A Note from the Info Centre

It's mid-spring and kids are back at school for their final term of the year. Another slightly topsy-turvy year for the books so do take a moment to give yourself a pat on the back for making it this far. Whilst watering my plants I was thrilled to see my strawberry plants full of flowers, although I have read that you should remove the first of the flowers to encourage a plentiful harvest. If anyone has any thoughts on this, I'd love to hear them. During the school holidays I took my son into town on the bus. During our journey, an elderly man slipped from his seat and called out to the bus driver to stop. I got out of my own seat to check he was ok and help him up but was very surprised that not one other person offered to help or even looked like they cared. Even the bus driver was wearing his grumpy pants that day. It got me thinking about this special community and how we look after one another. If someone were to have a fall in the street, I know there would be plenty of helpers. Take a moment to count your blessings, for even though sometimes they can feel far and few between, we are pretty darn lucky to call Whakaraupō home.

Banks Peninsula Water Zone Committee welcomes three new members

The Banks Peninsula Water Zone Committee is pleased to introduce its newest members, Trudi Bishop, George Howden and Elisa Knight. Gina Waibl was also reappointed to the committee.

Most of Canterbury's water zone committees have undergone a refresh this year, which has seen members who have served three years on the committee 'refreshed' with new members. This ensures a flow of fresh ideas and opinions at the committee table, and that serving members are given a break from a demanding community role.

About Trudi Bishop

Trudi, originally from Ashburton, is a resident of Beckenham who recently returned to Aotearoa from the UK with her family. She spends most weeks roaming in the Banks Peninsula hills.

During 2020 she trained under Al Gore as a Climate Reality Leader and has a strong interest in the environment and quality of our waterways. Trudi comes from a product marketing and branding background within the toy and licensing industry.

While running her own brand consultancy, she wrote articles on the climate emergency, brand purpose and helped drive change within the toy industry toward minimising the industry's environmental footprint.

This year's refresh saw 30 community members from around Canterbury join their local water zone committees to assist in decision making around water management in catchments they care about.

George's background

George is a third-generation farmer in Port Levy. Our land, waterways and bay are something I am very passionate about and I want to make sure they are looked after for future generations, for everyone. By living and working in this environment, George has a practical and close relationship with the waterways.

What made Elisa Knight join?

Elisa is keen to have input into important decision making which directly affects the natural resources in her local area – not just for her personally but to also amplify the vision and desire of the community with the aim of achieving true representation.

She has an understanding and experience in environmental compliance and the regulatory system, management of stakeholders and communication requirements, broad change management and business knowledge, and a commitment to working with a group of diverse individuals with the ability to negotiate different viewpoints, priorities and backgrounds to achieve outcomes.

Tips for Reducing Your Carbon Footprint

New Zealand is aiming to be carbon neutral by 2050. To reach this aim, government, business and the wider community all have a role to play. Our neighbours in Redcliffs have been thinking hard on how citizens can address the overuse of fossil fuels and the impacts of population growth and resulting consumption that has serious impacts on our planet's environment and resources. The Eco Village Group of the Redcliffs residents Association have come up with a series of Eco-Kiwi Pledges and have kindly shared them with Lyttelton residents.

Eco-Kiwi Pledges (2021)

PRINCIPLES

The Pledges follow the principles below and generally promote sustainable living and the healing of our planet and our local environment, in particular:

- Increase the number of native plants, reduce weeds and other invasive introduced plants, and aim for 30% of all land to be in native ecosystems.
- Encourage the increase of native birds, insects, reptiles and fish, and reduce introduced predators.
- Increase the amount of walking, running, scooting, cycling and busing, and reduce the use of fossil-fuelled vehicles.
- Increase production and consumption of local, fresh and organic/regenerative fruit and vegetables, and reduce the consumption of meat.
- Encourage sustainable use and protection of soils.
- Increase the capture of rainwater and reduce the contamination of stormwater and groundwater.
- Increase the use of natural and low emission building materials, house weather tightness, insulation, thermal mass, solar access and passive heating, and reduce the level of fossil-fuelled home heating.
- Encourage the transition to sustainable businesses and employment.
- Encourage better understanding of and care for other people and the natural environment.
- Encourage the reduction of greenhouse gases and air pollutants.
- Carefully consider the actual need for any consumer goods, and reduce the amount of waste, pollution and litter in the environment.

