Lyttelton Farmers Market 7TH Birthday Celebration

Saturday 1 September: Catering for the Children

This coming Saturday, 1 September 2012, the Lyttelton Farmers Market turns seven and they are throwing a party! This year it is all about the children!

The Lyttelton Farmers Market focuses on building community, connecting people to where their food comes from and promoting fresh, local produce. The Lyttelton Farmers Market wants children to be involved in all of this, and so for the seventh birthday party they are providing heaps of activities to help get children engaged with the market.

Thumbs up Puppetry will be presenting two performances of Peter Rabbit, suitable for three to seven year olds [and any of the big kids to!]. At 10.30am and 11.30am in the school hall the children will be able to cheer on Peter Rabbit as he raids Mr McGregor's veggie patch, learn Peter Rabbit songs and help Mr. McGregor get his carrots to the Lyttelton Farmers Market.

There will be a baking competition in aid of St John Ambulance. Entrants need will to bring a plate of home baking [cupcakes, slices, muffins, cakes etc] and enter it at the Farmers Market Information Stall by 11.30am. At 12noon the judges will sample the entries and choose a winner from the under eight year olds and from the nine to fifteen year old categories. The winning entry will receive a family pass to the Antarctic Centre.

There will be a colouring-in competition to win, and children can make their own block puzzle from New Zealand creative company Seedling, plus a crafty table where children can make a Father's Day card for dad. And look out for roaming street performers and more surprises to!

This event is brought to you by Project Lyttelton and generously sponsored by: Crater Rim Winery, The London Street Dairy, Harbour Co-op, Gruff Junction Cheeses, Volcano Markets, Caddie Gardens, Seedling, Freemans Dining Room, The Antarctic Centre, Phantom Bill Stickers, 328 Design, Printable Solutions, the Lyttelton Time Bank and The Garage Sale.

The Lyttelton Farmers Market is run by Project Lyttelton, a charitable grass roots community organisation whose focus is on creating a sustainable Lyttelton for the future. The market operates from the grounds of Lyttelton Main School, Oxford Street, Lyttelton every Saturday Morning from 10.00am until 1.00pm.

Lyttelton Toy Library is ReOpening

Council Provides Space for Sorely Missed Group

The Lyttelton Plunket rooms were damaged after the September earthquake; however repairs were carried out and the Lyttelton Toy Library was open again on 25 January 2011. Sadly, only weeks later the February earthquake caused significant damage and the building was red stickered.

The Lyttelton volunteer fire brigade retrieved the toys from the building and the toy library resumed a partial service with the smaller toys from a room in the Recreation Centre in late May 2011. This was not to last long though as the Recreation Centre was closed down in early December 2011 due to building code assessments and upgrades. All of the Lyttelton Plunket services were able to be relocated except the toy library which did not have a suitable venue to operate from. The toys were now stuck in two different places, the Recreation Centre and the toy sheds beside the damage Plunket building.

The decision to demolish the Plunket building came in May 2012 and the Christchurch City Council offered a double garage on Canterbury Street as a temporary location for the toy library. After some more toy retrievals and a lot of hard work, notably by the toy librarian Roz Jenkins, committee member Andrea Solzer and her husband Matthias, the garage space has been transformed into a toy library.

Great news, the Lyttelton Toy Library is finally able to get going again! And, you are invited to join us on the first day of the resumed toy library service.

When: Saturday 1 September
Open: 9.00am to 11.00am
Where: 25 Canterbury Street—Garage under the flat

Toy Libraries are a fantastic resource for families with young children to access a range of quality toys and dress-ups at minimal cost. The Lyttelton Plunket Toy Library aims to provide children aged from birth to five years with toys, puzzles and games that are educational, fun, safe and clean

As well as being fun, these toys:

- promote hand/eye co-ordination, muscle tone and strength
- promote creativity by encouraging spontaneity and self-expression
- are educational and stimulate mental growth

There is an annual member subscription fee of $42 however the Lyttelton Toy Library will not be starting this straight away, so effectively the sessions in September will be free.

We look forward to welcoming back members and meeting new members.

