The Review

Is a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative designed to keep our community informed with what is going on around the harbour. It's also an opportunity to showcase the people and places that other wise would go under the radar. Our community connections ensure we know what's going on in the wider community and can share the news with you all. A big thank you goes out to all the contributors and our funders Rata Foundation and Christchurch City Council Strengthening Communities who enable the hard copies to be printed each edition. Similarly to Wendy Everingham for writing and editing and Jenny-Lee Love for design and production. If you have any local events, news or stories you would like included we'd love to hear from you.

Banks Peninsula Community Board – A Quick Summary of the Last Meeting

At the last Community Board Meeting on November 1st the Board made the following decisions that relate to Lyttelton Harbour.

Urumau Reserve Green Fire Break

A recommended FENZ (Fire and Emergency New Zealand) Green Fire Break has been approved for all house boundaries on the upper side of Urumau Reserve in Foster Terrace. This means that over time locally eco sourced plants will be planted the length of the fire break to the Gilmour Terrace entrance.

In the meantime, a more frequent level of maintenance will be undertaken around the track and within existing planting and grassed areas behind residents' homes. The rangers together with the Reserve Management Committee will create the revised maintenance programme and then neighbours and other community members will be encouraged to participate.

Godley House

The Diamond Harbour Community Association spoke against the proposed Request for Proposal to fund build and operate a new hospitality complex to replace Godley House. It was argued that the new proposal was only one option the community had mentioned and the land size of 700 sq metres was too small for a viable business. After discussions the Board agreed to amend the Request for Proposal to increase the land size to 1500sq metres on the proviso that the land used did not have any "reserve" values. The process is complicated by the current Recreational Reserve status of the land. The Community Association have petitioned the Minister for Conservation that the land was Gazetted in error and needs to be revoked so that the needs of the community both now and for future generations can be achieved. The amended "Request for Proposals" will be released by the Council in the new year.

Community Funding Approved

Lyttelton Sea Scouts received $2000 for the funding and first year licensing of a kayak trailer.

Lyttelton Community House received $3000 to make disability access modifications to their community van.

Project Lyttelton received $4500 to pay for two people to be trained for traffic management in relation to the Farmers Market.

New Lifetime Registration for Dogs

Christchurch dog owners won't have to replace their dog's plastic registration tag each year as Christchurch City Council moves to introduce 'lifelong' metal tags.

Under the present system each dog that is registered is issued with a new plastic disc for that registration period, which attaches to the dog's collar. Owners are subsequently issued with a new disc each time they renew their dog's registration. The discs are colour-coded according to the year.

From June 2022, to coincide with the next registration renewal period, dog owners will receive a single-use metal disc engraved with a unique identification number.

The disc is designed to last the dog's lifetime.

Animal Services Manager Lionel Bridger says the initiative will be more convenient for dog owners and reduce the amount of plastic waste going into landfills.

"We have to look to the future. It is not sustainable to keep throwing away the plastic tags every year and expecting dog owners to do the same. Each year we register around 40,000 dogs in Christchurch which means there are at least 40,000 plastic tags going into the bin each year as these cannot be recycled."

He says he's confident the public will embrace the move.

"We've received many messages from people in the community about the impact of these plastic tags on the environment. We expect that the public will be in favour of this new system from a sustainability perspective.

"It will also speed up the registration process as at the moment people have to pay their registration either in person or online and then wait up to two weeks for the new tag to arrive in the mail. This new system will streamline the process where the only administrative task for dog owners will be to pay their new registration cost each year."

The new discs will save Council about $50,000 over ten years.

Both Selwyn District Council and Upper Hutt City Council have recently introduced single-use metal registration discs.

Total number

There were 2,189 new dogs registered in the year ended 30 June 2021, bringing the total number registered in the city to 42,191.

Travellers Return from the UK

What a Rare Event.

Two years ago, travel between countries was such a normal occurrence that we didn't think about it much. Now if you meet someone who has come in from overseas it's such a rarity!

Steve and Sally Harvey have just got back to Lyttelton after a long trip home from the UK. They are returning to New Zealand after three years away. They were fortunate to secure spots in Managed Isolation before the current lottery system was introduced and fortunate to be returning for a nice reason. They are very relieved to be back in Lyttelton after not being able to return for almost three years.

As you can imagine the long trip back was stressful. "Once we got back to Singapore, we breathed a sigh of relief. We were on the home straight and with only eleven people to share the plane with we felt more at ease," said Sally. The pair flew straight into Christchurch. "As soon as we landed, we felt calm and cared for". Sally explained that when you book your MIQ place you had no idea where in New Zealand you would end up residing until arrival. "We hit the jack pot and were welcomed to the Distinction Hotel in Cathedral Square".