- Promote safety, resilience, durability and flexibility to withstand natural disasters.
- Respect all local cultures, heritage and arts, and encourage non-motorised recreation.

PLEDGES

We encourage you to adopt any of the following specific actions, which you are not already doing, for the next 9 years till 2030:

Biodiversity

1. Plant your own native habitat and include a lizard den, on your property, or go to community native tree planting and maintenance days. Check each week and note any new creatures and how they benefit others and people. Use "inaturalist.nz".
2. Keep pulling out and properly disposing of all weeds on your property.
3. Keep trapping possums, hedgehogs, rats, mice and wasps on your property.

Transport

4. Reduce your fossil fuelled vehicle and air travel by a further 10% this year. Buy a manual or electric bike and choose an electric vehicle if upgrading.
5. Treat yourself to two "car-less days" each week (walk, scoot, bike, bus or share ride instead).

Food, Health & Soil

6. Grow more fruit and vegetables for more homemade meals, with two meat free days a week.
7. Maintain your compost system and vegetable garden and keep your soil mulched, or support your community garden.

Water

8. Store some of your roof water for garden watering and wash your vehicles on lawns, not hard surfaces.
9. Don't waste water: fix any leaks; turn off tap when brushing teeth; wash vegetables in a container and tip onto garden; make sure dishwashers have a full load; use gauge on jugs/kettles to boil no more water than needed.

Building

10. Install natural wool insulation in ceilings, walls and under-floor, after draught-proofing your home.

Energy

11. Reduce your household energy from suppliers by a further 10% this year. Choose the most energy efficient, if replacing appliances and don't leave them on "standby" power.
12. Get the most from the sun, prune trees shading house windows in winter.

Economy & Resources

13. Continue to support your local shopping centre and farmer's market weekly and choose environmentally friendly product alternatives.
14. Keep a "to do /shopping" list and do as many things as possible each vehicle trip.

Education & Communication

15. Support your local schools and take your children to local native restoration projects and learn about nature together.
16. Don't dwell on what you are losing by reducing emissions, dwell on what you are gaining.

Climate & Air

17. Start the Citizen's Climate Change Challenge (see below *).

Waste/Pollution

18. Put your dog poo in a plastic bag and into your "red" bin. Don't leave the poo or the bag for someone else to deal with.
19. Buy only what is necessary, durable, repairable, non-plastic/synthetic, locally made, toxin free, recycled and recyclable and leave goods packaging with suppliers. Buy in bulk, as refills, and as concentrates to reduce waste and cost.

20. Share some of your chattels on "Mutu.co.nz" and hire rather than buy. In Lyttelton's you can also join the Library of Tools and Things.

Resilience

21. Obtain or assemble a "getaway kit" (see "getthru.govt.nz").
22. Pursue a new life skill (e.g. first aid, gardening, cooking, sewing, or building).

Culture & Recreation

23. Spend more time on family and community activities and new living skills.
24. Increase your walking, running or biking. Create circuits to follow from and to home or work (avoid using your vehicle).

*Using the "Household Calculator" on the: www.toitu.co.nz/calculators website, will help you measure your actual household CO2 emissions and the reductions you make. You will also be able to compare your emissions with the NZ average and you will find lots of tips on ways you can reduce your emissions further. The Citizens Climate Change Challenge is to reduce your emissions by 1% each month, or 10% each year so you will halve your emissions by year 2030 (as urged by the International Panel on Climate Change).

