The Review

Is a Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre initiative designed to keep our community informed with what is going on around the harbour. It's also an opportunity to showcase the people and places that other wise would go under the radar. Our community connections ensure we know what's going on in the wider community and can share the news with you all. A big thank you goes out to all the contributors and our funders Rata Foundation and Christchurch City Council Strengthening Communities who enable the hard copies to be printed each edition. Similarly to Wendy Everingham for writing and editing and Jenny-Lee Love for design and production. If you have any local events, news or stories you would like included we'd love to hear from you.

It's a wrap & a goodbye

After working on The Review for the past 5-6 years it's time to move on. I have loved being a part of this great little publication and working along side Wendy Everingham.

Reading the stories, seeing peoples contributions, helping promote new and existing events and business here in Lyttelton and around the bays has been a rewarding and a thrill.

I am looking foward to seeing a new fresh Review in the New Year with Rushani taking over. We are so lucky to have her passion and community spirit to carry on producing our truly local publication. I always got a buzz when someone talked about or referenced something they had read in the Review or noted the cover pics.

Thank you Wendy for being an absolute joy to work with and I think we made a great team, especially through some crazy times, like Covid.

Also thank you to our wonderful community that is full of passionate, proud, unique and people. Keep enjoying this lovely area we are blessed to live in.

Take care, Jenny-Lee Love

Kia ora to all our readers,

And just like that the end of the year is here. Kids are winding up with school and hopefully the weather Gods will bless us with beautiful, warm days for optimal garden growth, plenty of swimming in Te Whakaraupō and road trips to wherever you enjoy visiting. Of course, this time of year isn't as easy breezy as that for everyone, often causing much stress and anxiety within an individual and families. It's a time of year when finances are squeezed, and expectations can be high. Whatever you end up doing this Christmas, I hope you find time for yourself amongst the chaos. A quiet moment for yourself to reflect and enjoy the warmth of the sun on your skin. Meri Kirihimete to you all.

Lyttelton Port Company Announces Major Contribution to Te Ūaka The Lyttelton Museum Rebuild

Te Ūaka The Lyttelton Museum is the recipient of a generous financial contribution of $150,000 from the Lyttelton Port Company (LPC) towards a new museum building. The financial contribution was announced by Roger Gray, CEO of LPC, at the Museum's Christmas Party on Wednesday 8th December.

In Roger's speech he said "Lyttelton Port Company <https://www.lpc.co.nz/> is a proud part of the Whakaraupō community, and our history is inextricably linked to the rest of the harbour. We are thrilled to contribute to such a worthy and historic project, in no small part because so much of the area's history is shared. We hope LPC's show of support for the project will be the foundation for the fundraising effort and encourage many more contributions."

Peter Rough, President of the Lyttelton Historical Museum Society says, "We are extremely grateful for the Lyttelton Port Company's contribution, which will be a significant boost towards realising a new purpose-built museum to safeguard and share precious taonga of Whakaraupō/Lyttelton Harbour and tell stories, such as those about epic voyages of exploration to Antarctica".

It is pleasing to see such a strong statement of support for the proposed Museum from one of Canterbury's largest commercial enterprises and especially from one that has had a long association and deep connections with Whakaraupō/Lyttelton Harbour.

New lookout for Sign of the Bellbird

A new lookout opposite the Sign of the Bellbird featuring stone walls and native plantings will be under construction by February. The Banks Peninsula Community Board approved a proposal to build the lookout and upgrade the current sealed parking area on a mix of Christchurch City Council and Summit Road Society land.

The Summit Road Society has organised funding for the project and construction is expected to begin in February with a completion date in April. Along with the carpark and lookout the plan includes a flat area for a pou whenua and a plaque commemorating the work of Summit Road Society founder John Jameson.

Built in 1914 the Sign of the Bellbird is one of four rest houses built by conservationist and Member of Parliament Henry (Harry) George Ell, who was John Jameson's grandfather.

Society Secretary Marie Gray says the project has been a long time in the making.

"Discussion was happening before the earthquakes. The earthquakes derailed those discussions, so it wasn't until late 2018 that we started talking about it again.

"It's the fulfilment of a long-held dream. This is a special place in the harbour where people will be able to go to enjoy the iconic view."