For more information in regard to the Lyttelton toy library email lyttelton.plunket@gmail.com or contact Roz Jenkins on 328-8552.

about the lyttelton review

Lyttelton Review is a community newsletter initiative developed by local Professionals real estate agent Lynnette Baird and Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre chairperson Wendy Everingham. The objective of the Lyttelton Review is to help keep local residents informed with what is going on in the wider Lyttelton Harbour community. Each week readers can read about community groups; businesses; events; and everything in between. If you have an event, topic, cause, or other, that you would like to share with the harbour community, then we would love to hear from you. Be heard, be seen, be informed - read it or offer it here.

Community Resilience

How to Empower Resilience in Communities

Lyttelton and Sumner were represented at a Community Resilience workshop at the 6th Australasian Emergency Management Conference in Christchurch last week. Community members, James Young, Marnie Kent and Wendy Everingham were invited by the Ministry of Civil Defence and Emergency Management to tell their community stories about how their communities responded during the earthquakes. They were also joined by several other presenters focusing on community resilience from a government implementation and policy perspective.

For Sumner this community basically swung into action as a result of adversity. The February earthquake saw Marnie step up to facilitate Sumner's new community hub. Many community initiatives have gained momentum since then. Events, a plan for the township centre, food initiatives, a Timebank, community web site, an emergency plan, a community co-ordinator have all sprung up as this community seeks to strengthen its connectedness and shape its own direction into the future. James stepped up in June and was instrumental in creating an entire community based emergency response plan for the suburb. The quakes were an awakening call that summonsed this community to take responsibility for itself to get the outcomes they wanted.

In Lyttelton the story was a bit different. Lyttelton has been actively building community for many years. Demonstrating a culture of possibilities, many residents and groups have had permission to create events, projects etc that have enhanced the community. Some examples include the development of the Farmers Market, the Lyttelton Timebank, the harbour resilience project, Community House and Volcano Radio. There was never an expressed intention to build the community to cope with emergencies but this was one of the unintended outcomes of our ability to handle our situation well.

As a tool that was demonstrated to work well both prior, during and after the event Wendy highlighted that TimeBanks were a great way to build community resilience for any community that was willing to embrace this concept. She suggested that other communities be encouraged to use this community tool as a way to build resilience because for Lyttelton the TimeBank proved such a useful resource in our emergency situation. We knew our communities skills, we knew how to get in touch with people, we were able to help keep people informed, we were able to assist emergency services fill gaps. We had this ready resource and its benefits were significant.

Dan Neely then spoke on behalf of the Wellington Regional Council. He heads up the community resilience team for that region. Interestingly his team exists to facilitate communities find what they need to improve capacity, co-operation and connectedness for life in general. This could be a TimeBank, community response plans, Street Reporter initiatives and the list went on.

Throughout the country there are many different approaches to community emergency management and resilience. Current models are being challenged and a one size fits all model was definitely not advocated for. It was acknowledged that we have complex communities and each have different needs. The challenge for governments and communities will be how we can work more effectively together so that communities are empowered and supported to be resilient.

Environment Canterbury Funding

Protecting Freshwater Biodiversity Values

The Canterbury Water Banks Peninsula Zone Committee has funding available over the next four years to support landowners to protect freshwater biodiversity values in the Banks Peninsula Zone. The biodiversity funding is intended to support on the ground actions which protect the ecosystem health of freshwater habitats such as wetlands, springs, coastal streams, braided rivers, lakes and lowland waterways.

The Banks Peninsula Zone Committee have just over $430,000 worth of biodiversity protection funds left to allocate towards projects in the Banks Peninsula Zone. Four projects have already been approved, all of which focus on protecting Banks Peninsula streams.

The Committee has identified some key criteria that they consider to be a priority when considering projects for funding support. Projects with good connectivity with other protected areas or reserves are a priority, particularly focussing on the Ki Uta Ki Tai 'from the mountains to the sea' approach to waterway protection. Areas of high biodiversity value which are particularly vulnerable to threats such as pests and weeds or land-use changes are also considered to be of high importance, along with high visibility and educational opportunities for the public. Projects which show collaboration between landowners and community groups are encouraged, as are projects which show a willingness to extend beyond the requirements set by the current stock exclusion rules.

The Zone Committee has expressed that the funding is to be spread as evenly as possible across the Banks Peninsula zone to ensure a balance of support. Examples of biodiversity protection projects could include; fencing riparian vegetation and waterways off from stock, weed and pest management and riparian planting.