Lyttelton Port Company and joint LPC unions sign high performance high engagement charter

Lyttelton Port Company (LPC), the Maritime Union of New Zealand (MUNZ), the Rail and Maritime Transport Union (RMTU) and the Amalgamated Workers' Union of New Zealand (AWUNZ) today announced that they have successfully negotiated and signed a Charter introducing the High Performance High Engagement (HPHE) model to Lyttelton Port.

The Charter jointly commits LPC and the unions representing LPC employees to each other's success and the development and fostering of a safe, cooperative and inclusive culture. It lays out shared aims and outcomes for Lyttelton Port and its workers, and specifies decision-making and engagement protocols for HPHE processes.

Roger Gray, LPC's CEO, welcomed the agreement and signing and thanked all those involved in the process.

"This is a historic moment for Lyttelton Port. The process to reach this agreement has been a positive and cooperative experience for all those involved, and has already laid the groundwork for the future," says Roger.

"LPC is committed to creating a more cooperative and positive workplace, and to giving our unions a genuine voice. The history of the Port has been one of industrial conflict, but we want to move forward to create an environment of mutual respect and problem-solving based on an understanding of each other's interests," said Roger.

"We entered into the process to discuss HPHE with some trepidation as historically all parties have had their misunderstandings with each other. However, as we learnt more about HPHE and what it involves, we can see that it is necessary for MUNZ to be involved to help deliver key priorities for our members and the Port," says Gerard Loader, President of MUNZ Local 43 (Lyttelton Branch).

"MUNZ Local 43's priorities include security of employment and superior conditions for our members, facilitating LPC's role as the crucial link in the Canterbury and wider South Island economy, better consultation enabling improved productivity and leading safety standards, and helping to keep Lyttelton Port in the ownership of the ratepayers of Christchurch, which benefits everyone in the region.

"We are also committed to continually improving the relationship between LPC and unions through a better understanding of the business's requirements while ensuring workers have a real say on the future direction of the Port," said Gerard.

Heiner Benecke, RMTU Lyttelton Branch Secretary commented, "The RMTU see the HPHE Charter as a landmark in industrial relations at Lyttelton Port Company and has great hopes for the benefits this agreement can bring to our members, Lyttelton Port and the wider Canterbury community."

"This Charter lays the foundation for a new way of doing things at Lyttelton that is based on cooperation and mutual respect. It is a marked departure from the very entrenched adversarial approach that has been the hallmark of the relationship between LPC and the waterfront unions for many years," said Heiner.

Errol Walker, LPC AWUNZ Delegate, said, "AWUNZ and I are pleased to be signing up to HPHE and working together in a co-operative, respectful, and meaningful way with LPC and the other unions. We look forward to contributing to HPHE with the common aim in place of achieving a more profitable and sustainable company, a safer and healthier work environment, security of employment, and improved wages and conditions.

"I would like to thank the AWUNZ members for their support and trust by unanimously voting to agree to the HPHE charter and process and giving it a fair and reasonable opportunity to succeed. We look forward to seeing the positive changes that this agreed commitment and process may bring," said Errol.

The agreement was signed on 29 October 2021 in the LPC Boardroom by LPC and the three unions. The combined unions represent 95% of LPC's collectivised workforce.

Community House – The Years Update

The year has been a roller coaster. We have returned to regular activities at level 2 on agreement that people wear masks unless they have an exemption. I am pleased to say 99% of our community, staff and volunteers have been double vaccinated.

We have had some beautiful outings to Margaret Stoddart Cottage, Bonobis Cafe in Sumner, daffodil, and blossom viewing in the gardens and trip to Little River.

The Lyttelton Community Church is the venue for our senior's day programme and morning tea. Alongside music, brain teasers, relaxation exercises and tasty kai.

Our community has had input into the CCC plan for the next 20 years thanks to Andrea Wild and Trisha Vinton holding a consultation session with the senior community.

Our ECAN representative Vicky Southworth presented to the community and responded to questions from our senior people. Transport around the Bays is a big concern.