The pair were taken by bus from the airport to the hotel guided by MIQ staff. On arrival at the hotel staff explained how the fourteen-day isolation would proceed. Three groups of people looked after their needs for the isolation stay. The nursing staff for any Covid testing or other wellbeing issues, reception staff for any room needs they had and the actual MIQ staff who organised bus transfers, recreation, and general information for returnees.

"The Distinction Hotel was absolutely wonderful. Their attention to detail was just so amazing. With different dietary requirements, vegetarian and plant based - three lovely meals arrived at the door every day". Sally was amazed how quickly their fourteen days stay came and went. "We were lucky to be on the 9th floor in a corner room. We had views down onto the rebuild of the Cathedral that always proved interesting and then we had the lovely vista of Pegasus Bay".

After testing negative for Covid 19, roughly two days after arrival the pair were then free to exercise down at street level. Returnees were given three time slots for daily exercise. People eligible to exercise were given blue wristbands.

All workers made their stay as pleasant as possible. "You could ring reception at any time. This came in handy to order a real coffee and other bits and pieces that we needed". "We were even allocated a laundry service. We were allowed twenty pieces of laundry each and everything was beautifully washed and folded".

During their stay at this hotel there were also 140 people who were heading down to the Antarctic.

I wondered what they had to pay for their MIQ. Luckily as they are returning for a long time Sally explained no MIQ fees were payable. Sally and Steve were both glowing of their return experience in MIQ and wanted the wider public to be aware of their complete satisfaction. "Well done New Zealand and the Distinction Hotel. So much thought has gone into the MIQ process, and we felt like VIP's".

New swimming and paddle area in Rāpaki Bay

A new swimming and paddle craft area has been established and is now open in Rāpaki Bay, Lyttelton Harbour for a ten-month trial period.

The area from the eastern side of the boat ramp, adjacent to the Rāpaki wharf and directly across to the eastern headland, has been reserved for swimming and paddle craft only.

Paddle craft includes kayaks, stand up paddle boards, canoes and waka ama.

Gary Manch, deputy harbourmaster (operational), says he's excited for Rāpaki to have a safer area dedicated for swimming and paddle users.

"This area was established after discussions with the local community board and Te Hapū o Ngāti Wheke, and a desire from the community to have an area for safer recreational boating.

"We will trial the area for ten months before a decision is made as to whether it will become permanent."

Even though the area is permitted for swimmers and paddle craft users, Manch wants people to remember that life jackets are required to be worn at all times when on any craft 6m or less.

What's In a Name?

It is the beginning of a new day, and the sun is shining. I open the door on to the verandah and look around me. I live in Upper Hawkhurst as it is called by the locals, and I am surrounded by a variety of shining green vegetation on the hills flanking the narrow road. A big tree across the road, called tara by Māori, lemonwood by the English settlers, anchors my view and just behind it a kanuka. Further up the hill a row of macrocarpa mark the horizon. A chaffinch sings its long melody from close by and sparrows peck wherever they can, more for the remnants of crumbs some neighbours throw out for them than for seeds. Occasionally I hear the throbbing notes of a distant bellbird or korimako, while the calls of Californian quail are common and yesterday, I was excited to hear pipiwharauroa, the shining cuckoo.

This variety of names reveals that the species in our environment are either endemic, that is native to New Zealand, or introduced, usually from Britain, brought here by the settlers in the 19th century.

The desire to name the unknown is something all cultures do. For our ancient ancestors it would have been important for communities to share their knowledge of the environment, to tell others which plants were safe to eat, which were markers on a path, which could be used for healing and which for providing clothing and building materials. In Aotearoa, species often have 2, 3 or more names, Maori, English and Latin. In most of the country the bird named the wood pigeon in English is called kereru in Maori but kukupa in Northland.

Why did the early British settlers give English names to bird and trees, when they would have heard the Māori names from the local Māori with whom they had daily contact. Perhaps they struggled to pronounce the Maori names. Tui persisted as the common name even though it was given an English name, the Parsonbird. Kiwi and Pukeko became the established names while piwakawaka was replaced amongst English speakers by the name Fantail.

Another reason for giving English names to displace the Māori ones may have been to reinforce the British settlement and control over the whole landscape. Aoraki, the highest and highly revered mountain, was renamed after Captain Cook and the Avon River was named by the Deans Brothers. Its Maori name 'Ōtākaro' meant 'A place of play' as the tamariki would play on the banks once the gathering of food and other materials was finished. The Māori name for the Heathcote River is 'Ōpawaho' and was also the name of the little settlement that sat on its banks for quite a few centuries. Part of the name has persisted as the name for the suburb of Opawa.