If you think you have a biodiversity protection project that could benefit from some financial support, please contact Robyn Russ [Environment Canterbury Biodiversity Officer] on 027 475 6290 or email robyn.russ@ecan.govt.nz

Bells Pharmacy: Family Health Advice

What Causes Eczema and How Can You Get Rid of It?

This is the first in a two part series, next time Bells Pharmacy will focus more on how to exactly use certain treatments such as moisturisers, steroids and natural remedies.

Eczema, also known as atopic dermatitis is a skin condition that causes your skin to be dry/rough and itchy, and sometimes inflamed (red). It's very common in children, but eczema can occur in people of any age, and more often in people who are sensitive to allergens and/or with a family history of eczema, hay fever, or asthma. Thankfully you cannot 'catch' eczema off other people.

What causes it? There are two main ideas about what causes eczema.

1. The more traditional view is that eczema is mainly an immune reaction to environmental factors.
2. However recent research suggests that skin barrier defects also play a key role. These defects arise from gene mutations and result in loss of function of structural proteins.

It is most likely that eczema arises from a combination of both genetic and environmental factors.

Most cases of eczema first develop in children aged under five years and about one in six school children have some degree of eczema. However, in about two thirds of cases, by the mid teenage years, the flare-ups of eczema have either gone completely, or are much less of a problem. It is unusual to first develop eczema after the age of 20, although eczema may go into remission in childhood and reappear in adult life. There is no way of predicting which children will be affected as adults.

Is that bigger deal? The impact of eczema on families is an important consideration. Studies have found that the care of a child with severe eczema can have a significantly greater impact on family functioning, than the care of children with other chronic conditions, such as diabetes.

Eczema can even impact on career choice. A teenager with eczema should be aware that hair dressing, nursing, cooking and cleaning jobs, for example, are associated with a high risk of chronic hand dermatitis. People with eczema who work in the food, hospitality and health industries may find that their occupation adversely influences their eczema, and that they may not be able to work if they have visible eczema, particularly if it is infected.

To control you eczema you need consider these three key areas:

1. Find and eliminate or minimise the things that make your eczema worse.
2. Keep your skin happy by maintaining it's barrier function with moisturisers.
3. Have a plan for when it gets out of hand - Most people use anti-inflammatory treatments for this.

Some people have had great success preventing flare ups with oral probiotics such as eczema shield, and by having sources rich in omega 3 oils such as flax seed oil and fish oil.

Don McGlashan Solo Performance Dates

Save the Date: September 28

One of New Zealand's best-known and beloved songwriters, Don McGlashan, takes to the road this Spring with an intimate solo show to road-test new material for a forthcoming solo album.

With a career that includes Blam Blam Blam, The Front Lawn, The Mutton Birds, and a pair of highly-acclaimed solo albums, Don shows no signs of slacking off, in fact he's been performing more and more in recent years. In this solo show, Don will play new songs along with classics from his back catalogue, using guitar, looping pedals, toys and brass instruments.

Don opened for Crowded House on their 2008 US, European and Australian tours, and was a guest musician with the band. In 2009 he took part in Neil Finn's Seven Worlds Collide project – collaborating on his own songs with Johnny Marr, and members of Wilco and Radiohead. In 2010 he featured on "Stroke", the benefit/tribute album for Chris Knox that also includes Yo La Tengo, Lambchop, The Mountain Goats, Will Oldham and Lou Barlow. More recently he's collaborated live with the likes of Australian master-songwriter Paul Kelly and Brian Ritchie of The Violent Femmes, taken his solo show to sell-out audiences in London and New York, and re-formed The Mutton Birds for a hugely successful winery tour earlier this year.

David Sheppard of Q Magazine described Don's songs as "from the same cerebral power-pop motherlode as Big Star and Early REM" and called The Mutton Birds' 4th album "Rain Steam & Speed" "...a minor masterpiece"

Nick Bollinger, The Listener: "One of our most enduring artists"... "Where most modern pop sounds as if it was cloned from some long-established archetype, McGlashan is that rare musician who only ever reminds us of himself."