All going well our final Day Club will be held November 17, 10 to 2 at Lyttelton Community church, Winchester Street.

November 25 10 to 11.30 is our final morning tea to be held if still under level 2 at the Lyttelton community church.

Thanks to all the new volunteers who enabled meal deliveries continue during lockdown in Lyttelton and Diamond Harbour areas. Foodbank and drop in continues daily 10 to 2 except Thursday. Assistance with Cressey Trust applications and our social services continues on those days.

*Keep safe and enjoy the beauty of Spring.

Climate Change – Coastal Hazards

Join the Coastal Panel

As the timing and severity of sea-level risk impacts will vary across the district, we're doing our adaptation planning in sections. We're starting with communities in the Whakaraupō Lyttelton-Mt Herbert area.

We chose these communities because, as well as having places that are going to be impacted by coastal hazards, the area has a really interesting combination of factors that make it a great place to pilot our approach. It's a mix of an urban and rural environment, with built, cultural, economic, social and ecological interests. It also has infrastructure dependencies, such as roading, which have implications for the wider area.

We'll be talking specifically with communities in the Whakaraupō Lyttelton-Mt Herbert area during phase three of the programme. We're now calling for expressions of interest (external) for residents who would like to be on the Whakaraupō Lyttelton-Mt Herbert Coastal Panel.

What is a coastal panel?

A coastal panel is a diverse group of community and rūnanga representatives from the adaptation area, along with some city-wide representation.

The role of the coastal panel is to provide informed recommendations to Council for adaptation plans that allow communities impacted by coastal hazards to respond to changes over time.

The panel:

- Considers the cultural, social, environmental, built, physical and economic impacts of coastal hazards, and agree – where possible by consensus – on a shortlist of potential options to address these impacts.

- Considers the broad range of limitations (including technical), thresholds for change and community tolerance to risk, and agree – where possible by consensus, on recommended adaptation pathways.
- Facilitates engagement with the wider community on the proposed options, pathways and triggers for action.
- Considers community views alongside input and expertise from technical and specialist advisors in order to make recommendations to Council on preferred options and pathways.

Note: The panel doesn't have the authority to make decisions on behalf of the Council, nor powers of veto.

The coastal panel will have the support and assistance of a Specialist and Technical Advisory Group (STAG) – a forum that's made up of experts in their field. The STAG members are able to provide information, advice and guidance to support coastal panel decision-making.

As we start adaption planning in different areas of Christchurch and Banks Peninsula, we'll be setting up different coastal panels.

What sort of people do we need on the coastal panel?

We're looking for six community representatives who live in the area and who have the ability to explore, consider and deliberate on options and recommendations with an open mind.

We need people who are well connected with their community and who can take into account diverse views and interests, rather than advocate for a particular point of view.

The aim is to create a panel that reflects the diversity of the whole community, to help ensure that as many voices as possible are heard in the adaptation planning process.

Because adaptation planning involves weighing up social, cultural, ecological, built and other values, we are looking for people who are committed to the process of adaption planning, rather than on achieving a particular outcome or focussing on a particular geographic area.

Two of the representatives need to be young people, in recognition of the fact that adaptation planning is an intergenerational conversation, and the impacts of climate change and sea-level rise will be felt for centuries to millennia to come.

What sort of time commitment is involved?

We estimate that going through a full adaptation planning process with the Whakaraupō–Lyttelton Mt Herbert adaptation area will take approximately 12 to 18 months.

In terms of what this means for a coastal panel member, we predict there will be about 10 to 12 meetings – most of which will be for about three hours, but there could also be one or two full-day workshops or site visits.

There may also be some other commitments as the Coastal Hazards Adaptation Planning Programme moves through different engagement phases with the wider community.

Coastal panel community members will receive an honorarium in recognition of their time to prepare for and attend meetings.

To be a panel member, you will need to have access to your own computer.

Who has the final say on coastal panel membership?