Whatever the reason, many mountains and rivers, towns and trees and birds, were renamed by the British and became the commonly accepted names. The early settlers, anxious to make New Zealand resemble the home they had left, brought with them not just domesticated species but wild species, blackbirds and thrushes, hawthorn and sycamore. Like the human settlers, who cleared land for farming, the introduced wild species thrived, free from their natural predators, and outcompeted the endemic species, now deprived of their native habitat. Can everyone distinguish between native and introduced species, is it important to do so? Recently chatting to a friend at the Shroom Room I mentioned that the confident sparrows, looking for crumbs on the table, had originated in Britain and he looked surprised, were the sparrows not native to New Zealand he had asked.

In parts of rural New Zealand, the landscape is dominated by pastoral farming and there are few native species to be seen or heard. The honey bee was brought here for honey and the ladybird to control aphids. Later the European wasp arrived in crates of aircraft parts in 1945, it multiplied and became a threat to ecosystems, eating 90% of the honeydew, an important food source for native birds and insects. The introduction of rabbits for food, fur and sport was a disaster which led to the introduction of stoats and weasels which have caused the extinction of many native birds. This disruption of ecosystems is a very serious problem. The aim is for Aotearoa to be predator free by 2050 and trapping programmes and sophisticated targeting by the Department of Conservation, together with ecosanctuaries are increasing bird numbers. But pigs and goats and deer are munching their way through native forest, reducing habitat and interfering with the forest's ability to reduce carbon emissions. In urban areas cats and hedgehogs continue to decimate birds and lizards.

There is a growing awareness of the damage that colonization does to indigenous communities and to the ecosystems that sustain them. At the constitutional level of Te Tiriti o Waitangi and at local community level there is acknowledgement of past wrongs and a desire to make up for them. This includes learning and understanding the meanings of the Māori names of native species and of land forms. This is a work in progress for many of us, a work that will increase our understanding of the land, its flora and fauna and those who came before European settlers.

State Highways 73/75 Akaroa and 74 Norwich Quay

Proposed Changes Consultation

We have now considered all your feedback from engagement alongside our technical assessment of the road and are formally consulting on proposed new speed limits along this 84km route. We want to know if there is anything else we should consider before we make a decision. Full details of the proposed safer speeds, and information you should know, is available on our website. See information panel below for further details.

We are also asking for more feedback from the community about Takamatua Straight, to help us with our final decision. Our technical evidence could support both a 60km/h or an 80km/h speed limit safely. We'd appreciate more specific feedback from the community before making a decision. What is your experience of speed and safety through Takamatua and using the intersection with Takamatua Valley Road?

Alongside the proposed safer speeds, we are considering several locations where minor safety improvements (such as signs and line markings) will help people to feel safer.

In addition, we want to hear your thoughts about State Highway 74 at Norwich Quay/Gladstone Quay. This section of highway has been included in consultation to align with the safer speeds recently set for Lyttelton township by Christchurch City Council.

The Council is also proposing speed reductions on some local side roads adjoining the highway in townships including Motukarara through to Takamatua. The proposed speeds align with local road speed reductions introduced earlier this year on Banks Peninsula and with the proposed safer highway speeds.

Feedback on both highways and local roads can be made on our online map, <https://nzta.mysocialpinpoint.com/chctoakaroa-speed-consultation#/sidebar/tab/about>

High Tech Banks Peninsula Seabed Survey

Toitū Te Whenua Land Information New Zealand, in partnership with Environment Canterbury and the Department of Conservation Te Papa Atawhai, has started seabed surveying around Banks Peninsula.

The survey is estimated to take eight weeks and finish on 10 December, depending on weather conditions.

The survey area extends along the coast from Awaroa / Godley Head to Birdlings Flat, including Akaroa Harbour. Most data will be captured within 5 kilometres of the shore and up to 70 metres deep in some places to create detailed 3D maps of the seafloor.

The Banks Peninsula survey is one of three hydrographic surveys to take place around Te Waipounamu / South Island in the coming months, says Toitū Te Whenua's Kaihautū Customer Delivery, Jan Pierce.

"Toitū Te Whenua's hydrographic surveying programme updates nautical charts and navigational information to maintain maritime safety for commercial and recreational mariners," says Ms Pierce. "Any major hazards found through the survey will be notified through our fortnightly notices to mariners.

"Our main goal is navigation safety, but the data collected can also be used for marine science and environmental management. We have been working with Environment Canterbury and the Department of Conservation to identify these opportunities," she says.