When: Friday September 28

Lyttelton Garage Sale

A Project Lyttelton Initiative

A heart warming $5,928 dollars was raised at the Lyttelton Garage Sale during April, May and June. Community groups including Lyttelton Plunket, the Lyttelton Time bank, the Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre, Kids Karate Club, the Community Garden, Civil Defence, Lyttelton Main School PTA and the Lyttelton Oscar all ran Saturday sales.

Thanks to assistance from the Hugh Green Foundation some new signage has been made, and local designer Jen Kenix has created a joint poster campaign with the Grassy antiques and collectibles market. The Phantom bill sticker team has generously offered to post 100 of these posters up around Christchurch for free.

The Lyttelton Garage Sale continues to receive wonderfully generous donations, and a huge thank you goes out to everyone in the community who have donated their second hand goods. The Lyttelton Garage Sale operates entirely on these gifts and donations. It is a great testament to the strength of this community that so much money can be raised by local people for local initiatives.

Lyttelton Time Bank

A Project Lyttelton Initiative

It has been an incredibly busy first quarter for the Lyttelton Time Bank. There have been between five and ten new members joining each month, and a total of more than 430 members at the time of writing all trading a total of between 250 and 350 hour each month. The Lyttelton Time Bank Co-ordinators have completed a database clean up and have been conducting surveys of members, with results coming back extremely positive.

Wednesday events were held into early winter. These were then stopped for the season and replaced temporarily with some games nights and a series of educational courses called WINTERFEST. Time bank members have been teaching these classes ranging in topic from guitar lessons to cheese making. Students pay to attend using their time credits. Due to the success of these courses the Time Bank co-ordinators are examining ways of continuing this form of time banking as they seem to be such a great way of sharing skills within the community.

There is a new rack card and footpath signage, which is used at the Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre and also as signage and advertising at special events. The Time Bank team runs drop in sessions every Tuesday to Friday from 9.00am to 11.00am down at the Lyttelton Harbour Information Centre Port-a-Cabin at 65 London Street. Everyone is welcome to drop in and anyone who wants to find out more about time banking, receive help with the computer etc.

Lyttelton Time Bank is working with the schools, Community House and the Health Centre to see how time banking can tie in with each of these vital groups. The Lyttelton Time Bank has also been working closely with Civil Defence, looking at how the two can complement each other and examining the way Time Banking contributed to the community's response both in the immediate aftermath of the earthquakes and our longer term recovery.

Lyttelton Community Garden

A Project Lyttelton Initiative

It's been a typically quiet few months for the community garden – many participants are self-confessed fair weather gardeners! However, with a visit in May from the Student Volunteer Army and some passion by those few dedicated stalwarts, paths have been cleared and bark chip laid, winter crops sewn and are now being harvested, compost turned and fruit trees pruned back.

Now as we edge towards spring the garden gives us renewed inspiration – snow peas, broad beans, silver beat, leeks, rocket and salad all enjoying the recent rain and growing well! We have welcomed some new chickens to our flock. A section of the lower allotment garden will be used for a permaculture course over the coming weeks.

We would be keen to hear from anyone that currently cannot attend the regular Wednesday gardening sessions but wishes to be involved – we are thinking of Monday early evenings, starting in spring when we have the light. If this is something that interests you please let us know by emailing office@lyttelton.net.nz or calling us on 3289243.

suburban papers available

Do you know that each week at the Lyttelton Information Centre you can collect most of your local newspapers? We get all the editions of The Star, Bay Harbour News, generally the Akaroa Mail and sometimes the Christchurch Mail. Every Thursday we also have hard copies of our own Lyttelton Review. We also have local events advertised in our windows plus many brochures for events happening in the greater area.

Oops!

From time to time here at the Lyttelton Review we get it wrong. Last week we ran an article entitled "SCIRT Works Notice Update" in reference to the emergency retaining wall work following the storm and floods of the previous week. In this article we posted photographs found via The Press on line, with credit given to The Press.

These photos were taken by the very talented Rowena Laing, a local Lyttelton resident who was out braving the cold and rain that night helping fellow residents and neighbours. Our sincere apologies for not giving credit where credit was due, clearly an oversight on our part.

Useful Little Satnav

A Little Humour Forwarded From the Editor's Husband

I have a little Satnav, it sits there in my car, a Satnav is a driver's friend, it tells you where you are.

I have a little Satnav, I've had it most my life, it's better than the normal ones, my Satnav is my wife.