The final approval of panel members sits with the Coastal Hazards Working Group - a working group that has been set up to oversee and make decisions on implementing the Coastal Hazards Planning Programme and to make decisions regarding the Coastal Hazards Plan Change.

In recognition of the importance of a collaborative agency approach to this work, the working group is made up of Christchurch City Councillors, plus two members from Te Rūnanga o Ngāi Tahu and two councillors from Environment Canterbury.

Elected members from Waimakariri and Selwyn District Councils also sit in, as observers.

Steadfast – What's the State of Play?

The submissions on the first version of the draft Steadfast Landscape Plan have been received by the Christchurch City Council. Roughly 50 submissions were submitted. An additional consultation round has since been included with the public being asked further about the inclusion of Mountain Bike Trails and shared use tracks. In addition to the proposed Landscape Plan a Heritage Conservation Plan is also being completed.

The public via first round submissions showed overwhelming support for Steadfast to be opened to the public as a place for recreation and community.

Local resident Philip Duggan said, "It's great that this plan incorporates increased community use of and public access to the reserve. This asset has been closed to the public and to the local community for far too long".

Another common theme was voiced by Lyn Cavender. She said, "Renaming the whole Reserve with its local Maori name (Motukauatirahi- place of the fire sticks) rather than after only one of the users. In the same way Whakaraupo Reserve is named".

Fire resilience, biodiversity, shared use tracks, toilets, a track connecting to the Summit Road and community buildings for Cass Bay residents are other initiatives supported by many of the submitters.

At the Banks Peninsula Community Board Meeting on Monday October 15th the Board were asked by council staff to consider approving a lease to TS Godley for two of the buildings currently on site, the Drill Hall and the former main residence. Staff were seeking to fast track one part of the Landscape Plan so that TS Godley would be able to begin fundraising for repairs to the buildings.

Jenny Healey, Chair of the Cass Bay Residents Association and former Mayor Noeline Allan came along to the meeting to discuss this. The Board were reminded that the original purchase of the land by the Banks Peninsula District Council was to provide community and recreational facilities for the people of Cass Bay.

Jenny explained that the current proposal only allocated a small building of 70 square metres for exclusive community use. "We have a community of 300+ people and we need a secured place to hold community gatherings for 80-90 people. The Sea Cadets on the other hand are about 39 non residents and they are being allocated over 400 square metres". Jenny Healey's concerns centre around the proposed lease with TS Godley. She is worried that the community may not end up with the space it needs to host the community activities envisaged both now and into the future.

"I would like the Community Board to give the Cass Bay Residents Association input into the parameters of the lease before it is signed by TS Godley".

Noeline Allen supported Jenny Healey.

"Cass Bay residents need an appropriate community space. Our community wants a fair deal and not a handout", said Noeline.

Both Jenny and Noeline stressed to the Board that Cass Bay residents wanted a facility that will work for the community now and into the future and requested that the Board support them to achieve this outcome.

During Board discussions Chair Tori Peden and Deputy Mayor Andrew Turner both highlighted that the Board was being asked to approve a lease when neither the lease nor the Memorandum with the Cass Bay community was available for the Board to see.

The result was without all the paperwork it wasn't possible to ensure a satisfactory outcome between the community and TS Godley. The Community Board resolved that they would not make a decision until a draft copy of the lease and Memorandum between TS Godley and the community was submitted to the Board. Staff were requested to provide this material before the end of the year. It was also proposed that a letter be sent to TS Godley highlighting the Board's concerns that all parties needed to be in agreement before the final paperwork could be signed off.

Support available to achieve the best outcomes for the land and environment

Two new faces that you may see around, are our biodiversity and land management advisors for Christchurch West Melton and Banks Peninsula, Martin Rutledge and Will Todhunter. The pair are both passionate about their roles and are keen to talk to people to help them get the most out of their land while reducing their impact on the environment.

