Lyttelton Information Centre News

I hope you, our readers, are all well. It's been a busy month here at the Information Centre where we've seen a surprising increase in visitor numbers over the last four weekends. Perhaps people are making the most of the last of the summer sun?

If you didn't know, the Information Centre is manned by a group of passionate and dedicated volunteers. They pride themselves on offering up to date news and information on what's happening in our community, and the wonderful array of activities to be found around the harbour. We inform not only visitors, but also our local community who are welcome to visit us at any time. We are open 7 days a week, except for Christmas Day and Boxing Day.

We are always willing to welcome new volunteers, so if you've ever considered volunteering, then why not call in for a no obligation chat? Or phone the Information Centre and leave your name & number and I will call you back. So, if you are passionate about the Harbour, can spare 2-3 hours once a week, fortnight or month, then we would love to hear from you.

In return you can expect full training, a supportive environment, monthly training sessions at our members' premises and the opportunity to make lifelong friendships. Your knowledge of our community will increase, and all our volunteers feel a sense of pride and belonging by being a part of this amazing group.

Finally, as I write this article, we are preparing for our ANZAC Day celebrations. An important time of the year that remembers our military heroes, past and present, whom we should never forget. However, you chose to remember, I hope you enjoyed the long weekend.

Warm wishes, Jane.

St Joseph's Lyttelton

Final Special Announcement

It is with great sadness I announce and invite you (all our Lyttelton community – religious or otherwise) to celebrate the last scheduled Mass for St Joseph's The Worker Parish Lyttelton on Sunday (Pentecost Sunday) 23rd May 2021 at 3.30pm.

Despite the hard efforts of remaining parishioners, the 156-year-old Catholic Parish is being closed by the Catholic Diocese of Christchurch. I'd like to make a special mention of Gerry Doherty, Pauline Goodfellow and Pene Clifford for all their efforts over the years.

Please turn up in huge numbers to celebrate the last St Joseph's The Worker Parish Mass on Sunday May 23rd.

The Parish has arranged for a marquee to be erected on our Holy Site which will cater for 150 people. We also intend to have a high-quality sound system and the marquee set up so that if you are outside in the carpark, you will be able to hear and view the Mass well.

I am looking to arrange for the St Joseph's Bell to be placed by the temporary altar and for all of us to dip our hands for a blessing in one of two of our Holy (original St Joseph's) Fonts salvaged post-earthquakes.

Mass will be celebrated by our last Parish Priest Father Denis Nolan prior to the earthquakes. Father Dan who took over from St Anne's (Woolston) Father Benito, Father Peter and Father Paulo. This is very special as the five priests will be supporting our final Mass.

Then it gets better as Father Jim Considine will at conclusion of our special Mass speak to us all and share his thoughts of his time with St Joseph's. Three other parishioners will also share some memories.

At the end of the Mass and speeches you are all invited to join in a cup of tea/coffee and snacks at the Union Church on Winchester Street. If possible as a past organist I will play their Pipe Organ with a bit of a musical journey of St Joseph's.

Then we will head to The Top Club for drinks and meals along with the opportunity of other parishioners to share their memories.

I really hope and pray for an awesome turnout.

It's the end as we know it for St Joseph's so we must be there as a community to celebrate as a Lyttelton Catholic Family (St Joseph's The Worker Parish, St Mary's and St Joseph's Schools and the Sister of Mercy) 156 years of service for the last time.

God Bless you all – please join us.

A Natural Hub of Health and Wellbeing

The Blue Cottage

A spare room, a poster at Harbour-Coop and personal contacts sees the establishment of a new Health and Wellbeing hub in Lyttelton called The Blue Cottage. Janette Kennedy has lived in Lyttelton for many years, and she always has new ideas bubbling along. With an idyllic cottage, a spare room and intuition that this is a great idea she has connected with five women who also love her idea of The Blue Cottage – Health and Wellbeing Haven. Together they are creating this new venture.

“The best thing so far about this new collaboration is the support we are being able to give to one another”, said Francesca Satta. “Generally, in this industry it’s only the practitioner and the individual clients who have a relationship but with this new venture all six get together to co-design their new venture in Lyttelton. It’s a marvellous opportunity for each of us to connect, recharge and refresh”, she said.

Interestingly all six women come from Europe originally and all have a desire to improve people’s connection to themselves and nature. How is this new venture going to work? The current thinking in the group is each practitioner will have the space for the day however they have decided they will do whatever it takes to make the space work.

