ora.

Public consultation will begin on Friday 12 March and run until Sunday 18 April.

Do you live or work in a Tsunami Evacuation Zone?

Banks Peninsula residents who live or work near waterways or the coast are being encouraged this month to find out if they are in a tsunami evacuation zone.

“Living close to the water means that we do need to be prepared for tsunamis,” says Christchurch City Council Head of Civil Defence and Emergency Management Rob Orchard.

“In the past 18 months we have updated the tsunami evacuation zones to reflect new tsunami modelling that Environment Canterbury, in collaboration with the Christchurch, Selwyn and Waimakariri councils, commissioned GNS to do for Christchurch and Banks Peninsula.

“That modelling indicates significant damage could be caused by flooding from a distant or regional source tsunami. In some scenarios the modelling shows that we could get flooding further inland than previously thought.

“We are working with affected communities to help guide them with their tsunami evacuation planning, but I would really encourage everyone to go onto the Council website and check whether their property or their workplace is in a tsunami evacuation zone,” Mr Orchard says.

The website has an interactive property search function that allows you to see which evacuation zone, if any, your property is in. It also has advice about what steps you should take to prepare for an evacuation.

In the Banks Peninsula there are three main evacuation zones – the red evacuation zone, the orange evacuation zone, and the yellow evacuation zone.

The red tsunami evacuation zone is the area that is most likely to be affected by a tsunami. It includes estuaries, rivers, beaches, and harbours, where a tsunami of any size could cause strong currents and surges in the water.

The orange tsunami evacuation zone covers areas on land that could be flooded in the event of a large tsunami.

The yellow zone is an area that is least likely to be affected by tsunami but could be flooded or isolated in a very large tsunami.

“If you are in a tsunami evacuation zone, it is important that you find out what you need to do in the event of an evacuation and start putting a plan together,” Mr Orchard says.

“Nature is unpredictable, and we could find ourselves in an emergency situation at any time. People need to be prepared for a tsunami event and have a plan of action.”

Mr Orchard says while there is likely to be some warning of a distant or regional source tsunami hitting our coastline, there is likely to be very little warning of a local source tsunami.

“If you’re near the sea or in the red or orange evacuation zones and feel a rolling-motion earthquake for longer than a minute or a strong earthquake that makes it hard to stand up, you need to leave. When the shaking stops, head immediately to the nearest high ground or as far inland as you can, out of the red and orange tsunami evacuation zones,” he says.

Draft budget positions Christchurch strongly for the future

A 10-year $13.1 billion budget that focuses on investing in core infrastructure, delivering key services, and positioning Christchurch and Banks Peninsula for the future will be outlined to Councillors next week. The proposed Draft 2021-31 Long Term Plan takes into account the challenging economic conditions resulting from the COVID-19 pandemic and incorporates savings of $329 million over 10 years in the day-to-day running costs of the city.

If approved by Councillors next week, the Draft 2021-31 Long Term Plan will go out for public consultation in mid-March. Councillors will consider the feedback from the public before agreeing on a final budget in June.

Ten years on: Saving Christchurch's heritage

Several heritage structures owned by the Christchurch City Council were lost in the aftermath of the 2010-11 earthquakes but about 60 of the most-loved sites have been saved. Among the other notable Council-owned structures to be saved are Grubb Cottage (1851) and the relocated Cenotaph in Lyttelton, the Little River Goods Shed and the Service Centre and Gaiety Hall in Akaroa. Grubb Cottage (pictured) was built in 1851 by Scottish shipwright, John Grubb, who travelled to Lyttelton to work on the construction of the town's first wharf. It's located on 62 London Street, Lyttelton, and open on Saturday mornings from 10am to midday for self-guided tours.

People who normally travel across the length of Dyers Pass Road between those times will need to travel via Lyttelton Tunnel or Gebbies Pass instead.

Due to weather or unforeseen issues there may be the odd time when the road will remain open under stop/go traffic management overnight. We will do our best to let you know about this in advance but there may be times when we're not able to do so.