Their experience:

Martin's background includes 26 years of working at the Department of Conservation. There he worked as a freshwater ecologist and in marine reserves, as well as doing dolphin conservation work. This involved him counting Hector's dolphins off Banks Peninsula while flying in a small plane.

"It's amazing what you see from the air out there – we were flying out to 10 kilometres offshore and we'd not only spot dolphins, but whales, seals, sharks, schools of salmon and kahawai and heaps of sea birds," Martin said.

He also worked as a consultant for inanga/whitebait spawning and other special projects.

Will completed a Bachelor of Science at Otago University three years ago. He's since done extensive work with the Christchurch City Council as a ranger and worked as an independent ecological consultant.

Their roles:

As biodiversity and land management advisors, Martin and Will have a lot on their plates. This includes providing people with support for their Farm Environment Plans, advice about good management practice and helping people fund their biodiversity projects.

Martin said it's a busy and full-on job, but one that's equally rewarding.

"We're here to help people achieve their goals and ensure what they do on the land doesn't have a negative impact on the environment.

"There are some great biodiversity values in our region, and it's important these are protected from the mountains to the sea (Ki uta ki tai) for future generations to enjoy," he said.

Will said there's a lot of ongoing project management with the job, and no one day looks the same.

A success story:

An example of the outcomes the pair can help achieve for landowners is the work taking place with a landowner in the Edwards Stream sub-catchment of Wainui Stream on Banks Peninsula.

Recently approval has been given to assist funding the fencing and establishment of a third QEII covenant on the property. This will allow the native forest regenerating in the headwaters to flourish and lead to improved water quality and habitat for stream life – including threatened native fish species and invertebrates.

“My role (and that of the advisors before me) was to work with the QEII National Trust, who had a great relationship with the landowner and knew their willingness to protect the regenerating forest through fencing and the establishment of covenants,” Martin said.

“It’s a great outcome all round to see the progressive protection of this sub-catchment and the biodiversity and water quality benefits it will bring and at the same time allow the landowner to meet the protection goals for their property,” Martin added.

Get in touch:

The pair are encouraging those with ideas for community projects, as well as landowners in Banks Peninsula, to get in touch with them to discuss their ideas and get advice.

“Biodiversity is a huge passion of ours, as is land management. We’re excited to continue helping landowners find good solutions to issues they face,” Will said.

Environment Canterbury has funding available for biodiversity projects like the Edwards Stream project. To get in touch with your local zone team visit ecan.govt.nz/myzone.

“A typical day could involve a landowner ringing up to say ‘we’ve got this great project in mind, can you have a look?’

“If it checks out, we look at some opportunities to help fund it, lend a hand, or give some advice,” he said.

Will said the pair generally spend half their day in the field and the other half working with project teams in the office to plan out how we can best help people.

What Happens When You Bin It?

Christchurch City Council Resource Recovery Manager Ross Trotter lifts the lid on what happens with the stuff that you put in your red, green and yellow wheelie bins.

Remember that empty tomato sauce bottle that you put in your yellow wheelie bin for recycling? Did you know that could end up back in your house as a supermarket meat tray or a strawberry punnet? What about those empty aluminium drink cans that went into the yellow bin? They will get recycled back into new aluminium cans.

Most of us are too busy to give much thought to what happens to the items that we put out for recycling, but often they go on quite a circular journey. Once the items are picked up by the kerbside recycling trucks, they are taken to the Materials Recovery Facility in Wigram, operated by EcoCentral. There, they pass through a range of machinery that separates them into different product types. The sorted materials then get sent off to a range of national and international reprocessing plants.

The bales of aluminium and steel cans get sold locally for recycling, while the glass is crushed into sand that is used for road fill.

EcoCentral sells bottles and containers numbered 1 to a New Zealand-based processor who remanufactures them into clear meat trays or strawberry punnets for supermarkets.

The plastics that are numbered 2 and 5 are also reprocessed into other useful products.