What is going to be available at The Blue Cottage to improve your health and wellbeing?

Francesca Satta combines several techniques to help you calm and understand your body. She applies a mixture of counselling, vini yoga, dance, flower therapy, naturopathy and family constellations to enable you to awaken your bodies self-healing potential for happiness and health. "Becoming aware of how we breath is the simplest, constantly available tool we have to work on our emotions, stress and trauma". Francesca particularly likes working with maternity yoga and helping people who have experienced trauma regain calmness and happiness.

Josine Rolina was trained as a medical doctor. "I came from a very scientific background but always felt there was more to health than just physical anatomy". She is on a new journey now and for the last year has been practicing Deeply Relaxing Massage awareness as a pathway to deeper personal awareness. "As an intuitive therapist, I allow my intuition to guide me to where your body requires healing. Deeply Relaxing Intuitive massage therapy is an effective way to encourage relaxation, self-awareness and wellness and to restore and balance the flow of energy within the body". Josine also offers private Kundalini Yoga sessions with a personal approach and optional longer-term coaching. She is also extremely excited to be a part of this team, living her dream and expanding the range of healing opportunities on the Banks Peninsula.

Sonia Faucci specializes in two forms of treatments to support your wellness. The first is the "The Arvigo Techniques of Maya Abdominal Therapy®; an external, gentle and non-invasive massage to the abdomen and lower back that helps guide internal organs into their proper position so that their functions are supported and enhanced." She explains that this therapy is beneficial to your digestive and reproductive health (PMS, fertility, menopause etc) and includes learning a self-care sequence so that you can support your own healing.

The second technique Sonia practices is: "Via della Luna®, a holistic massage that focuses on relaxing the nervous system and increasing flow in the lymphatic and circulatory systems. Her clients report feeling more connection with their bodies after this treatment.

Monique Witthoef comes to the team again with a slightly different offering. She is interested in relaxation and meditation. She practices Reiki, essential oil therapy, deep tissue massage and relaxation massage. "I originally came from a social work background where I was very interested in youth health". She continues her love of youth with this practice and is available to help teenagers and adults achieve a calmed state. She has helped many people since the earthquakes and all the other traumatic events we have experienced in Christchurch since 2010.

Gabriella Medak is the final practitioner in this new team. Once again, she has a slightly different focus and offers a unique approach using the Traditional Japanese Bodywork Therapy. She has 20 years practice in this technique and is passionate about the healing arts, the vast experience in her work derives from a combination of her training and profound self-healing journey.

Her treatments take place on a floor mat applying pressure along the meridians and specific acupressure points. Through the combination of touch and different techniques, for example, stretching the stagnation of Chi, vital energy is being released and the flow of energy in the body is being restored. Gabriella says "Flow is our nature and we only have to support the body back to its natural balance and ease. My aim is to help clients to maintain and return to their health by facilitating their wellbeing with this effective preventative therapy". Gabriella is also a trained Counsellor.

Janette meanwhile acts as the facilitator for this new team as they work their way towards making The Blue Cottage Lyttelton's newest health hub. To keep up to date with their progress visit their Facebook page bluecottage/fb.

Article Lyttelton Review

Touching Base with Roger Gray CEO LPC

Roger Gray was appointed as the CEO of the Lyttelton Port Company in February of 2020. The Review Team wanted to check in with him to see how things have been going.

What have been the highlights of the year for you?

There have been many highlights. I arrived at the beginning of February last year, and by the end of March we were in lockdown, and the Port as an essential service was continuing to operate 24 hours a day. I'm proud of the way our people have continued to make the essentials Christchurch and Canterbury need to keep moving. Our border facing staff are still required to undergo pretty uncomfortable testing, either weekly or fortnightly, and now they have embraced the roll out of the COVID-19 vaccine too.

What has been the most unexpected learning for you?

Just how volatile the global shipping supply chain can be. No matter how hard our team works if there are delays or issues globally or further up the supply chain in New Zealand it can have a significant impact on us.

What major changes have you made to the Port Company since being appointed?

We've completely changed the way we work with our workforce union partners with the introduction of a High-Performance High-Engagement (HPHE) model. This means working collaboratively with our workforce and unions to find solutions that work for everyone involved. We have used this model successfully with a number of projects and Health and Safety initiatives – I think this has been a significant shift for LPC.