Discovery Marine Limited (DML) has been contracted to carry out the Banks Peninsula survey using its offshore survey vessel MV Tranquil Image and smaller inshore vessel Tupaia. Tide gauges will be installed at key locations around the peninsula to support the work.

The survey does not capture data related to petroleum or minerals exploration and the echosounders on board the vessels operate at frequencies that have a minimal impact on marine mammals.

Once the data has been captured and processed, it will be made freely available through the LINZ Data Service. Updated charts will also be available through the free NZ Electronic Navigational Chart Service.

Surveys are also planned around Bluff, Stewart Island / Rakiura and the Tasman area.

Parihaka Day 2021 -

What does 5 November mean to you?

Usually in New Zealand, its celebrated as Guy Fawkes Day. The night sky lit up with fireworks, terrified pets, joyous kids, disgruntled animal owners.

But what about Parihaka day also on the 5 November?

It is inconceivable that an Indian child growing up today would not know about Gandhi. Or a child in the USA not knowing about Martin Luther King Jr, or a South African child Nelson Mandela. Yet in our own country, generations of Kiwi children have grown up ignorant of two Māori men whose message and practice of peace and nonviolent protest proceeded theirs by decades.

This is of personal significance to me, as I was born and raised in South Taranaki, a mere 10 minutes from Parihaka. My father was the local GP along the coast, and I have grown up hearing many rich stories from the people of the land. And since this is the Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre, let's share some very relevant and important information about our nation's history.

But first, here's a short history lesson for those of you still with me.

Parihaka was and still is to this day a Māori settlement in coastal South Taranaki, sitting underneath the majestic Taranaki Maunga. Around the 1860's, whilst Aotearoa was still a British colony and land was being divided up and given to European settlers, two Māori prophets, Te Whiti O Rongomai and Tohu Kākahi, established an inter-tribal pacifist community; Parihaka. At a time when Māori were being violently removed from their lands Parihaka became a refuge for Taranaki hapū and other Māori iwi who had lost their homes. Te Whiti and Tohu encouraged the people of Parihaka to defend their land by peaceful methods and to protect Māori independence. The way of life at the settlement was modelled on the principles of compassion, unity and self-sufficiency, along with the promotion of peace between Māori and Pākehā as long as Māori ownership and independence was respected.

However, frustrated with the resistance, the government ordered an invasion of Parihaka on 5 November 1881. 500 loaves of bread were prepared by the people of Parihaka, white feathers adorned their hair and the people remained peaceful, but the leaders were still arrested and imprisoned without trial and the settlement mostly destroyed.

The imprisonment was odd, as it included a sightseeing tour of the South Island, with the goal of impressing the leaders of European advancements so that they would be willing to convert to the Pākehā world. Were they impressed? No. Not really. Te Whiti replied, the best thing he had seen in Christchurch was the River Avon.

"Remember the many fine public buildings here, and the railways, tramway, etc. which must have struck you as being very wonderful".

"All those things you mention are very grand, no doubt, and very useful," Te Whiti replied, "but they are the work of man's hand, and will perish. The river is God's work and will last long after the things you mention... will have passed away."

And how does this relate to Lyttelton?

Some of the prisoners were sent to Te Waipounamu/South Island gaols, including the Lyttelton gaol. And approximately 160 of the prisoners were sent to Ripapa Island for 6 months. Journalists from the Lyttelton Times were stationed at Parihaka on the day of the invasion.

Sometimes I catch myself looking at the hills that surround Whakaraupō, feeling a sense of sadness that I imagine those Parihaka prisoners felt whilst missing their great mountain and their home.

The invasion of Parihaka had a profound impact on Taranaki Māori and continues to be a lasting legacy and example of the mistreatment of Māori under European rule. However, we must also try and move forward. Today Parihaka stands for peace. By not forgetting the past but trying together to work and mend the relationship between both Māori and Pakeha, it has potential to be a significant example and credit to both races, to modern day New Zealanders and to other countries and races who are also suffering broken race relations.

I hope on November 5 you are able to teach yourself, share with your children or your grandchildren about this history and be proud of our very own Māori Gandhi. Perhaps even offering a gift from nature in quiet remembrance of Lyttelton's part in this story.

If you wish to read more, 'Ask that Mountain - The Story of Parihaka' by Dick Scott, is a very good start. I'm also happy for a chat.

Remembrance and prayers for peace this Parihaka Day.