It gives me full instructions, especially how to drive, "it's thirty miles an hour", it says "you're doing thirty five"

It tells me when to stop and start, and when to use the brake, and tells me that it's never ever, safe to overtake

It tells me when a light is red, and when it goes to green, it seems to know instinctively, just when to intervene

It lists the vehicles just in front, and all those to the rear, and taking this into account, it specifies my gear.

I'm sure no other driver, has so helpful a device, for when we leave and lock the car, it still gives its advice.

It fills me up with counselling, each journey's pretty fraught, so why don't I exchange it, and get a quieter sort?

Ah well, you see, it cleans the house, makes sure I'm properly fed, it washes all my shirts and things, and - keeps me warm in bed!

Despite all these advantages, and my tendency to scoff, I do wish that once in a while, I could turn the damned thing off.

LIFT Library Film Evening

Wednesday 29 August

The next LIFT Library Film Evening will be held Wednesday 29th August, featuring "THRIVE: What on Earth will it take?" As in to bring this world back under control of the right people – us! This documentary links issues of energy, power [as in human], corporations, banks, world government, media, population, etc, by "following the money upstream" – and then shows ways of creating solutions. Even if you don't accept everything presented, there is no doubt that most of it demands action. You'll have plenty to think about after watching this film, made in 2011.

What: LIFT Library Film Evening
When: Wednesday 29 August
Where: The Portal, 54a Oxford Street [behind the swimming pool]
Time: 6.30pm for shared meal
7.15pm film begins

The Democracy Sham

Author: Bryan Gould

This is a book written in 2006 but very topical as it challenges the benefits of globalization and the rise and rise of corporate power at the expense of democratic processes. Bryan Gould is a New Zealander who had an eminent career as a diplomat in the British Foreign Office before coming back to New Zealand as the Vice-Chancellor of Waikato University until 2004.

Bryan Gould looks at the evidence of the benefits of globalization. He is arguing that in the last 25 years the overall world growth rate has slowed down, and that inequalities within countries but also between countries have widened. In other words the global economy has performed poorly especially for third world countries. Gould identifies the successful propaganda of the proponents of a globalised economy as a major obstacle for the engagement of public opinion on the issues. He gives evidence that market fundamentalism has impregnated all aspects of society from the World Bank, to the IMF, to governments, universities and most institutions.

He argues that the most significant conditions that have created globalization are the free movement of capital and the uniform application of monetary policy across the greater part of the world economy. Bryan Gould believes that governments should be able to fix and regulate their own exchange rates and therefore their own monetary policies, rather than leave them up to the market. This is not enough for one country to do - it needs to be a concerted effort by many countries.

The crux of the book is that democracy is becoming increasingly at the mercy of multinational corporations, as governments bow to the pressures of investment capital. The last chapter is about what can be done about it. Bryan Gould is not particularly hopeful. He believes that the coalition of power between media, political elites and corporate power makes it very difficult to combat. He believes nations need to reclaim their rights to self-governance. Collaboration between countries is going to be essential to counteract the power of multinationals and capital.

An easily read, very topical book.

The World Without Us

Author: Alan Weisman

Another 'new-old' book has arrived, and I simply had to keep reading it, once started. I can see why it won several book prizes in 2007. I thought I already knew a lot about how humans have affected the natural world – but I was learning all the way through. It's like holding an encyclopaedia in one hand, easy to read and understand [a few technical terms won't put you off]. Weisman has called on experts in many fields of knowledge to show how the world used to be before we humans arrived, what we have done to nature, and how the world would change if all humans disappeared. It's fascinating, and horrifying, and enlightening, and humorous all in 353 pages, plus many more pages of acknowledgements. You just have to believe him, because of his sources. I now understand so much more, and am looking at ways of living that will reduce my effect on the world, no matter how small. One way is to get you to borrow this book and be inspired too!

If you are interested in reading and reviewing a book, in exchange for Time Bank hours, just contact me, with your preferences as to topics, and we'll sort one out for you.

And here's today's quote:

Don't be afraid of opposition .... A kite flies best against the wind, and only dead fish float with the stream.

Are You a "Not for Profit" Organisation?

Do you need help securing more funding?