We have also restructured the business by creating business units which are supported by a business partnering model. This new structure includes three business units, Container Operations, Bulk Cargo and Marine, and Infrastructure and Property. These units are supported by business partners from our Finance, People, Environment and Engagement teams. This change has enabled a stronger focus on making the Port sustainably profitable.

What goals do you have for the Port Company in 2021?

We are continuing to focus on strengthening the partnerships we have with our people and unions as part of the HPHE model.

We're also focused on our partnership with the local community, and in particular working closely with Te Hapū o Ngāti Wheke, playing our part of the Whaka Ora Healthy Harbour partnership and our Sustainability objectives.

What is the state of the shipping industry now? How smoothly are supply chains working? What is the impact in Lyttelton?

We are seeing a lot of disruption and we believe this will continue well into 2021. We are handling this as best we can and working together to ensure we can work as efficiently as possible.

We're seeing a lot of vessels missing their Lyttelton calls, which means their containers roll onto a subsequent vessel. It often means larger numbers of containers going on the vessels too.

What do you enjoy most about Lyttelton Port Company?

I enjoy spending time with the talented and diverse group of people who work at LPC. Our people are passionate about the role they play in supporting Canterbury, and I'm proud to be part of the LPC whanau.

It's also a fantastic place to work in – Whakaraupō is stunningly beautiful, and I love seeing it out the window every day.

You are a co-chair of Whaka Ora Healthy Harbour. How is Lyttelton Port Company supporting this vision?

LPC works closely with our Whaka Ora partners as well as community groups doing excellent work in Whakaraupō. We are proud to be the principal sponsor for the Banks Peninsula Conservation Trust, who we work closely with on the restoration of the Port Saddle, 17 hectares of land above Lyttelton. We also support the Rob Donald Trust and the Quail Island Trust.

Our sustainability team are also working hard on our sustainability strategy focused on Prosperity, People and Planet. We are committed to being net carbon zero by 2050, zero waste by 2040 and have a net positive effect on biodiversity. That means we're working to actively improve biodiversity, rather than maintaining the status quo.

Do you have any messages for the local community?

We appreciate being a part of the community we operate in. We also appreciate the support the community gives us and understanding around some of the issues that come with being an operational port such as noise.

However, we are always keen to help if there are issues. I know many people say it's a working port, but if you have concerns you should get in touch with our team. We are constantly working hard to be a better neighbour and making us aware of things so we can sort them out helps us in that process.

On a personal level, my wife Caroline and I have enjoyed living in Canterbury, it has been a fantastic move for us. I'm looking forward to getting my children over from Sydney to explore Christchurch when the borders reopen.

Students' song sends climate action message

Students from Te Kura o Ōhinetahi Governors Bay School are joining the call for more climate action through a new music video starring them. The music video showcases the Fix It Up song, which two of the school's students wrote the lyrics for after learning about climate change and the need to plan for, and adapt to, life in a changing climate, particularly in coastal areas that are likely to be impacted by sea-level rise.

The students' learning programme, 'Climate Change: Prepare today, live well tomorrow' was led by Sian Carvell from Future Curious Limited, with support from Christchurch City Council. Five other Christchurch and Banks Peninsula schools participated in the programme last year and another seven are taking part in it this year.

Sasha Harwood wrote the lyrics for Fix it Up, with help from classmate Kate Rayner. The pair, along with many of their classmates, star in the music video, playing their ukuleles.

"We hope to inspire as many others as we can that we can fix it up. We can fix up climate change," says Sasha.

"We can have our voices heard. And that we can make a difference. We would love to give others the idea to spread the message and write their own song. It would be amazing if we could have a whole album of climate change songs made."

Kate Rayner is excited to be sharing Fix It Up with the wider public.

"I think that this song is a call to action and a reminder to everyone that there is hope – everyone has a voice and it's never too late to make a difference," says Kate.

Sasha and Kate created the song after their Year 6 to 8 class was challenged to think about ways they could take climate action, make a difference and share their message with a wider audience. The students went in many directions; walking school buses were created to try and reduce carbon emissions, movies were made, video games were created and meetings with local MPs were arranged at Parliament while the class were on their Wellington school camp.

Teacher Angie Rayner says it was an amazing learning experience for the students.

"We never imagined at the start of our inquiry last year that we would be presenting at Council meetings, writing emails to politicians and creating a music video. It has allowed students to explore, discuss, and be involved in meaningful projects that involve real-world problems that are relevant to them in their local environment."