Ms Gray says the funding to get the project over the line had come from a number of different sources. "Without that collaborative effort it wouldn't have been possible."

I am sitting at my desk, writing, and compiling bits and pieces for my final Lyttelton Review, Number 289 as Editor! Yes, after ten and a half years it is time for me to pass the baton onto someone else. Similarly, our amazing producer Jenny-Lee Love who makes the Review look so stunning and who designed the unique cover banner is also stepping down. The two of us have been such a great team since February 2015 and I can say that as a pair we have worked seamlessly together all these years and have both enjoyed working together and telling Lyttelton Harbour stories. Thank you, Jenny-Lee, for your amazing effort including when you lived in Hamilton and yet still found time to produce the Review!

Finishing as Editor is the end of an era for me. My association with the Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre began back in 2004. At that time, I joined the Trust Board and over the years was a volunteer on the front desk, Manager, Chair, and Lyttelton Review Founder and Editor.

Current Information Centre Manager Rushani Bowman recently asked me a couple of questions about the history of the Review so I thought if that was news for her, it might be for others, so I have chosen to share parts of that story for my last edition.

1. What was the Review all about when it started?

When the Review started in 2011 it was all about Civil Defence information and community information in relation to the earthquakes.

Lynnette Baird and I took over Julie Lee's Timebank Earthquake Community Bulletin and called it the Lyttelton Harbour Review. We began publishing online information every week as there was just so much information locals needed to know and so few places to find Lyttelton Harbour specific the information easily.

As time went on the earthquake information subsided and the community information began to take over. The Review went down to fortnightly publication with the odd Lyttel Broadcast produced if something extraordinary happened where people needed up to date information. The extraordinary things were all Civil Defence emergencies! The earthquakes, floods in 2013, the oil tank slip, Covid 19 and the mosque shootings! Who would ever have dreamt we would have had so many emergency situations!

Community Information published was diverse – locals' stories, Council information, Ecan information, business directory, local events, community group information etc. In 2011 apart from grant funding, the Review via directory membership, was the one thing that the Information Centre was earning a small amount of money from. In those early years like now there were very few tourists.

2. What do you feel the Review is about now.

The Review of today is like its original roots. It is local community stories that often don't get picked up by other papers. It is snippets of information that give updates on clubs, community groups, council information, local events, funding etc, it is about celebrating local writers and keeping the Information Centre relevant to locals. It is a one stop shop for most things in Lyttelton and the wider area. It is still a local emergency publication when needed.

The Review also plays an important role for local democracy, ensuring that locals are informed about things that concern them. It has never been political. Its aim during election times was purely informing people about candidates. Over the years we have only asked each candidate a series of identical questions so that readers get a feel for where they are coming from.

3. Where would you like to see the Review going in the future?

I would like to see the Review continue to tell local stories, community news and anything of interest to the people of the harbour to enable them to participate in community life. It would be nice to have a couple more contributors to share more stories of the Harbour. I will certainly be happy to pen a story of two.

What I love about our Harbour most is the culture of possibility that has been created. This philosophy came from Margaret Jefferies leadership. We all have the freedom to fill gaps and create magic. That is really the story of the Review. Our community needed information and I was able to get a team together to make that happen. It is wonderful that the Review is still going strong after ten and a half years and that it has played an important role documenting a rather tumultuous time for us all. Its success belongs to our community - loyal readers, funders, and contributors. A big thank you to everyone who has helped along the way. Special thanks Jenny-Lee Love and Lynnette Baird for their amazing design skills and BNS Print who have produced most of the printed editions of the Review over the years.

This special community inspired treasure will now be handed over to a new team lead by Information Centre Manager Rushani Bowman. Rushani has so many talents including publishing and writing. The next era of the Lyttelton Review is in very capable hands.

Birds of Whakaraupō

Are they Familiar to You?

The latest exhibition at the Lyttelton Library is a joint project between Project Lyttelton and Whaka-Ora Healthy Harbour. The exhibition has been inspired by our local birds. Four exhibitors, Stephen Howard, Christine Davey, Neil McPhail, and Nathan Secker have taken photos of the birds that they see in their everyday lives.

Mauī Couch opened the exhibition and as he walked into the room, he commented that he felt the life force of the nature on the walls and mentioned what a beautiful space had been created. "This exhibition will be good for our young and old to see our birds over summer. The photos are a great indicator of the health of our natural world."