Insights on COVID

An update for community organisations from Community and Public Health (Via zoom link: Tuesday, 16 November, 12.30-1.30pm)
Drs Ramon Pink and Matthew Reid, Medical Officers of Health, CDHB

What can communities in Ōtautahi learn from the current COVID outbreak in Tāmaki Makarau? It's a year since Dr Anna Stevenson presented to the Waka Toa Ora community on the 'latest' on COVID-19. So the Waka Toa Ora team are pleased to offer you this online update.

Community and Public Health staff have been at the forefront of the pandemic response for the past 18 months and are currently working to support Auckland colleagues to manage their community cases. This hui is an opportunity to hear how organisations and communities across Waitaha might prepare better for future community COVID spread. You'll also hear how the case investigation and community isolation processes work. We're planning to get through a lot in just 60 minutes so please take the opportunity when you register to tell us any questions or areas of interest you would like the presenters to address. During the hui you'll also be able to send questions using chat. For more information see attachment. Register online or for support with registration or general questions please email - tracy.abbot@cdhb.health.nz

Free Training Seminars For Not For Profits

from Canterbury Community Business Trust Incorporating NFP Solutions/One on One Driving Solutions: PREVENTING WORKPLACE BULLYING (Venue: 442 Tuam Street; Wednesday, 17 November, 9.30am – 11.30am ish)
Presenter: CultureSafe NZ

Creating a mentally healthy workplace is about fostering a strong safe and supportive workplace culture where bullying cannot survive. A toxic environment is the number one reason people move to a different employer. Are you doing everything you can to retain your good people? One in four employees in New Zealand report they have experienced bullying in the workplace. It not only affects individuals but also the productivity of organisations. To prevent bullying, it is essential that workplaces have a clear understanding of what bullying is and the impact that it can have on individuals and the morale of teams.

CultureSafe Christchurch offers an interactive workshop focusing on what bullying is and how to effectively manage allegations and incidents of bullying at a low level.

Seminar info: <http://www.notforprofitsolutions.nz/nfp/training/seminars> ; Book now: http://www.notforprofitsolutions.nz/nfp/booking\_form
Workshops are free to registered not for profits only. If you are from a non-charitable incorporated society, school board of trustees or other community group we can accept your registration for a koha, if spaces are available. We're happy for 2 people per organisation to book for this, perhaps a manager/co-ordinator/ trustee and a front line staff person from your group would like to come together. Your health and safety in the workplace are a priority! Please complete an online registration for each person attending.

Sponsored by Canterbury Community Business Trust thanks to funding from Rata Foundation

Diamond Harbour Library

The Diamond Harbour Library will be closing for refurbishment from Sunday 21 November. It will be closed for two weeks to allow improved floor coverings to be installed and internal painting. The library is scheduled to reopen on Monday 6th December 2021.

During this short period of closure there will not be a Mobile Library provision. Returned items will not be accepted in the library's returns bins during the closure but will be accepted at any other library in our network. The nearest alternative is Lyttelton Library. From Monday 22 November any hold items requested by customers will be available to collect from Lyttelton Library instead, unless another location is requested. Wi-fi will still be available.

INK JOY FOR CHRISTMAS

Sunday 28th November, 1.30-3pm, $15

Join Kazuko Iwai for this fun workshop exploring traditional Japanese inks and brush work. Authentic Japanese calligraphy requires the use of a Japanese ink block. Rubbed in water this ink block can create an incredible number of shades of grey and black. As well as writing characters with brushes, Kazuko will introduce the art of using calligraphy brushes to draw on paper utilizing the many shades of Japanese ink for shading, tone and texture. Create some fun Christmas wrapping paper and cards using just a few strokes of the brush! Suitable for kids (ages 6 and up) and grownups alike, please note kids must be accompanied by an adult. All materials included.

To book visit <https://cwea.arlo.co/w/catalogue>

NEEDLE FELTED CHRISTMAS GNOME
Sunday 5th December, 1.30-3.30, $20

Come and create your own personalized, Christmas Gnome for the season! They're just adorable with their beards and those big noses. They are a good addition to your holiday décor or to give to someone as a gift. In this 2-hour workshop you will design and create your own gnome using wool roving and felting needles. Required supplies will be provided. At the end of the workshop participants will understand the process of how to make a needle felted Christmas Gnome at home using materials readily available. Beginning needle felting class is a prerequisite for this workshop.

- Reinstatement of the stockpiled stone work.
- Reshaping of the asphalt surfacing.

The road will be open to single lane traffic during construction however there may be occasional short delays.

Thanks for your patience as we work in your area

Noise

There may be increased noise, dust and vibrations during work but it shouldn't impact on your power, water, gas or phone services

Safety

Safety is our biggest priority so please keep children and pets away from worksites.

Bins

Please put your bins out as usual before 6am on your collection day. Our crew will move and return them if needed.