Thanks for your patience and understanding as we continue to work hard to reduce delays and get this project completed so Dyers Pass Road is safer for everyone.

Draft Long-Term Plan prioritises environmental progress.

Environment Canterbury is seeking to step-change environmental progress through its draft Long-Term Plan, Council Chair Jenny Hughey has said.

Council intends to consult ratepayers on two options to increase regional activity across all areas of Environment Canterbury's responsibility. Both options require an increase in rates.

"Council is deliberately seeking to increase activity to accelerate regional outcomes, a message we are hearing strongly from the community," Hughey said.

"As well as community expectations, we must also meet a rising tide of Government expectations, including delivering programmes like the new Essential Freshwater package.

"People's ability to pay has been at the forefront of Council's discussions, and some of our proposed investment is to meet existing commitments, or to attract funding from other sources, enabling us to deliver more, including jobs that support Covid recovery," Hughey said.

Option 1

Of the two options for consultation, Option 1 represents work costing $246.54m – about $46m more than this year. That includes all statutorily required work and provision to accelerate key projects, including public transport and the Government's Essential Freshwater package. Of that, $143m would be rate-funded, with the remainder made up of government grants and Council user-pays charges – an average increase of $136 per rateable property.

Option 2

Option 2 represents work costing $240.19m – about $40m more than this year. It will deliver all statutorily required work, but compared to Option 1, some projects are delayed, scaled back or not proposed to be funded. Of that, $135m would be rate-funded, with the remainder made up of government grants and Council user-pays charges – an average increase of $110 per rateable property.

"We know this is not an insignificant amount of money, but there is also a price to pay if we don't continue to take action. These are big decisions and Council is looking for feedback from the community. It is important we hear your views. We urge the community to be informed, to consider what is important, and to tell Council what you think," Hughey said.

Public consultation will run from 8 March to 11 April. When consultation opens, you'll be able to find out more, including how these options could impact on regional council rates by property, and make a submission, at haveyoursay.ecan.govt.nz/tp.

Consultation will be followed by hearings and council deliberations, with the Long-Term Plan scheduled to be adopted on 17 June.

Story Chats Duncan

Part 2

Mary's turn to leave us came with tears. Declaring a well-hidden love for Malcolm, who didn't drink or smoke pot. Always the odd one. He was extremely embarrassed about the whole thing. Mary, although outstanding in her field of computer science, was less than successful in her personal life. I'd had many a headache trying to untangle Mary's love life. But she has an incredible voice, one to die for. She could hit unbelievably high notes, before making an effortless gear shift to a lower key.

A transition so smooth it left one breathless, her husky voice massaged the soul. Move over Ella.

Mary left behind a heap of broken hearts and her signature in the form of a complete computer meltdown. Bless her! Despite the best efforts of a team of software engineers the entire computer network refused to function. All requests made on the system received the same cryptic message,

FILE IRRETRIEVABLE: PLEASE TRY AGAIN
IN THE YEAR 2030

I laughed for days.

As part of the new order, Harry arranged that each floor, starting with the Director's at the very top, be redecorated and fitted with an extensive range of Italian furniture.

Unfortunately, three weeks after renovations were complete the superb new sprinkler system malfunctioned late one Friday night and completely flooded all seven floors. Next week we played especially well. Kenny our piped systems design engineer gave us a virtuoso performance on tenor sax that would have won praise from Stan Getz.

But all good things come to an end, as they say. They are gone and we are no longer a team. My drums cried out for company. I sat twirling my drumsticks before playing an impromptu drum solo with Connie Kay on a Modern Jazz Quartet CD. But I pounded the bass drum too hard in my frustration. It was suddenly quiet and the past enveloped me in a protective cloak of memories, attempting to shut out the uncertainty of the future.

The ring of the telephone made me jump. Sounding ridiculously loud in the unoccupied basement. Mr Shiny New Director Harry wanted to see me urgently before I left for good. We were the last two people in the building, could I please wait for him?

'Oh yes Harry, I can wait, I want a word with you too.' My senses heightened in anticipation. I looked around me at the boxes of gym equipment, another of Harry's great innovations.