Sarah van der Burch, Project Lyttelton's Chair was grateful for the opportunity to all be together for this intimate exhibition and highlighted that the Korowai used to symbolise the aspirations of Whaka-Ora Healthy Harbour was worth a visit. Made from feathers of the harbour birds it added to the exhibition. While not located in the library it can be viewed at the Christchurch City Council head office.

There are photos of Piwakawaka/Black Phase Fantail, Korimako/Bellbird, Kererū/Wood Pigeons, Silvereyes, Kōtare/Kingfisher, Kōtuku, Spoonbill, Riroriro/Grey Warbler, Kāhu/Swamp Harrier.

Stephen Howard came to bird photography during the lockdown in 2020. Being home every day he noticed just how many birds were around his Diamond Harbour home. "I'd done quite a bit of photography ten years ago. During lockdown I picked up the camera again and using YouTube I honed my bird photography skills." Stephen has some stunning photos of the everyday birds that he encounters. To see more of his work visit www.weavinglight.net

Christine Davey's slice of Whakaraupō is on a small farm near Governors Bay. She has lived here for over 60 years and is still entranced by the beauty of the harbour and loves how she is "wrapped in the arms of the volcano". The local environment is particularly important to her. Photography is just one of the arts in which she is interested. She is also a ceramicist and quilter. She gains her inspiration from the natural environment. She aims to take bird photos throughout the entire country.

Nathan Secker lives over the hill in Christchurch. He describes his artwork as a depiction of "The light, landscape, shapes and colours found in nature."

Neil McPhail is recently retired. He has always liked photography, in particular landscape and sunrises of which he says there are certainly plenty of in the harbour basin. A new camera has inspired him to take more photos.

The exhibition is a wonderful place for you to learn more about our local birds.

Cass Bay Residents Association Update

The Cass Bay Residents Association has had a busy year with social, ecological and community activities.

The summer beach party, in March, was well attended again with the kids enjoying such activities as a treasure hunt and the hilarious raft race. The most popular event is which craft will sink first. This was followed by about eighty people enjoying a mid-winter potluck dinner at Steadfast. Halloween saw an interesting assortment of witches, zombies, pirates, princesses, and a puffer fish having a lively time at the Cass Bay playground with a bouncy castle and our usual gourmet BBQ. The year was finished off with a very pleasant morning tea in a local's garden on a day when the weather behaved itself and turned out beautifully sunny.

Work has continued the local reserves with volunteers watering the newer plantings over the long, hot summer as well as weeding around plants. Even very little locals joined in. About fifty enthusiastic people turned up for our planting day in September, just before the lockdown, and managed to get an impressive 380 plants into the ground before a wintery squall hit and sent us inside where a BBQ warmed people up. In all 3500 natives have been planted this year as part of the Whaka Ora Healthy Harbour riparian planting project at Steadfast.

To increase our biodiversity and help our native wildlife, as part of Predator Free Port Hills, there has been an interesting talk by Brent Barrett about pests and their habits and a rat tunnel building workshop.

After years of no access and local community requests the Christchurch City Council have twice consulted on a Draft Landscape Plan to open the area currently called Steadfast as a community park. It's great news that the Banks Peninsula Community Board have approved this at their meeting on the 6th of December and the area will be able to be accessed by the public at some stage in 2022. There are some safety concerns to be sorted out before this happens and the community and Navy Cadets are still working towards leasing some of the buildings for their use. This is a great result!

Ecan have just finished a survey to see how the community feel about a proposed change to the 28-bus route, to make it go from the Airport to the Port. Residents are concerned that the twenty-nine students who will be going to Cashmere High School from 2022 have no suitable bus service, having to leave at 7.00am and change buses three times to get there and don't get back until 5.00pm at the earliest. We are hoping for some solution before the next academic year. There are also no buses during the middle of the day or weekends that go beyond Lyttelton towards Rāpaki, which leaves particularly older residents feeling isolated.

Council releases new summer events programme

Crowd favourite Sparks will kick-off a new line-up of summer events in Christchurch.