It's interesting how people's hobbies often become their jobs. Thea Mickell has always had a passion for not for profit groups. She's involved on many committees and Board of Trustees' and it was her natural tendency to like the nuts and bolts of the organisations especially the fund raising and administrative side of things.

Initially Thea was heavily involved in community groups that focused on the needs of her children. Life was filled with Play Centre and Kindergarten activities. As is always the case those groups are always seeking funding to improve facilities and outcomes for children. Thea loved the work and found she was really good at securing grant funding and thinking up fundraising ideas. Her volunteer success led her to forming her own business around six years ago. The business called Thea Mickell Services Limited whilst not based in Lyttelton is well used by many Lyttelton community groups.

Thea is just on the other side of the hill in Heathcote. For many the two places are closely linked and we have heard mention of "North Lyttelton" on many occasion!

Many activities have benefited from Thea's work this side of the hill. She was one of the founding members of the Grassy Market. That market was set up then as a fundraiser for Kidsfirst Kindergarten and Lyttelton Main School. Now she's involved securing vital grants for Lyttelton Youth Centre, Project Lyttelton, Lyttelton Workingman's Club for the Loons capital works project, the two Lyttelton schools, Naval Point and many other local groups.

Whilst Project Lyttelton and some of the other groups did all their own grant applications for many years it is great to have the resources of Thea's company to help now. She can keep us up to date on available funds and enable us to put our efforts elsewhere rather than filling out endless grant applications. Her enterprise enables you to concentrate on the things you like doing as a volunteer rather than having to concentrate on the things that don't excite you quite as much. For some groups this has now meant that they have overcome their financial difficulties as Thea is always there with a watching eye making sure they submit grants on time and that opportunities are not lost.

With so many not for profit groups around the harbour and with so many needs at present Thea Mickell may just be able to unlock some funding or administrative solutions for you.

Social Media Course

New Zealand not-for-profit organisations are constantly being exposed to many social media tools. By creating a social media strategy, organisations can focus their efforts and time on finding and using the social media tools that will reach their intended audience and provide value to their community.

The Adult Community Education Network offers a free workshop which will provide a space to investigate the important role that technology plays both personally and professionally, and to move thinking towards developing a social media strategy for your organisation. It will explore information & communications technology (ICT) planning, talk about how to align your ICT use, acquisition and management with your organisation's mission, vision and business plan. Attend this workshop to learn about using ICT and social media as a strategic asset. This workshop is for managers, staff/admin personnel and governance members.

Date: Friday 21 September

Time: 1.00 - 3.00pm

Venue: CPIT Campus Connect Hornby, Unit A, 375 Main South Road, Hornby

Keys to Volunteer Management and Motivation

Interactive Workshop

This interactive workshop will:

- Identify the key factors which motivate or de-motivate volunteers, and how they change during a volunteer's life-cycle
- Demonstrate how leaders can build strong volunteer programmes
- Utilise key research findings regarding motivation
- Provide participants with strategies to maximise motivating factors and minimise demotivating factors
- Discuss significant trends that are impacting on volunteer programs
- Assist agencies and co-ordinators to consider how developing trends will impact on them

Tutor Martin J Cowling brings current practical applicable information to his presentations. His experience from his own volunteering in Australia and El Salvador, combined with over 20 years in leadership and management roles in the not for profit world, and interactions with not for profit, government and business leaders globally means he has a wealth of knowledge to share. Martin believes that people are the key to the success of any project and is passionate about ensuring that organisations and their volunteers have mutually beneficial relationships. Participants in his previous Christchurch workshops have found them inspiring and involving.

Rethinking Citizenship

From the Ecological Footprint to the Social Handprint | Dr Bronwyn Hayward

In post quake Christchurch what kind of citizenship are we modelling for our children? We understand the ecological footprint but what kind of social handprint are we leaving? An Authoritarian handprint of FEARS? The SMART handprint of thin environmentalism, or the SEEDS of a new kind of ecological citizenship? The theme of this evening is based on a new way of thinking about education and citizenship from Bronwyn's new book Children, Citizenship and Environment: Nurturing a democratic imagination in a changing world - published by EarthScan/Routledge in London and New York

Organised by Sustainable Otautahi Christchurch with The Canterbury Workers Education Association. Thursday 30 August, 7.30pm, at the WEA Centre, 59 Gloucester St