Christchurch Heritage Festival 2021

Christchurch
City Council

Join us for Christchurch Heritage Festival 2021!

Christchurch Heritage Festival is on its way again from 9 to 25 October, bringing together a wide range of community events and activities.

We're pleased to announce that the theme for 2021 is: People and Place – our stories revealed.

Here in Ōtautahi-Christchurch and Te Pātaka o Rākaihautū-Banks Peninsula we have many stories, from Ngāi Tahu and other iwi, European settlers, Pasifika and people of many ethnic and cultural backgrounds who have made this place home. The Christchurch Heritage Festival allows us to share the stories of the past that link us to this place. He tātai muka, he tātai tangata – weave together the strands, weave together the people.

This year's theme is an opportunity to share stories that reflect the relationship of our diverse communities to places here in the Ōtautahi-Christchurch District or the wider Canterbury region.

We're reaching out to community groups, businesses and individuals who may have a great idea for an event to hold in this year's Heritage Festival – for example it might be a heritage-related walk, talk, performance, or tour.

If you would like to find out more about what's involved in running an event, please visit our webpage ccc.govt.nz/heritagefestival. We are happy to talk about your event ideas before you apply, as well as how the application process works. To get in touch please email heritage@ccc.govt.nz

We are planning for a longer lead in to the Heritage Festival than was possible last year due to COVID-19. This will allow us more time to discuss event ideas, coordinate the programme, and produce a printed calendar. A printed guide was highly valued in previous years.

Please forward this email if you are aware of any groups or organisations that may be interested in holding an event as part of the Heritage Festival.

We welcome your applications to take part in this year's Heritage Festival. Applications are open online from 4 May – 11 June at ccc.govt.nz/heritagefestival

Freedom Camping

Freedom Camping is one of the great ways to enjoy New Zealand, but it needs to be done responsibly. Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment are seeking feedback about four proposals to improve freedom camping. Find out how to have your say at www.mbie.govt.nz/freedom-camping-consultation

What does a water zone committee do? New Members Needed.

Water zone committees collaborate on land and water management solutions to deliver on the Canterbury Water Management Strategy vision, principles and targets in their geographical zone.

Committees are made up of people with a wide range of interests in water who have a strong connection to the zone. They meet monthly for formal public meetings, workshops or field trips.

They facilitate community engagement, provide advice to councils, and work with stakeholders to support and expand local water and biodiversity focused projects to make on-the-ground impacts in the zone. Water zone committees also create zone implementation programmes to create objectives for their catchment.

What kind of projects could I be involved with?

All zone committees support 'Immediate Steps' projects for Environment Canterbury to fund.

Immediate Steps is about achieving some quick wins, recognising that our natural ecosystems are the 'lungs' of the environment.

The programme covers the protection of endangered species and wahi taonga (sacred sites), as well as maintenance of Canterbury's braided rivers, providing habitat for native flora and fauna, and protecting wetlands and other ecosystems.

For more information on the application process, head to ecan.govt.nz/waiwecare.

Supporting Sustainable Freedom Camping in Aotearoa New Zealand: Summary information

Freedom camping

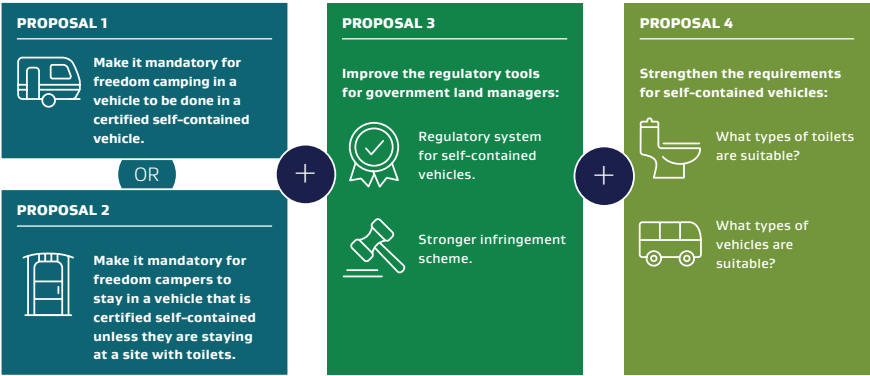

Freedom camping is camping free of charge on land managed by local authorities or the Department of Conservation, within 200 metres of where you can drive to, the coast, a harbour or a Great Walks Track. It includes camping in a tent, caravan or motor vehicle. In 2019, an estimated 154,000 international visitors and 91,000 New Zealanders freedom camped.