Christchurch City Council has firmed up plans for its summer events programme following the release of information about the Covid-19 Protection Framework by the Government last week. Events and Arts Manager Lucy Blackmore says the Council can run outdoor community events under the Orange traffic light system, but sites will be contained and proof of vaccine will be required for people aged 12 and three months and older to attend.

"We've taken these requirements into account and are thrilled to let people know the fantastic line-up of events we have planned," she says.

The first big event is musical extravaganza Sparks, on Saturday 22 January 2022, in North Hagley Park, with the Christchurch Symphony Orchestra finalising the songs it will play before a dazzling 10-minute fireworks display to end the night's entertainment.

Next on the calendar is the Summer Sundays series, formerly Lazy Sundays, which will feature free live music on the Archery Lawn in the Botanic gardens from 30 January until 6 March 2022.

Following the cancellation last month of New Year's Eve celebrations and Kite Day, two new events in Victoria Square have been added to the calendar, specifically for families and young people.

Summer Nights, a concert at dusk featuring popular local artists in a carnival setting, will run from 6pm-10pm on Saturday 12 March. The following day, Sunday 13 March, Family Festival will see a free day of fun and activity for the whole family held in Victoria Square.

The Council also runs, in partnership with other groups and organisations, a number of other community events over summer.

Popular annual Te Rā O Ngā Tamariki Children's Day will again be held online in 2022 following the success of this year's event that was held virtually, while Culture Galore will go ahead in line with the Covid-19 Protection Framework protocols on Saturday 19 February 2022, from noon to 4pm, at Ray Blank Park.

Unfortunately, the annual Anthony Harper Summer Theatre usually held in the Botanic Gardens in January has also been cancelled for this year due to the uncertainty caused by Covid-19, following discussion between the Council, sponsor Anthony Harper and the production company that was involved in staging the show.

"While this is disappointing, we are all committed to bringing back Summer Theatre in early 2023. We are also exploring other options for pop-up theatre performances to be held in the central city this summer, similar to the Christmas pop-up performances that are planned in City Mall from 17-23 December.

"We hope our residents enjoy the events that are planned to go ahead this summer. We thank them as well for their patience as we all come to grips with new ways of doing things to keep us all safe in challenging times."

The next chapter of the Lyttelton Review

Not only is it the end of 2021 but also the end of an era for the Lyttelton Review. Wendy Everingham, our dedicated editor of 10 years is handing over the role of Kaitiaki of our local publication, the Lyttelton Review to yours truly. Wendy established the Lyttelton Review in 2011 as a means of communicating Civil Defence and community information in relation to the earthquakes. As there was so much information that the community needed to know and so few places to find all the information easily, it was published on a weekly basis for one whole year. Over the years, the Lyttelton Review and the Lyttel Broadcast have become the place for community news when people need up-to-date information on a variety of events that have happened directly or indirectly to our community. I wish to thank Wendy and also Jenny-Lee, who has been responsible for the graphic design and layout work on the Lyttelton Review, for their solid contribution towards our community. We wish you both the very best.

What does this mean for our community?

How will we share relevant news? Well, over the summer holidays work will be happening behind the scenes to bring you a refreshed and new publication to enjoy. It's a very exciting chapter in the history of having a publication in our village and reminds me of something I read from the first edition of The Lyttelton Times (11 January 1851) that stated "In a populous and wealthy country, a newspaper is usually the organ and voice of some political or other sector of the community, upon whom it depends for support". Whilst we will skip the politics, I took inspiration from our Colonial immigrants and wish to use this opportunity to reach a wider range of 'other sectors' such as local individuals, community groups and businesses to deliver content that is highly relevant and personal to life in Whakaraupō.

We are hoping to launch the new publication in March 2022, however in the meantime, we will email out a regular Lyttelton Broadcast for information as you need it. If you have any suggestions as we move into this next chapter or wish to become a contributor of some sort, you're also most welcome to contact me on review@lytteltoninfocentre.nz

Is your household a high water user?

Christchurch City Council's new online Water Reporter means households can now easily check how much water they have been using ahead of charges for high users coming into effect from mid-next year. Properties in Christchurch and Banks Peninsula that regularly use large amounts of water will soon start paying extra for their water supply under the Council's new Excess Water Supply Targeted Rate, which applies from 1 July 2022.

Most households in Christchurch and Banks Peninsula are average water users and will not use enough to receive an invoice.