"It'll make a wonderful gymnasium down here, Frank." I tried fixing the years into something tangible. An image I could hold on to and take with me. But the ceiling support columns turned into tombstones...what the hell!

Nothing mattered anymore. I tried another favourite CD. Joe Morello's drum ccompaniment to Brubeck's marvellous chords in Blue Rondo A La Turk. I kept it light and sympathetic to the piano and strictly in sync with Eugene Wright on bass. Paul Desmond's alto sax soaked into my very being.

Then I heard Harry enter the outer office.

'I'm in here Harry,' I called out. He entered carrying his briefcase. I kept playing to the very end, despite sensing his impatience at being kept waiting.

'Well Frank, it's that time.'

'Yep Harry, at last, we've found something we agree on, it's time to go.'

But before I could continue and unload my anger, he cut in.

'Look, Frank, I had something ready to say to you but I've a personal problem, an emergency.' His face seemed softer and his eyes clouded over.

'My wife has had a car accident, my daughter's been hurt, broken leg, facial lacerations, nothing life-threatening, thank God.'

Suddenly everything came to an abrupt halt, the room and my head stopped spinning. My planned words of anger evaporated. This was a defining moment. I had a shocking insight into my own life. Seeing things clearly for the first time. The red mist of anger and frustration were swept aside to reveal this man differently. He was a bearer of ill tidings, not the instigator of them. He was merely imparting the bad news, not the source of it. This little man, who stood in front of me with an outstretched hand, was not to blame. I had it all wrong. People I had never met liked him. No LOVED him.

Water Fun at Busy C's

We shook hands, I conveyed my regrets at his misfortune, promising to catch up for lunch. Then he was gone. Off to the hospital and his other life. A life I did not have outside these walls, and I envied him greatly. I felt my emotions swell inside and burst outwards like the brick dust did at Jack's emergency exit. Only this wasn't brick dust, just tears.

This was complete madness. The man I most hated in the world had pulled me back from the brink of violence. The irony of the situation hit me like a slap in the face and I had to laugh, a crazy laugh of relief and the tears rolled. I wiped my face with the back of my hand and took some deep breaths, enjoying every one of them, courtesy of Harry. Thank you, Harry, most sincerely for returning my sense of well-being and sanity. I walked outside whistling a few bars of Bernie's Tune, I'd find something else and hopefully a better life?

With some lovely hot weather earlier this week recently, we have been taking advantage of such summery days by implementing all our favourite tricks to keep cool here at Busy C's. From running through sprinklers, to hose-showers while watering our garden to making as many mini-swimming pools as we could find, and our friends have been having a wonderful time!

Being enthusiastic participants in exploratory learning and sensory play is ideal for this type of weather, where children can embrace the wet, cool mud or sand in our sandpit. They were able to explore new surroundings as we dampened our playground, expressing wonder and joy through the varied play environment we worked together to design. The voices of our tamariki are always clear and heard as kaiako request input and ideas on how we can enjoy our days together.

Certainly, the challenge of rising temperatures meant we could think and strategize collaboratively in different ways than we usually would. Kaiako and tamariki even came up with the wonderful idea of having stories together whilst in individual paddling pools! It was also inspiring to hear tamariki express care and concern for their environment as they moved their sprinkler around the playground, ensuring that our plants received a well-needed watering.

Being able to create dynamic and responsive environments is just one great way we embrace learning here at Busy C's and we certainly hope everyone enjoyed the sweltering days as much as we did!

Sea Week: Ocean Life - From Skies Above to Watery Depths and Rocks Deep Below - with Paul Broady

Let's take a snapshot of the amazing diversity of ocean life but in a different sort of way. Choose a location way offshore in the Pacific. Plummet vertically down from the high atmosphere, swim through the water to the abyssal depths and then tunnel deep into the sediments and rocks.

What do we find along the way? What strategies for survival has life evolved in the many and varied habitats? How do they all combine in a network of interactions? Is anything left to be explored? Maybe there's quite a lot.