Paper and cardboard get sent overseas for recycling. The market for these is extremely competitive. To maximise the price, we receive we need to produce clean materials that are untainted by other materials. Because we are a small supplier in a global market, we risk losing our buyers if we don't meet high quality standards with our recycling.

That is one of the reasons why we are constantly asking people to take care with their recycling and only put accepted items in the yellow bin.

We want to recycle as much as possible because it is better for the environment and helps off-set the costs of processing recyclables. Even when commodity prices for recyclables are low, it still costs significantly less to recycle than to dispose of the same material to landfill.

Our kerbside rubbish, organics and recycling collection service costs about $40 million a year to run. The money for that comes from the rates that Christchurch property owners pay.

If we lose access to any of our recycling markets, it is likely that we will have to send more material to landfill. That will push up the cost of the kerbside collection service, which in turn will hit ratepayers in the pocket.

It is important too that people keep their green wheelie bin for organic waste only and not put general rubbish in it. That is because the material that we collect from the green wheelie bins is processed locally into certified organic compost, which is used around the South Island, mostly by the agriculture sector. When the contents of your green bin are collected at the kerbside, they are trucked to the Organics Processing Plant in Bromley – the biggest composting facility of its kind in New Zealand. There, the green waste gets put through a shredder which has 138 teeth on it that breaks the material down. It is then moved into one of 18 sealed tunnels, where most of the composting happens. The composted material is then taken outside to fully mature. When the maturation process is complete, the compost is sold to businesses and farms around Canterbury and beyond.

Around 55,000 tonnes of kerbside organic material a year are processed through the plant. This is food and green waste that would otherwise go to landfill.

If we Want to continue to divert as much waste as possible from the landfill, we need people to put the right stuff in the right bins. Most of you have improved, but we need everyone to get on board.

Please remember too that the choices you make when you shop are powerful when it comes to cutting waste. Try and opt for items with the least amount of packaging or items which are able to be recycled in the yellow bin or alternative recycling schemes

The best way to reduce the amount of rubbish we are sending to landfill is to prevent waste in the first place.

Snippets from Sailing in the Volcano

In seven decades on the harbour, Tony Park has naturally had some memorable moments. Having a beer after an R class race, he watched a trailer yacht backing down the ramp for his boat, reversing until the whole car was submerged. And in the early days of the coastguard when the word was out not to let them anywhere near a yacht, Park and Bevan Jesson had a coastguard launch eager to help when they capsized. They yelled that they were fine, but the launch insisted on hovering about until the R's prod speared it.

Lyttelton Farmers Market - Farewell

Saturday October 29th was Kerry Donnelley's last day as the onsite manager for the Lyttelton Farmers Market. Kerry has been doing this job since the market moved to London Street after the earthquakes. He's been the face of the market for years and he will be really missed. All the best Kerry for the new chapter in your life.

Christchurch Symphony Orchestra at Lyttelton Primary

Five Christchurch Symphony Orchestra musicians embedded themselves in Lyttelton Primary School for a week in October as a part of its Karawhiua! Let's Play! school residency programme, working with students on music-based projects centered around the school theme of Kaitiakitanga – the processes and practices of protecting the environment.

The projects are specially designed to help students of every year group develop their creativity, ability to express themselves, confidence, teamwork skills, perseverance, and their enjoyment of music and the arts. These include learning a protest song about climate change using bucket drums, creating words for a song about Te Whakaraupō Lyttelton Harbour to be performed with ukuleles, perfecting chords to go with the popular waiata "Tūtira Mai Nga Iwi", and creating their own kazoos for a performance.

"It's been good to see everything coming together more as the week went on," said teacher Rachel Cummins, whose class of Year 8 students were learning to play the ukulele chords to 'Tūtira Mai'. While a lot of the students in her class were already musical and played in a band, the project gave all the students a chance to learn new music skills on equal footing regardless of their experience, she said.

The Year 7 students wrote a chant about all the things that could be found in Te Whakaraupō Lyttelton Harbour, with the refrain "in the Harbour".