Council Head of Three Waters and Waste Helen Beaumont says the new Water Reporter tool gives people a window into their water use and a reason to think differently about how much they are using, particularly over summer.

"The Water Reporter means people can easily start to get a sense of the amount of water they've been using, what it might cost, and whether they want to make some changes to avoid an invoice from July next year.

"Some properties will have high meter readings due to underground leaks that they don't know about. We've put information on our Water Reporter webpage about how to read your water meter and how to check for leaks, so people can get them sorted before the new targeted rate applies."

The Excess Water Supply Targeted Rate will apply to any single household with a water meter that uses, on average, more than 700 litres a day – roughly equivalent to 100 toilet flushes.

Property owners will pay a fixed rate of $1.35 for every 1,000 litres they use over the limit.

Multiple households served by a single water meter won't have to pay until separate meters can be installed, unless there is a special agreement in place specifying which household or ratepayer is responsible for payment.

Households sharing a water meter are generally low to average water users because the majority are smaller properties within multi-unit developments with very compact or shared gardens.

"Christchurch's water use in summer is about double that in winter, mostly due to people watering lawns and gardens with sprinklers and irrigation systems," Ms Beaumont says.

"Because there's previously been no cost to residents for using lots of water – and practical difficulties in enforcing water restrictions – we've had to try to appeal to people's goodwill to reduce water usage.

"Charging for excess water supply will help us manage the city's water demand better and reduce the high costs of pumping extra water over summer. It will also mean less money spent on expanding our water supply network just to cater for the small proportion of high users over summer.

"When other parts of the country have put in place similar charges, they've seen a drop in water use of 20 to 30 per cent.

"Reducing high water use will also help to improve the sustainability of the district's drinking water supply, which aligns with our climate change goals."

Te Hau Tāhengihengi

Lyttelton will be getting a new mural on the corner of Norwich Quay and Canterbury Street in time for Christmas. The artwork design has been led by local artist Amber Moke in partnership with students from Te Kura Tuatahi o Ōhinehou, Lyttelton School. The large artwork will run for more than 30 metres along the fence in front of the old Shadbolt House and Royal Hotel sites.

The mural design is inspired by the Whaka Ora Healthy Harbour Plan Korowai. Amber says 'It speaks to kaitiakitanga (guardianship) and kotahitanga (unity) within and for our environment. It's a kaupapa based on creating space for creative mindfulness and bringing communities together to create something visible that they feel connected to and proud of.'

Community Board member Reuben Davidson has been working with the site tenants Fulton Hogan and local businesses and says, 'right from the beginning there has been so much support for this kaupapa and the project, it's great to see such a willingness for positive projects in Port'.

The artwork will be created in The Wool Store building at Te Ana Marina over the next week, with an open invitation to the community to come down to see it being created and get involved. It will be installed on site in time for Christmas.

Amber hopes Te Hau Tāhengihengi will provide local kids and the wider community with 'a lasting memory of an enjoyable time together and a sense of pride in seeing their work displayed publicly.'

Made possible with support from Christchurch City Council, Fulton Hogan, Lyttelton Port Company, Mitre 10, and Resene.

Te Ūaka Lyttelton Museum at the Market

MARKET DAY STALL

"Great oaks from little acorns grow"

Te Ūaka The Lyttelton Museum will be hosting its last stall of the year at the Lyttelton Farmers Market on the 18th of December, at the site of the proposed new building, 35 London St (down the stairs next to Henry Trading).

This is a great opportunity to chat with Museum volunteers and find out more about the plans for the future Museum. A 2022 calendar with wonderful animal themed images from the Museum collection is for sale, along with cards, postcards, aprons, totes and very special oak tree seedlings grown from acorns from a tree planted in Christchurch in 1917 by Shackleton himself! Truly delicious, locally made carrot cake is available to taste and order for Christmas. You can fulfil your Christmas present needs and support your community Museum with any purchase!

Remembering Polish settlers

A commemorative plaque to mark 150 years of Polish settlement in Canterbury is to be installed in the Sumner Road Gardens opposite the Lyttelton Police Station.

The plaque will sit on a boulder and be dedicated to the first Polish immigrants who arrived in Lyttelton on 30 August 1872. The site was chosen as it provides a good view of the area where the settlers first arrived. A formal unveiling is planned for May next year.