Why the Government wants to make changes to freedom camping

The increasing number of freedom campers in recent years has raised concerns about freedom campers’ cumulative impact on the environment, and the cost to host them. The Government wants to ensure freedom camping is able to be appropriately managed, so that when we rebuild tourism it is on a sustainable model and we elevate Brand New Zealand.

What the Government is consulting on

The Government is consulting on four proposals to improve freedom camping. As shown in the diagram, two of the proposals are alternatives, and the proposals could be combined into a package of reforms.

Consultation period

The consultation period on the Government’s proposals runs from Friday 9 April 2021 to Sunday 16 May 2021.

How to have your say

Further information on the proposals, including the full discussion document, can be found online at: www.mbie.govt.nz/freedom-camping-consultation. The website includes information on the ways you can provide your views to the Government, and a schedule of public information meetings in the regions and online.

Anzac Day

We have been learning about ANZAC Day, being commemorated this Sunday 25th (with Monday being a Public Holiday - preschool will be closed). We are reading stories about the first World War, and learning about the red poppies that symbolise war remembrance. The tamariki have created poppies with a range of art media - including using buttons from Caro's uncles old soldiers uniforms that she found in her Granny's button drawer.. We have made a wreath to place at the Lyttelton Cenotaph. And we loved baking & eating the ANZAC biscuits!

The Christchurch Dawn Parade starts at 6:15am from the RSA on Armagh St to Crammer Square. The service commences at 6:30am.

The Lyttelton Service commences at 9:45 at our Cenotaph in Albion Square.

Lest We Forget.

The Journey Inwards

7-30 May 2021

In this exhibition of paintings, Purau-based artist Damiet Loor explores the The Art of Allowing. The Art of Allowing is an intuitive process in which the artist allows colour, movement and shape to arise, without any idea of what it will become. In The Journey Inwards there is a continuum from abstract dreamscapes to more detailed elements. Each painting tells a story, and is an invitation to the viewer for deeper engagement. Loor describes her work as channelling The Divine Feminine, "which threads her way in different shapes and forms".

Damiet Loor moved from Amsterdam, the Netherlands to the sunny side of the harbour seven years ago, where she lives with her daughter in a tiny house lifestyle immersed in the beauty of Purau. Originally an art therapist, both art and therapy are significant in her life. Through her exploration of The Art of Allowing, Damiet describes having "entered a new level of consciousness in which the canvas became a portal of the Soul's expression".

The Art of the Allowing Workshop

Sunday 16th May 9.30am - 1 pm

An opportunity to directly explore The Art of the Allowing is provided by a introductory painting workshop led by Damiet Loor at Stoddart Cottage. The Art of Allowing is an intuitive approach through which the Artist is playful with paint and movement. By tuning into the painting and acting on the impulses from within, magic happens. The canvas becomes a mirror and transformations occur, from abstract landscapes to more defined images. We will be working on a smaller canvas with acrylic paints and mediums. No experience necessary.

Cost is $60. Booking is essential through Damiet at damietloor@gmail.com

Stoddart Cottage Gallery, 2 Waipapa Avenue, Diamond Harbour

Hours: Friday-Sunday plus most public holidays, 10am-4pm.

A Recent View of Akaroa

Brasenose is shrouded in billowing grey crashing rain on parched Akaroa:
an anarchic downpour not predicted
by Metservice or anybody.

The cruise ships are a memory.
You can fire a cannon down the main street on some days though not locked down as jobs and people leave town.

Waiting goes with the territory:
a bit like waiting for Godot,
an entity or process like rain,
indiscriminate and intentionless.

Those whose roots have gone deep here with skin as thick as old man pine bark staunchly carry on as they always have with regard to the ebb and flow of others.
For they who choose exile at this road end,
any day in Christchurch is a bad day with its blossoming road cones and closed lanes and its psychotic red light runners.

The style of suffering here is attrition:
hundreds of empty holiday homes,
so many shells reflecting those on the beaches;
no lights on and nobody home.

Bottoming out I understand the place, getting past the frailty of abstract thought and keep going with a hammer and drop saw that will kill me or cure me of myself.

I don't have a shred of mysticism left but have become clear eyed about the mystery of the rich tapestry of life that does not submit to ideas but just keeps manifesting.