"We have a student who lives with autism and he usually does half-days, but he's loving this so much that he's staying the whole day just for it," said Cummins.

The CSO conducts six school residencies each year both in the greater Christchurch area and further around the South Island. This year, musicians have also taken the programme to St Mary's School and Rawhiti School in Christchurch, and Tahunanui School in Nelson.

The CSO Karawhiua! Let's Play! Residency programme in Lyttelton Primary School was proudly supported by the Lyttelton Port Company.

Sue Currie Exhibits at Stoddart Cottage Observing Colour and Water

Sue Currie has spent most of her life close to the water: either in it, on it, or round it. This deep connection is conveyed in the watercolours, acrylics and oils of Observing Colour and Water, inspired by the coastal environments and inland bodies of water that Currie has navigated in her life and work. "I always carry a camera with me to grab those moments which may only last a few seconds, often when I least expect it, to convey colour, shapes and mood into my paintings," says Currie.

Much of the work in Observing Colour and Water reflects the land and seascapes local to Stoddart Cottage, the birthplace of the painter Margaret Stoddart, where the exhibition is being held. It's an area with which Currie has strong ties, with a childhood in which weekends and holidays were spent at her family's holiday home in nearby Charteris Bay, the small Banks Peninsula settlement where she now lives. "Just think, all those years' ago, Margaret Stoddart was painting local subjects at this cottage," Currie notes. "I would love to have met her."

Sue Currie is a Christchurch born artist who lives in Charteris Bay, Banks Peninsula. She has been painting since 1974, with a major focus on landscapes, which she exhibits regularly, mainly in the South Island. After working in Sydney for seven years as a graphic designer, she returned to Christchurch to pursue fine art painting. Her painting has taken her across the world, creating work from sketches and photos taken on trips to France, Italy, Britain, Malaysia, Mexico, China and Hong Kong. However, her main inspiration remains the South Island of New Zealand, which she describes as "an artist's dream". Influenced by her surroundings, Currie endeavours to capture moments from these on paper or canvas, always experimenting with different techniques. Choice of many subjects has introduced a wide range of diversity in her work. Currie is the recipient of numerous awards and has paintings in collections in New Zealand and overseas. www.suecurrie.co.nz

Proposed disposal of land

27 Hunters Rd and 42 Whero Ave, Diamond Harbour

We own a large block of land in Diamond Harbour that we no longer need. Five options for the future of the land have been developed and we'd like to know which one you prefer.

The land includes three gullies that have been allowed to revegetate. We have plans to protect the gullies for their environmental and landscape values, but no plans for the balance of the land.

To find out more and provide feedback, go online to ccc.govt.nz/haveyoursay

or contact Sam Sharland, Engagement Advisor
Phone 03 941 8793
Samantha.Sharland@ccc.govt.nz

Open for feedback until 16 November 2021

Five options

Go to ccc.govt.nz/haveyoursay to read the advantages and disadvantages of each option.

Option 1: Complete covenant and sell

Place a covenant over Sams Gully, Morgans Gully and the third unnamed gully, with protections for the walkways, and dispose of the remainder of the land.
(Our preferred option)

Option 2: Retain as a park

In the short term this would result in no change, with the gullies continuing to be revegetated through community partnerships and the flat land leased for grazing. At this stage there is no identified need for additional parkland.

Option 3: Council develops the land

We could consider developing the property, in consultation with the community, either directly or with a development partner. This is likely to carry significant financial risk – the revenue gained may be less than the cost of development – and is not our core business. We are unaware of any significant demand for residential development in Diamond Harbour.

Option 4: Transfer ownership to the community

As we don't need the land but it is valued by the community, it could be transferred into community ownership. This could be at below market price, subject to us being able to recover the capital value of the land should the community decide to dispose of it or develop it in the future.

Option 5: Status Quo

Finalise the covenant over Sams Gully, Morgans Gully and the third gully, with protections for the walkways, and continue to graze the flat land.