Akaroa Wharf Replacement

This project is now open for feedback. Consultation closes on Monday 31 January 2022.

The 134-year-old Akaroa Wharf, originally constructed in 1887, is reaching the end of its viable life and it is no longer possible or economical to keep repairing and maintaining it. Funding of $19.1M for a replacement wharf was included in the Long-Term Plan 2021-31 and the Council is keen to replace the wharf as soon as possible to keep within budget due to escalating construction costs in the COVID-19 environment.

Details of this project, including cultural significance, heritage, progress to day, plans for the new wharf, next steps, additional technical information and the link to make a submission can be found on the Council website at: Have Your Say.

There will be two drop-in sessions for anyone wanting to talk to us in person:

Wednesday 8 December 2021, anytime between 3pm and 7pm at the
Gaiety Hall, Akaroa

Wednesday 19 January 2022, anytime between 4pm and 6pm in the Function Room, Civic Offices, 53 Hereford St, Christchurch.

These sessions may need to be postponed or cancelled if COVID-19 alert levels change.
Under current guidelines, attendees will need to practice physical distancing. Please scan/sign in and wear a mask.

The Garage Sale

The Garage Sale will close for a Christmas break on Wednesday 22nd December. It will re-open on Wednesday January 12th.

Stoddart Cottage Gallery Exhibitions

DECEMBER JANUARY

Margaret at Home

31 December – 4 January

Stoddart Cottage Trust is having a New Year exhibition showcasing our local heritage, especially for visitors to Diamond Harbour during this busy time.

Featuring several lesser-known original works as well as photographs, objects and reproductions of some of her most familiar works, this exhibition highlights connections between the well-known Canterbury impressionist painter Margaret Stoddart (1865-1935) and Diamond Harbour, the place where she spent her childhood.

Held in the house where Margaret and her siblings were born, (our own Stoddart Cottage c.1862), the display reveals the artist and her family in context, both domestic and in the wider Lyttelton Harbour Whakaraupo setting.

This special exhibition runs for five days only. A wide range of very fine locally handmade arts and crafts will be available to buy from the Artisans' shop in the building as usual.

Stitched Emotion II by Sook Hwang

7-30 January 2022

In Stitched Emotion II, textile artist Sook Hwang uses fabric dyeing and freehand machine embroidery to process and narrate human emotions and feelings. She uses her work to express extreme opposites of emotional states; juxtaposing optimism through her regular use of rich colours, with the harsher complexities of feeling suggested by coarse-grained materials, such as raw silk. She uses the stitches of her intricate embroidery to bring these forces together in "a point of magical fusion".

Korean-born Sook Hwang has worked as a fabric artist for many decades, creating detailed and complex works that can take many months to complete. She has a Master's degree in Creative Arts from University of Wollongong, and now lives in Cass Bay. Prior to the earthquakes she worked from a studio in the Arts Centre. <http://www.sookcollection.co.nz/>

Spur valerian

Centranthus ruber

Identification

- Perennial up to 80 cm tall, with a woody base and tap root
- Leaves are green or blue/green
- Flower heads which are either deep pink, red or white, are made up of many small flowers
- In full flower from October to December but can flower until June

Where is it a problem?

Spur valerian is usually found in rocky coastal areas but can also be found growing inland. In Canterbury it is spreading along roadsides.

Why is it a problem?

Spur valerian produces lots of wind spread seeds and can quickly form dense stands shading out other plants. It is a serious threat to rare native plants which are found on rocky outcrops and cliffs around Banks Peninsula, on the Port Hills and also some inland areas.

Have you seen it?

Staff at Christchurch City Council are keen to stop spur valerian establishing along roadsides from Corsair/Cass Bay to Charteris Bay or elsewhere on Banks Peninsula. To report spur valerian to the council phone 03 941 7572 or email di.carter@ccc.govt.nz.

Control

It can be difficult to pull or dig out even small plants. Cutting and stump treating may be the best option—saw off the plant at the base and immediately treat the base with herbicide to prevent resprouting. Use all herbicides in accordance with the manufacturer's instructions and ensure no herbicide comes into contact with other plants, the soil or waterways.

What can you do?

If you have spur valerian in your garden consider removing it, particularly if you live in a coastal area or close to rocky outcrops.
